To visit Mideast

Kissinger schedules peace trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit Cairo and other Mideast capitals next week as the United States tries to promote peace negotiations between Israel and its Arab foes, officials said.

The trip, to be formally announced today, is considered a prelude to talks between Israel and the Arab states late this year or in early 1974.

Kissinger will stop in Jidda and Amman to confer with Saudi Arabian and Jordanian leaders, and possibly also in Rabat, Morocco. Then, after a stop in Pakistan, he will fly to Peking on Nov. 10 for a visit postponed because of the Mideast war.

The White House had planned to announce Kissinger's trip following a meeting today between President Nixon and Ismail Fahmy, the acting Egyptian foreign minister.

The secret was spilled Tuesday night while the President, Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin were meeting at Camp David, Md.

As the diplomatic pace quickened, Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel was granted an appointment with Nixon at the White House on Thursday.

She asked to see the President amid indications that the United States was pressing Israel to yield Egyptian territory on the west bank of the Suez Canal seized between two U.N. cease-fire calls last week.

The fact that Kissinger's trip to Cairo had already been planned was taken as evidence that Washington has already decided on at least the broad outline of its diplomatic course.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have pledged to use their "good offices" to expedite negotiations between Israel and her Arab neighbors. Of the two super powers, Washington clearly is playing the dominant role, while keeping Moscow informed principally through Dobrynin.

All attempts to foster negotiations since Israel was established 25 years ago have foundered even before an agenda could be prepared. The object of the current exploratory talks is to bring the two sides together under one roof, bargaining through a U.S. intermediary or directly across the table from each other. Geneva is a potential site.

Meanwhile, George Saddikni, the Syrian minister of information, vowed Tuesday that his country would not bargain with Israel.

Mideast problems "can only be solved through complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the recognition of Palestinian rights," he said in Damascus.

Fahmy is understood to have told Kissinger, however, that Egypt, Syria and other Arab states are prepared to accept Israel's sovereignty as a hard fact of life.

Ohio senator next Attorney General?

Saxbe 'sure' of Cabinet job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Saxbe emerged from a meeting with President Nixon today and said he is "relatively sure" he will be named U.S. attorney general.

Saxbe said it was obvious the new special Watergate Prosecutor would be selected "long before I would be confirmed." He sided with Nixon's view that the executive branch, rather than the courts should appoint Cox's successor, and said he was satisfied that the new special prosecutor would receive any necessary information from White House tapes and documents.

Saxbe said he and Nixon talked frankly about his assets and liabilities for the job. In response to a question, Saxbe said that Nixon had raised some of his past criticism of the President. Saxbe said he responded that Nixon "would have to take me warts and all," but that his past criticism "certainly doesn't reduce my ability to work and cooperate with the President."

Saxbe said his lengthy conversation with the President satisfied him that Nixon has acted honorably throughout the Watergate controversy.

Asked whether Nixon had offered him the job as attorney general, Saxbe responded, "That was implied when I walked in." He said the next move is up to Nixon, but added, "I'm satisfied in my mind I could do the job."

Key senators had said Tuesday that Nixon planned to nominate Saxbe but Saxbe said then he had not been offered the job.

Saxbe, 57, a first-term senator who recently announced he would not run for re-election next year, is a former attorney general of his state.

His nomination, which one source said was not expected until after completion of an FBI check next week, would mark the second time recently that Nixon has turned to Congress to fill a key vacancy.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford is the nominee to replace Spiro T. Agnew as vice president.

But Saxbe, unlike Ford, has on occasion sharply criticized Nixon despite a voting record generally in support of the administration.

During the Cambodian invasion Saxbe said that the President "must have left his senses."

In commenting earlier this year on whether the White House knew what was going on during the Watergate affair, Saxbe said, "That's like saying the piano player didn't know what was going on upstairs."

Saxbe said Tuesday that if he is asked to take the post, he would consider it seriously.

The firing of Archibald Cox as special prosecutor set off an upheaval in the Justice Department that brought the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and of William D. Ruckelshaus, the deputy attorney general.

Cox says new prosecutor must have wide freedom

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox has expressed concern that any new special prosecutor named by President Nixon might not have authority to look into campaign-financing violations, wiretapping and the ITT case.

Nixon has promised that a new special prosecutor will be named this week to investigate "what is called the Watergate matter."

Cox, who was fired as special prosecutor on Nixon's orders, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday that he considers the President's phrase "the Watergate matter" to involve only the break-in at Democratic national headquarters and the subsequent coverup.

"I do not think that definition covers my full jurisdiction," Cox said.

Cox contends his successor operating under Nixon's definition of Watergate would be without authority to investigate allegations that the Nixon administration improperly settled an antitrust suit against ITT; engaged in illegal wiretapping, and acted improperly in accepting campaign money from the dairy industry.

Cox told the committee Monday that he received, through then-Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, numerous complaints from White House staff members about the breadth of his investigation.

Cox was scheduled to testify again today in the Judiciary Committee's inquiry into his firing. He was dismissed Oct. 20 for refusing to halt efforts to obtain White House documents relating to his investigation.

Meanwhile, the Senate committee investigating the Watergate case planned to resume its hearings today with testimony from Berl Bernhard, who ran Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's 1972 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The committee also agreed to try to renew an agreement canceled by the White House that would have given the panel summaries of Watergate-related presidential tape recordings.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said the agreement collapsed in part because of "the haste with which this was put together at the last moment." Under the agreement, Stennis would have authenticated summaries of the tapes.

The White House agreed to submit to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica a detailed analysis of the tapes for an item-by-item ruling on what portions will be withheld from a grand jury.

In other developments:

—It was revealed that Richardson said before he resigned that Cox had copies of five secret memoranda, one of which a White House aide said would "directly involve the President" in the ITT scandal.

The documents are among those described in a March 30, 1972 memo from then-special presidential counsel Charles W. Colson to then-White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

—A House subcommittee concluded that the CIA and its top officials were "unwitting dupes" in providing materials used in the break-in at the of-

White House claims Nixon clean on ITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials, breaking their silence in an effort to calm the rekindled ITT controversy, say they voluntarily supplied Archibald Cox with White House files on the antitrust settlement before he was fired as special Watergate prosecutor.

Documents in those files, one high-ranking official said, "do not show any personal involvement by the President in the terms of the ITT settlement in the summer of 1971."

In a memo uncovered by the Senate Watergate committee last August, former presidential aide Charles W. Colson said the secret documents would "directly involve the President" in the ITT scandal.

The comments Tuesday night by high-level White House officials — the first time they had spoken out on the issue — were clearly intended to rebut the Colson memo.

There were these other developments Tuesday in the controversy over the out-of-court settlement of the antitrust case against the huge conglomerate, International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

—The New York Times, quoting sources close to the Watergate prosecution, reported that President Nixon told then-Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst not to appeal a court ruling favorable to ITT in one aspect of the antitrust case.

—White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren acknowledged the President had given the instruction to Kleindienst, contending he "had every right" to do so, but added that Nixon later withdrew the order after receiving more details about the case.

Watergate panel back in action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee, which has been in recess during the tumultuous events of recent days, was to resume its hearings today with questioning of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign director.

Berl I. Bernhard, a Washington lawyer who served as staff director in the Maine Democrat's unsuccessful bid for his party's presidential nomination last year, was expected to discuss the effects of political "dirty tricks" on the Muskie campaign.

Clark MacGregor, who succeeded former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell as director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, is scheduled to follow Bernhard as the final witness in the committee's probe of political espionage and sabotage.

The panel is scheduled to open the third and final phase of hearings, a probe of campaign contributions, next week and voted Tuesday to seek immunity for three potential witnesses in that area.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the committee chairman, said John Meier, Robert Lilly and Robert Isham would be granted immunity from prosecution based on the testimony they give.

Meier, a former Hughes Tool Co. executive, claims to have been a business associate of F. Donald Nixon, the President's brother.

He likely will be called as a witness when the committee hears testimony on a $100,000 cash contribution from billionaire Howard R. Hughes to Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the President's close friend and neighbor in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Lilly is a lobbyist for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) and secretary of its political arm. Isham is former comptroller of AMPI.

They are expected to be called in connection with the committee's probe of more than $400,000 that was secretly channeled into the Nixon campaign by three dairymen's cooperatives, including AMPI, allegedly in exchange for administration favors for the dairy industry.

Meanwhile, Senate Democrats meeting in closed session Tuesday adopted an Ervin resolution urging bipartisan efforts to create a new special prosecutor's office free of both the executive and legislative branches of government. The vote was 30 to 9.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the Watergate panel, said he hopes the committee will complete its hearings before Thanksgiving and turn its records over to a permanent Senate committee for continuing investigation of matters disclosed by the committee but not fully explored or outside the committee's bounds of inquiry.

Assembly passes conflicting bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both houses of the legislature have approved separate versions of campaign finance bills, setting the stage for a conference committee to try to resolve difference.

The Republican-controlled Senate approved its bill just before midnight Tuesday, about five hours after Democrats herded their bill through the House, which they control.

Senators voted 17-16 along strict party lines, while Democrats mustered a 54-40 vote from among their 58 House members. Five members were absent from the House, and Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville, voted with the Republicans.

Although the two parties disagree on a number of minor issues, the key to a compromise lies in how to handle union contributions. Neither side has budged since the special session called by Democratic Gov. John Gilligan convened Oct. 23.

The House rejected GOP attempts to require that individual members of unions and other organizations be allowed to designate recipients of their contributions. The decisions are now frequently made by organization political action committees.

The Republican Senate bill would require that organization members be allowed to designate contributions.

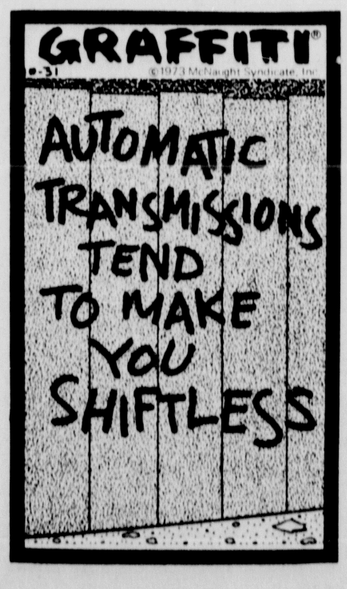

It took unusual parliamentary maneuvering by the Senate leadership to clear way for the issues to go to a Senate-House conference committee.

After the Senate passed its bill and sent it to the House, the original House bill was referred to the Senate Financial Institutions, Insurance, and Elections Committee.

At a 10-minute meeting just after midnight, the GOP-controlled committee substituted language from the Senate measure for that in the House bill. Senators then reconvened their floor session and approved return of, the amended House bill to the House.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Columbus, said that the move was necessary because a conference committee cannot consider a bill that hasn't been passed by both houses.

The conference committee was expected to be named today.

Hunt lost plane near Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — The Civil Air Patrol initiated today a search for a twin engine plane with two persons aboard which disappeared shortly after midnight while on a flight from Flint, Mich., to Cumberland, Md.

The CAP said last contact with the plane was at 12:25 a.m. EDT near here.

Occupants of the aircraft were not immediately known.

Gurney fund existence disclosed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., and his top advisers established a secret "Gurney Boosters Fund" in 1971 to handle $300,000 in unreported contributions and cash payoffs from contractors, the Miami Herald said today.

The Herald quoted unnamed sources, including one identified as a Gurney political confidant, as saying former Gurney aide Larry E. Williams collected the cash in 1971 and 1972 from Florida builders seeking influence with the Federal Housing Administration.

The money was used to pay office and travel expenses and "for other unknown purposes," the newspaper said.

The Herald said Gurney, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, "has become a target of an expanding Justice Department investigation."

There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department.

The newspaper said an aide to Gurney, when asked about the secret fund report, commented: "We are waiting for the Justice Department to advise us what, if anything, must be done in relation to the matter under investigation."

Truck drivers hit by diesel fuel rationing

Truck drivers going through Fayette County are really beginning to feel a pinch as far as a shortage of diesel fuel is concerned.

Service station operators in the Washington C.H. report a serious shortage of diesel fuel, and measures have been taken to ration the amount of fuel to the truckers.

One dealer at the I-71-U.S. 35 interchange said he completely exhausted his allotment of diesel fuel Tuesday night and truck drivers were scrambling for other stations in the emmediate area for fuel. He said he expected to receive more diesel fuel sometime tonight.

The dealer commented that he is rationing 30 gallons to each truck driver, while he could sell 60 gallons to the truckers earlier in the month.

He pointed out that next month he could probably sell 40-60 gallons to each trucker, but that it will depend entirely on the amount of fuel he receives.

Who's trapped on Suez Canal?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said today Egyptian forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

"Militarily this is easy," he said. "The east bank forces of the Egyptian 3rd Army are well entrenched while the rest and larger part of this army is now behind the Israeli forces on the west bank."

But he said he was holding back to avoid more war and bloodshed.

Sadat's view of an endangered Israeli force conflicted with Tel Aviv's claim that it has the Egyptian 3rd Army surrounded and at its mercy on the east bank of the canal.

Sadat also told a news conference in Cairo that Israel must pull back the troops on the west side of the canal to the lines they held at the time of the first cease-fire on Oct. 22 before he will exchange prisoners of war.

Israel had reported Tuesday that an exchange of wounded POWs was imminent.

Sadat said his officers were pressing him to let them wipe out the Israeli forces on the west bank of the canal but he was holding back to give President Nixon time to prevail on the Israelis to withdraw.

He indicated Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger this week told acting foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy they believe the Israelis should withdraw.

Fahmy was to be followed in Washington by Israeli Premier Golda Meir, who left Tel Aviv this morning for the United States.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told the Israeli parliament that Egypt has provided a list of 82 POWs — 45 of them injured — and promised a list of all its POWs within three days.

He said there would be an immediate exchange of wounded prisoners and Israel would take the first step by freeing 75 wounded Egyptians.

"We asked them for a full prisoner exchange but we have no promise on this," Dayan said. "But once the wounded are back and once the visits of the International Red Cross are taking place and the lists have been exchanged, I believe the full exchange would follow."

However, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian high command had ordered a prisoner exchange only after the Israelis "return to the lines of Oct. 22, in accordance of the Security Council resolution."

It was on Oct. 23, before the second Security Council ceasefire resolution, that Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal advanced past the south end of the canal and completed the encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd Army.

Israel estimates Egypt is holding about 350 Israelis prisoner and that Syria captured about 100. Israel says it captured some 7,150 Arabs, 6,000 of them Egyptians, and will free all of them in exchange for the approximately 450 Israelis.

Suspension of Rebozo weeks away

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision on whether to suspend President Nixon's close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, as chairman and president of a Florida bank will await completion of an investigation, probably within three weeks, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says.

FDIC Chairman Frank Wille said Tuesday his regulatory agency's three-member board had approved the policy unanimously.

Sen. William Prozmire, D-Wis., had asked the FDIC to suspend Rebozo immediately from leadership of the Key Biscayne Bank & Trust Co., but Wille said the board wanted to comply with "elemental standards of due process."

The investigation — begun last Friday and expected to be over within three weeks — involves a $195,000 loan issued by Rebozo's bank in 1968.

Rebozo accepted 900 shares of stock, later discovered to be stolen, as security. Rebozo spokesmen have denied published reports that the banker cashed 300 of the shares after learning they had been purloined.

Wille said a second FDIC investigation, involving the hiring of Franklin S. DeBoer to head the trust department of Rebozo's bank, should be completed next week.

Saxbe to cabinet?

Committee, said he would expect Saxbe to win Senate confirmation.

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a committee member, said Saxbe would have to give the same assurances Richardson did at the time of his nomination last May that a Watergate prosecutor would have full independence.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., also a committee member who is a chief sponsor of a bill to provide for a court-appointed prosecutor, said even such assurances would not solve the problem Congress faces.

"He could give all the promises but his authority could be taken away at any time by the President," Bayh said.

Fund juggling in Laos studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is seeking to determine whether the State Department deliberately underestimated its embassy staffing needs in Laos to Congress in order to minimize the U.S. presence there.

For whatever reasons, the Government Accounting Office (GAO) said Tuesday, the U.S. embassy in Vientiane, Laos, violated State Department staffing practices by supplementing its personnel with dozens more hired locally.

Norman Cornish, deputy staff director for the House Government Operations subcommittee on foreign operations, told a hearing Tuesday that the State Department apparently violated personnel regulations "in order to keep a low profile in Laos."

"Now they're having to admit they didn't ask enough money to do the job and they had to violate the rules with local hires," Cornish said.

Frank C. Conahan, associate director of the GAO's international division, said the embassy did have an abnormally small American staff.

He said he had no idea what Congress would have done if it had known the true extent of U.S. involvement in Laos between 1971 and 1973.

Conahan recommended that Congress ask for records on the local residents hired under State Department contracts at every other installation throughout the world.

Investigators for the GAO and the Agency for International Development (AID) told the subcommittee that the embassy also violated State Department rules in building a swimming pool for the ambassador and kept such sloppy books so that it is impossible to track down $2 million worth of surplus military equipment the embassy requisitioned from Thailand.

AID investigators continue to examine the financial records of the top two officials under the ambassador to determine whether they made illegal financial gains as alleged by two former government officials in Vientiane who testified last week.

The investigators said, however, they had found no substantiation so far of other allegations that the missing military material was bartered off to underwrite the ambassador's pool or improvements to his residence.

California ITT case revival eyed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. says he will try to reopen his previously dismissed suit against the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Brown, a Democrat, said he would ask a federal appeals court in San Francisco today to let him reopen the suit in the wake of the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The state's chief elections officer, Brown filed the suit March 20, 1972, saying the federal Corrupt Practices Act prohibits a corporation from contributing to a presidential campaign or convention.

Involved in the action was a $100,000 contribution from an ITT subsidiary, Sheraton hotels, to the San Diego Convention and Visitors Bureau on Aug. 5, 1971.

The contribution was to aid the 1972 Republican National Convention, once scheduled for San Diego.

A U.S. District Court judge dismissed the suit May 16, 1972, saying the contribution was not illegal. ITT had contended the donation was a legitimate business expense to foster its hotel interests in San Diego.

Brown appealed the judge's ruling but suspended his efforts when prosecutor Cox said he would probe the ITT matter.

Brown announced on Tuesday he was resuming his efforts because of "the personal interference by the President in this matter and the continual refusal of the Justice Department to prosecute this case."

An aide said Brown hoped to use the suit as a means to investigate the contribution and to subpoena ITT and Republican National Committee documents and records.

'Fasting for CROP' plan explained to Lions Club

Two new members, Sam Kimple and Charles Temple, were inducted into the Washington C. H. Lions Club Tuesday night by Senior Deputy Governor Scott Regdon, of West Union, bringing the club membership up to 97.

Regdon, who was making an official visit to the club here, also spoke briefly on the principles and policies of Lions International and outlined several important upcoming events.

Following dinner in the Country Club, President David Looker conducted the business session at which Richard Patton, a past president, spoke in support of the .2 of a mill additional county health levy and Paul Johnson explained the need for the 2-mill additional and 1-mill renewal levies to provide funds for city elementary school libraries, salaries and upgrading the junior high school curriculum. Both the health and school levies will come to a vote at the election next Tuesday.

In accordance with club policy, no action was taken as a club; instead, the decisions were left up to the individual Lions.

TWO STUDENTS, Marcia Markel, a MTHS sophomore, and Bruce Gilmore, a WSHS junior, explained the "Fasting for CROP" fund-raising project, which is sponsored by several churches here. They said that students interested will volunteer to refrain from eating from noon Friday, Nov. 16, until 7 p.m. Saturday. The students will get sponsors who will agree to contribute an amount (of their own choice) to CROP for every hour the student fasts.

At the conclusion of the talks by the students, Tail Twister Gene Sagar passed a plastic pumpkin among the members for contributions. The pumpkin was well filled, but it was handed to the students without counting the money inside, President Looker said.

Blaze damages home

BOOKWALTER — Fire broke out in the ceiling of the residence of Virgil Barker Jr., Bookwalter, Tuesday when a stone pipe overheated. The fire was out when the Jeffersonville Fire Department arrived. Damage was estimated at $75.

Mrs. Allen Puffenberger, the project chairman, explained that the students will spend the 30 hours of fasting in Grace United Methodist Church and on Saturday evening the fast will end with dinner there. She said the number of student participants will not be known until sometime next week, but that she expects between 70 and 80 to take part.

Most are expected to bring sleeping bags, she said. The group will be well chaperoned, she added.

Full school milk funding restored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday it will restore full funding of the special milk program to provide snack time milk for school children.

The department also said a new federal regulation which went into effect last August allows school cafeterias to serve nonfat dry milk if the product is reconstituted into liquid form at dairy processing plants.

Funding for the special milk program will be restored to the full level provided in the department's appropriations legislation for the 1973-74.

Last July, the department said it would hold special milk spending this school year to $25 million. But Congress insisted that $97.1 million be used to provide children milk at snack periods in addition to servings at regular meals.

Administration officials had wanted to limit special milk servings to schools not having regular meal service.

In bowing to Congress, the department said it will reimburse schools participating in the National School Lunch Program at a rate of four cents per one-half pint of special milk served.

Ghosts no joke to spirit hunters

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

PITTSFIELD, N.H. (AP) — To most people, ghosts are funny kids with sheets over their heads on Halloween. But for folks who track down apparitions in creaky old houses, the subject is no laughing matter.

Take David Munsell, an exorcist who scares off spooks in his spare time, or Edward Warren, a professional ghost hunter who says he's uncovered 500 cases of genuine hauntings. These people believe.

"There's no doubt about it," Warren told an interviewer. "I have seen people as solid as you appear and disappear."

Warren, of Monroe, Conn., says he's investigated 2,000 reportings of supernatural activity in the past 25 years. And in some cases, he says he's actually convinced the ghosts that it's time to pass on.

Munsell, who operates a landclearing business in Bradford, Maine, says he has driven spirits from about a half dozen houses by chanting over and over, "In Jesus' name, get out."

Munsell's most celebrated case was in Pittsfield, where a pesky spirit began winging objects through the air in a 125-year-old farmhouse which was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ehrhardt.

Munsell, who had read about the Ehrhardt's troubles, offered his services. That was two years ago, and the ghost, or whatever it was, has not returned.

Munsell, who teaches a course about the supernatural at the University of Maine, says, "Ghosts are simply manifestations of unclean, or evil, spirits. They're fallen angels. They are intelligent, powerful beings. We don't play games with them.

"I have authority over them through the Lord. I command them to leave."

And he says it always works.

However, Warren says not all ghosts are bad. Even though some are demons, others are simply the confused spirits of people who have died but don't want to leave.

"I am not an exorcist, but I can communicate with spirits," Warren said. "I will talk to them just as I talk to you. Remember they are people, even though in spirit form.

"Many of them will not accept the fact that they are dead because they don't want to accept the fact of God. Some just don't want to leave home. Others don't want to give up their families.

"We must convince them that they would be better off if they passed over correctly and let things take their course."

Threecharges await action by grand jury

Evidence against three persons will be presented to a Fayette County grand jury Friday by County Prosecutor Otis Hess.

The state is seeking indictments against Herbert R. Thompson, 25, of 1121 Lakeview Ave., Mary Jo Myers, 24, of 701 Blackstone St., and Laddner A. Trenoweth, 24, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Thompson was arrested inside the Eat-N-Time Restaurant in the early morning hours Sept. 23. He is charged with burglary, larceny and possession of burglary tools.

Mary Myers, who pleaded not guilty on arraignment Tuesday, is charged with shoplifting in the alleged theft of $115 in women's apparel at Soldan's. She was arrested Oct. 18 by city police.

Trenoweth was arrested by the Sheriff's Department Oct. 25 and is charged with carrying a concealed weapon. He allegedly had a small handgun concealed in his boot.

fice of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Members of the White House "plumbers" unit broke into the office after Ellsberg gave newsmen copies of the Pentagon papers.

—The House Judiciary Committee voted broad subpoena power to its chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., in the panel's investigation of possible grounds for impeaching Nixon. Rodino will be allowed to subpoena witnesses and documents without full committee approval.

In testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday, Cox said he may have been the indirect source of a news leak about a conversation between Nixon and then-Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst about the ITT case.

The New York Times carried a story Tuesday saying Nixon ordered Kleindienst not to appeal one phase of the ITT antitrust case.

The story said Kleindienst had related the conversation to Watergate prosecutors.

Cox told the committee he had discussed that conversation with Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and two of their aides. He said he had been assured neither was the source of the leak.

Cox called his breach of confidence "an error of carelessness" and apologized.

At the White House, a spokesman said Cox's testimony illustrates "the partisan attitude that characterized his activities in recent months."

Some time after the conversation with Kleindienst, Nixon withdrew his opposition to the appeal and the ITT case was settled out of court.

Although there have been assertions that the out-of-court settlement resulted from a promise of ITT aid to the Republican National Convention, Cox said he considers the agreement a good one for the government.

Cox repeated that he thinks the best method of naming his successor is to enact a bill leaving the choice to the full U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

A majority of senators have endorsed a bill allowing Sirica to name the prosecutor.

Cox agreed there are constitutional risks in this procedure, but said the risks are worth taking.

No matter how the prosecutor is selected, Cox said, he must have access to White House documents, which Nixon has been reluctant to grant.

And it is possible, Cox added, that naming a new prosecutor who is subject to firing by the President could be worse than having no prosecutor at all.

Cox said there is evidence that the political papers of some White House aides have been dumped into Nixon's "presidential files" to protect them from subpoena.

If such a practice were to continue, Cox said, the result would be an entirely new Watergate cover-up.

Stock prices down again

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices moved lower again today, as investors continued to take profits from the market's strong rally earlier this autumn.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down almost a point at the opening and declining issues took a broad lead over advancing ones in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Active issues on the Big Board included British Petroleum, up ⅛ to 15; Raytheon, off ¼ to 33; DPF Inc., down ¼ to 4½; and Occidental Petroleum, steady at 10¾.

On Tuesday the Dow sank 16.26 points to 968.54 and declines outnumbered advances by about 4 to 1 in fairly active trading on the Big Board. Analysts said the decline indicated the market was in the process of consolidating some of the broad gains it made during its four-week rally.

Rain was forecast to return to Ohio this afternoon and tonight, spreading northeast ahead of a low centered in Arkansas early today.

The low will continue northeast through Pennsylvania Thursday, bringing cool weather to Ohio.

Temperatures tonight are forecast in the 40s, but will climb no higher than the upper 40s and low 50s Thursday afternoon. That compares with readings of 50 to 60 degrees that were forecast for today and is five to 10 degrees below normal.

Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy overnight across Ohio. While rain ended in the south and west, drizzle continued early today in the northeast.

The heaviest rainfall Tuesday and overnight was in the Cleveland area, where around an inch was recorded. Little more than a trace was recorded during the same period at Toledo.

Fair weather Friday is expected to turn wet over the weekend with a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday. Highs will be in the 60s Friday and Saturday, falling to the 50s Sunday. Lows all three days will be in the 40s.

Heavy thunderstorms drenched parts of Texas today as showers lingered over widely scattered parts of the nation.

The storms dumped almost 2 inches of rain at Lufkin in eastern Texas. Winds up to 60 miles an hour were clocked at Palacios, near the Gulf Coast. Flash flood warnings were issued Tuesday night for the Dallas-Fort Worth area where 2 to 4 inches of rain fell.

Scattered rain and snow showers chilled the northern Rockies. Lewistown, Mont., was blanketed with 3 inches of snow.

Spotty showers touched western South Dakota. Most of the Mississippi Valley was overcast, and showers and some thunderstorms erupted from the central Mississippi Valley to the western Gulf region.

Rain and drizzle washed the eastern Ohio Valley and central Appalachians and some showers and thunderstorms lingered in New England, where a storm system that struck heavily Tuesday moved into Canada.

Much of the Southeast had temperatures in the 40s before dawn, and there was a scattering of 30s ranging south as far as the Florida Panhandle.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 27 at Flagstaff, Ariz., to 77 at Brownsville, Tex.

Expect gripes from Golda

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is expected to be carrying both gratitude and gripes when she meets President Nixon on Thursday in Washington.

The premier is sure to thank the President for the massive American shipments of arms. But she is also likely to complain about U.S. pressures on Israel that have put her government on the spot at home and could cost her Labor party votes in the elections two months away.

Mrs. Meir, who last visited Washington eight months ago, will spend three or four days in the U.S. capital, her spokesman said. Her travel plans are kept secret for security reasons and her itinerary is not yet final.

She is expected to reiterate to the President three basic demands of Israeli policy: face-to-face talks with the Arabs leading to a signed peace treaty, retention of key pieces of territory seized by Israel in 1967, and no change in the status of all of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

But her top priority probably will be a discussion of the current cease-fire, which Israel says Washington forced it to accept at a moment of military strength.

The Israelis have indicated that to obtain their agreement to the cease-fire, the Americans and the Soviets promised to get the Egyptians to abide by all the agreement's provisions.

But Israel claims the Egyptians have failed to live up to the pact's spirit by going slow on a prisoner of war exchange, continuing a naval blockade in the Red Sea and failing to halt shooting incidents.

Juries and drinking

There is no lack of good reasons to avoid excessive drinking, even of the so-called social variety. One little added nudge toward abstemious or at any rate temperate behavior is brought to attention by Jury Verdict Research.

This group's staff has just completed a study, "Alcohol as an Issue - Plaintiff Drinking." It concludes that juries considering liability suits are likely to show much less sympathy for plaintiffs if the latter were under the influence of alcohol at the time of the episode in question.

A release about the report puts the question thus: "If you were involved in an automobile accident, fell at the neighborhood grocery, or perhaps slipped off the scaffold at your place of business, will your previous intake of alcoholic beverages affect the reactions and reasoning of the jury?" The general answer is in the affirmative.

The Jury Verdict Research report does show that when awards are made the amount is only a little less in cases where drinking is involved than would normally be expected. The crunch comes on the jackpot question whether an award will be made at all. Here the adverse impact of drinking on jury sympathies is clearly shown. As an example the report offers data on awards to plaintiff pedestrians struck by vehicles: if alcohol was involved, we are told, an award is made in about one-third fewer cases.

No one expects to be hit by a car, of course, or to fall at the grocery store or slip off a scaffold. Still, it could happen. And if you're lucky, you won't have been drinking when it does.

The detenters-emeritus

It was only a few months ago that the people who hold my general position on the Soviet Union, on detente, and on related issues were being denounced from the intellectual housetops as "Cold War relics," "obsessive anti-Communists," and fossils crusted over the antique dogmas.

Michael Harrington (the writer, not the Representative) went so far as to split the Social Democrats, U.S.A. and set up a marching and chowder club of his own because, in his view, the SDUSA was too close to conservative elements like Senator Henry Jackson and the AFL-CIO.

THE TEMPTATION right now is to laugh, but the responsible reaction is to weep. When Israel was bushwhacked on Yom Kippur, what leading figures in American politics spoke up?

Sen. J. W. Fulbright? Yes, he opened up to observe dourly that the American Jewish community had the Senate in its pocket.

Senator George McGovern? He may have said something, but all I have noticed is his comment that Sen. Fulbright should have received the Nobel Peace Prize.

Eugene McCarthy? I'm a close reader, but so far he has drawn a blank. Secretary of State Kissinger noted that Soviet behavior had been moderate and not irresponsible.

No. The first two realistic voices heard were . . . you guessed it: Sen. Henry M. Jackson and George Meany. Maybe Jackson is an "obsessive anti-Communist," but to date no politician has come within light years of his superb analysis of events in the Middle East delivered Oct. 15 in Los Angeles.

Maybe Meany is a "Cold War relic," but on Oct. 9 he sent a wire to Secretary Kissinger.

The telegram was succinct and to the point: Meany expressed the AFL-CIO's "solidarity with and full support of the state of Israel, the Histadrut (Israeli Labor Movement) and the Israeli workers in their struggle for a free society based on decency and social justice . . . In so critical a moment, no nation must be allowed to doubt, even for a second, where the United States stands." Like Jackson, Meany tied the can precisely where it belongs: on the Soviet Union.

NOW the intellectual community has leaped into action. It is hard to find any news in the papers with so much space being taken up by paid political advertisements. The doves and detenters of yesteryear have really taken to breathing fire.

The temptation to turn the dagger — to say, "I told you so" — is a human one, particularly if your scars ache as mine do from the knifework of these clowns, but there is a far more important point. What has to be driven home to the liberal community is that if the McCarthys and McGoverns had been successful in implementing their policy, we would have nothing to send to Israel except perhaps a contingent of the Peace Corps and eventually a wreath.

You can not dismantle the "military-industrial complex" and then expect it to suddenly rise from the grave as the "Arsenal of Democracy."

Most of the ads I have seen say, in effect, "Jackson for President" and I trust that those of the liberal persuasion who have in the past written him off as "conservative" because, for example, he want to see Phantoms produced, will line up behind him for 1976.

I am not, however, standing on one foot awaiting this eventuality — the odds, based on their track record, are that the detenters-emeritus will never forgive him.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Allendeism north of the Border

It's front-page news whenever a Latin American Allende or Castro grabs U.S. property or voids a long-standing lease agreement without offering the victim a peso's worth of indemnifcation. And when a Col. Muamma el-Qaddafi of Libya expropriates an international oil company, the Western press echoes with protests about the injustice of it all, even though the Libyan government may soften the blow a bit by offering compensation to an occasional favorite, as it did recently to the Occidental Oil Co.

Allendeism and Qaddafiism are supposed to be a barbarous application of the doctrine of nationalism, barbarous because it ignores the common-law principle of just compensation that found its way seom 200 years ago into the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

You would not normally expect to see the idea of just compensation flouted in Canada, a country with the same legal traditions as the U. S. Yet, without any journalistic fanfare or outraged protests from the U. S. State Department, Canadian provincial governments have been emulating Chile's Allende with the most brazen insouciance.

A U. S.-owned company, Churchill Forest Industries, made a deal some years ago with what was then the conservative government of the Canadian province of Manitoba to develop some 40,000 square miles of country in the northern part of the province just below Hudson Bay. Manitoba's share of the financing came to 86 per cent of the total, with Churchill Forest Industries putting up the remainder.

The Arthur D. Little Company of Boston was in on the advisory details. Churchill was to build the necessary mills, lay our new towns for mill workers and their families, and market the forest products for a period of 60 years. It was, supposedly, a hard-and-fast lease arrangement, entered into for the benefit of Manitoba itself.

THIS WAS before the New Democratic Party, elected on a socialistic nationalization of resources platform, took control of Manitoba in 1969. What followed has been Allendeism pure and simple.

Edward Schreyer, the New Democratic Party premier of Manitoba, has simply ousted Churchill Forest Industries without paying a nickel for Churchill's rights in the original deal. The money that Churchill spent in completing two sawmills, one paper mill and one pulp mill is apparently going for naught.

The big international copper companies, Kennecott and Anaconda, got not worst treatment in Chile.

Churchill, unable to press its suit in Manitoba, is trying to sue for retribution in a U. S. State court, citing damage and compensation claims of more than $500 million. The New Jersey Superior Court, though recognizing the "raging Canadian political and legal turmoil" that produced the takeover, has denied Churchill any use of New Jersey courts on the ground that local U. S. courts don't provide the right locale for international compensation appeals.

The denial came in spite of the fact that Manitoba had itself brought an action against Churchill in New Jersey. Manitoba did not deny the expropriation; it simply said, in effect, that Churchill isn't entitled to any compensation arranged for by an ousted conservative government that made deals with "mongrel" capitalists.

The Churchhill seizure is perhaps the most extreme example of what is happening "north of the border, up Canada way." British Columbia, under its own New Democratic Party regime, recently froze sales of farm land pending the creation of a board to define the limits of land use.

The program of the British Columbia premier, David Barrett, may be still in the talk stage to a large extent, but if the NDP has its way in British Columbia any company engaged in bringing raw materials — lumber, ores, oil or natural gas—to market will soon find itself working primarily for the state. A hard rock miner told a Barron's magazine reporter last spring that prospectors and farmers should do their "talking with 30)30s."

All of this is in a land that pays lip service to "Traditional English liberties." No wonder Canadians are being called, however unfairly, "the Arabs of the North."

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

All children deserve the best education possible. We are proud when students do well in competition like watching a well directed marching band, and well coached athletic teams.

A new junior high school building will provide a better foundation for seventh and eighth graders.

Being retired teachers we know what the students and teachers lack to work with. So are you going to vote for the Miami Trace Middle School?

We believe our children, grandchildren and our neighbors' children deserve a better chance for a first class education than they are now receiving.

"KICKBACKS. I'M GLAD WE LAID OFF OF THAT ONE, LOUIE."

Hal Boyle . . . Remarks for wiretappers

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a professional telephone bugger gets tired of hearing:

"If you are so good at your work, why hasn't your name been brought out in the Watergate investigations?"

"What do you hear, Jake?"

"I want you to fix it so I can listen in on my wife's private conversation, but no one else can—and not even you."

"What would you charge to rent me some old tapes? I'm a television soap opera writer, and I'm looking for some material with true-to-life dialogue."

"I don't know how much my business partner paid you to tap my telephone, but if you can keep your trap shut I'll pay you twice as much to put a tap on his line for me. He must be stealing twice as much as I am."

"If you don't let me listen the next time you bug a movie star's apartment, Jake, I'll divorce you. As your wife, I should be entitled to get some pleasure out of this dirty work you're doing. Heaven knows it doesn't pay much."

"That was a good idea to bug the old man's dentures, Jake, but I haven't heard a word from him for an hour. Do you suppose he took them out and dunked them in a glass of water on his bedside table?"

"As your accountant, Jake, I have to say we are not doing too well. It is true that you earned $25,000 last year in blackmail money on which you didn't pay taxes, but, on the other hand, as you had to dish out $500 a week to keep the cops off your back, you'd have done better if you had spent the same time doing honest work, revolting as I know that must sound to you."

"As a man you taught the business to, Jake, even though we are rivals now, I feel I ought to tell you something as a professional courtesy. The cops hired me to put a tap on your bookie's phone, and I overheard him the other night ordering one of his strong boys to put the muscle on you if you don't pay what you owe him by Friday."

"Frankly, your medical problem has me puzzled, and I may have to call in a consultant. Just how long did you say you had this strange buzzing in your ears?"

"No, I don't want you to tap my business competitor's phone to learn his secrets. What I want you to do is to sell him on the idea of tapping our phones to learn our secrets. They are driving us bankrupt, and if he stole a few they might force him to the wall, too."

"Please, Daddy, don't read me anymore bedtime stories. Just draw me a few diagrams so I can show the other kids in my class how to cheat the telephone company."

"Hi, lover boy, come over right away and sneak in the back way. Don't worry about my husband. He's out on an all-night case. And Jake's such a big dumb ox he'd never think of putting a bug in his own bedroom."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Minister gives thanks for defending lifestyle

DEAR ABBY: I want to express my gratitude to you for having the courage to repeat your statement that homosexuality is NOT a "sickness."

I am the director of Adult Ministries for the United Methodist Church in the Hawaii district, and am long past the age when I might appeal sexually to either a female or another male.

Abby, you put to shame some of my so-called "fellow Christians," who have so completely forgotten the teachings of Jesus, that they would deny God's love and compassion for the millions of people who live a lifestyle different from their own.

Thank you, Abby. Whether you believe in Jesus or not, his love shines on you when you write such columns.

FRED R. METHERED

MY DEAR REV. METHERED: Thanks. I needed that!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I don't go steady with any one guy, but there is one I see more than the others. I like him a lot, but this dude's hands are quicker than the eye and if I let him kiss me, before I know it, his hands are all over me.

How do I handle such an aggressive guy?

CAREFUL

DEAR CAREFUL: When he gets busy with his hands, tell him to cut it out. And if he doesn't, get busy with your foot, and kick him out.

DEAR ABBY: About the girl who wanted to have her nose pierced over her parents' objections: I say, let her! It isn't painful, and if it is properly done, no infection should result.

I spent two years in India on an assignment, and while I was there I had my nose pierced in order to wear a small gold ring in it. It is the custom for women and girls in India.

After I returned to the States, wearing the ring in my nose, I was the object of curious stares and many rude remarks, so I removed it. However I still have the tiny hole in my nose, and will wear the ring in it if it ever becomes the fad or fashion here.

HOLE IN MY NOSE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR HOLE: Of course, one never knows, but I doubt if nose rings will ever catch on in the States.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "T") took his life and left me with three minor children. Before "T" was buried, the vultures moved in to pick the bones.

A friend called the morning of the funeral and said if I planned to sell the house to please give him a chance to bid on it.

At the funeral parlor, another "friend" asked me what I was going to do with T's gun collection. Imagine the insensitivity of this man, knowing that my husband killed himself with a gun!

It's been only a week and I have had offers for everything from his clothes to his garden tools.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I was ready to explode. I don't have to sign my name. Everybody in town knows who I am.

Nation's red meat supply drops 12 per cent over year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's red meat supply last month was down 13 per cent from September 1972, about in line with earlier government predictions, according to new livestock slaughter figures compiled by the Agriculture Department.

The report, issued Tuesday, illustrated what USDA livestock economists have been saying: It will take months for cattle producers, especially, to crank up the meat machine to full throttle after a hold-back during the price freeze.

In September, the report said, beef production was under 1.64 billion pounds, one per cent less than in August and 13 per cent below a year earlier.

Pork output declined 5 per cent from August and was 13 per cent less than in September last year. Veal, lamb and mutton production was also down from earlier levels, the report said.

Looking over the first nine months of this year, the report showed that total red meat production declined 7 per cent from the comparable period of 1972. Beef, the largest component, dropped 7 per cent below a year earlier during the first three quarters of 1973.

Two weeks ago, USDA reported that an Oct. 1 inventory in the 23 major beef states showed 12.1 million cattle being fed for slaughter, up 3 per cent from the same date last year.

But that report also showed that fewer than 6.7 million head of the Oct. 1 inventory was actually moved into slaughter markets during the last three months of 1973. Thus, officials say, it will be next spring before cattle marketings increase substantially and begin to move above year-earlier levels.

Oil drilling boom going on in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Oil drilling in Ohio is up a full 50 per cent over last year as oil producers re-evaluate the state's potential in light of the energy crisis.

The Ohio Natural Resources Department said today 1,359 oil wells were drilled through Oct. 19, compared to only 886 through the same period in 1972.

Not only are more new wells being drilled, but wildcatters are beginning to explore the potential of deep wells, a virtually untapped resource previously passed over in favor of lower, but steady yield shallow wells.

And low producing wells past their prime are being kept in production longer than before the energy shortage.

"In a way, we're in a boom," said G. Lyman Dawe, oil and gas division director for the state department.

"This is great country for the independent and small operator," Dawe said.

Much of the state's popularity comes from the 90 per cent success rate in striking oil in certain sandstone strata in eastern Ohio, Dawe said.

Shallow wells there can be drilled fairly cheaply and with acceptable risk by the smaller operator, Dawe said, though production doesn't match the great oil fields of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

In addition, drillers are exploring the possibility of deep wells. Dawe said Ohio drillers never could reach the 24,000-foot wells of the southwest, but a few now are going considerably past the 4,000-foot average Ohio well.

He said the deep well potential is beginning to attract explorative wildcatters.

"I can't tell you how great the deep potential is, but we do have a deep potential," Dawe said.

At the same time, "stripper wells"—wells producing less than 10 barrels a day—are being kept in production longer, Dawe said. That reflects price increases of up to 20 per cent.

"It's not a matter of popularity," he said. "It's just one of the facts of life."

Of the 9.4 million barrels of oil Ohio produced last year, more than two-thirds came from stripper wells. The Interstate Oil Compact Commission said there were 14,863 stripper wells in Ohio at the beginning of the year, and stripper well reserves are estimated at 89 million barrels.

Dawe said most Ohio drilling seeks both oil and natural gas, and Ohio natural gas exploration also is gaining in popularity.

COPING WITH BILLING ERRORS

Bills with errors are never pleasant to receive. Getting such bills corrected is easier if you understand how errors might occur.

If your credit statement is wrong, it may be due to the billing time lag. Several days will elapse between the day your statement is prepared and the day you receive it. This period — perhaps five days or longer — is the billing time lag. Any purchase or payments made during this period will not appear on your current statement.

Check the billing date if you receive a bill which doesn't record your last payment. Compare that date and the date your check probably was received. If the omission is due to billing time lag, the problem is only temporary.

If the time lag isn't the cause, check to be sure you aren't to blame. Does someone else have access to the same credit account? If so, you may not know about all the charges made on the account. Check to be sure there are no charges made by another person.

A returned check also causes billing discrepancies. Insufficient funds is not the only reason checks are returned. You may, for example, have failed to sign the check or failed to name a payee.

If a store claims it never received your check, call the bank to see if it has paid it. Then you'll know if the store has received and cashed your check.

If the bank has not paid the check and sufficient time has passed, you may ask the bank to stop payment on the check. You will probably need to make this request in writing at the bank. Then send the store a second check by registered mail — you will receive a signed receipt showing that the store did receive your payment.

You can do several things to help prevent billing errors. Use your credit card when you charge purchases. This insures that the proper credit card number appears on your sales slip.

Before you sign a sales slip, check to be sure all the spaces are correctly filled in and that the price is legibly written. Check the accuracy of addition and multiplication. Be sure the total is written. Check the accuracy of addition and mulitiplication. Be sure the total is written at the bottom of the sales check — this makes it impossible to write in added charges after you have signed the sales check.

Know when billing dates are and mail your payments so they arrive before the deadline. Put your return address on the envelope and return the correct portion of the bill with your payment.

When your monthly statement arrives, review it promptly. Keep copies of all charges you've made and compare them with the bill. If you do find an error, start to get it corrected right away.

First, notify the company promptly of the billing error. When you call the company, have at hand your charge card number, the statement, and copies of the sales slips. Note the name of the person you talk with and the date — you might need this information later.

If your contact is by mail, send a separate letter — don't just write a note on the bill. Include your credit card number and any other necessary information. Keep a copy of the letter.

Don't pay for merchandise that you haven't received; don't pay any part of a bill that you don't owe. But — do contact the company promptly to explain why you haven't sent payment. Keep a copy of this letter, too.

If you have difficulty getting the error corrected, send a registered letter to the president of the company. Explain your problem in detail, give the facts of the situation, and explain what you've done to solve the problem.

If the problem still isn't settled, report it to the appropriate regulatory agency in government. To protect your credit rating, write a statement of 100 words or less giving your view of the problem and ask the local credit bureau to file it with your account. This information, given to future prospective creditors, will show that the unpaid account was in dispute and was not resolved to your satisfaction.

Club spends day at Turkey Ridge

Members of the Town and Country Garden Club took advantage of the beautiful fall weather by spending a day at the Rankin Cottage on Turkey Ridge in Ross County recently. A brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Lee Cleland, in which final plans were made for the club's participation in the Fall Regional Meeting to be held in Mahan Hall, October 30. Town and Country will be in charge of Registration, which will be handled by Mrs. Lewis Thomson, Mrs. Alvin Armintrout and Mrs. Cleland. The sales table, at which a wide variety of hand-made articles will be offered for sale, will be in charge of Mrs. John Stimpert and Mrs. Dwight Duff.

The programs for the coming year were announced, as were the committees, by Mrs. Cleland.

Following the business meeting, the noon meal was enjoyed at tables on the side lawn. Mrs. Rankin invited those present to enjoy "Campfire Stew" which had been prepared in an iron kettle over an open wood fire. This, along with the covered dishes provided by the members, was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Following lunch, members enjoyed a hike through the countryside, gathering plants for drying and nuts and bittersweet. Mrs. Rankin pointed out spots of interest and identified many plants and birds for the group.

Mrs. Walter Thompson was a guest for the day.

The next meeting will be November 14 at the home of Mrs. Armintrout, with Mrs. Robert Browning as co-hostess. The program will feature a demonstration of decoupage by Mrs. Paula Henke of Hillsboro.

Nation's economic sectors make news

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — What follows is a compilation of items that, reflected upon, may provide some insight into the condition of the American economy:

—The fuel shortage didn't erupt in the faces of unsuspecting officials, although it might appear that way. Government and industry researchers saw the problem developing a decade ago, but almost no coordinate effort was made to face it.

Same with food. Officials knew that while population was increasing, and that people the world over were improving their diets, the supply of food was not rising sufficiently to take care of demand.

Speaking at the Columbia Graduate School of Business a few days ago, C.W. Cook, chairman of General Foods Corp., observed:

"In 1965, President Johnson appointed a 30-man panel, called the National Commission on Food and Fiber, to make a thorough 18-month study of the subject in its broadest aspects.

"I was privileged to be a member along with topflight agribusiness economists from the academic world, farm leaders, other food processors, food retailers, and consumer representatives.

"Among other findings, our commission concluded that the trend of world demand was outpacing supply and would continue to do so unless massive steps were taken to achieve more of a balance.

"What happened as a result? In effect, nothing!"

—True or false: The United States is a have-not nation in regard to energy resources. False. The just-published "U.S. Industrial Outlook 1974," a Commerce Department publication, might bolster your confidence:

"It is reassuring that this country has almost unlimited energy potential in the form of coal and oil shale. More than half of the world's total reserves of coal are within the United States, and recoverable resources of oil shale are of roughly equal magnitude."

It adds that "large-scale" additions to the energy supply will come from solar and geothermal sources in the 1990s, and that nuclear fusion "could possibly supply energy indefinitely for a substantial part of the world's population."

—Many corporations are enjoying the most profitable year in their history, but that doesn't mean they're happy.

One after another they've boasted to stockholders and brokers about record high profits and then, lest the government was listening, added that price relief was necessary if profitability was to continue.

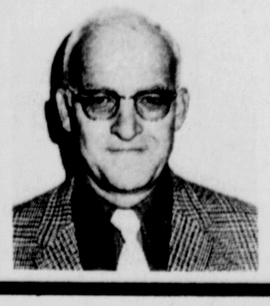

Union Carbide, for example, "expects the best year in the corporation's history," its chief financial officer, William Pardoe, told San Francisco security analysts this week.

That was half the story. Another officer then cautioned that rising costs of hydrocarbon feedstock and energy would require relief from price restrictions on its products now imposed by Phase 4.

—Pay raises to organized labor in this year of government controls contributed less to corporate stress, although they may have contributed a good deal to strained relations between labor and the administration.

The Labor Department reported that wage-benefit increases in major contract settlements for the first nine months dropped to 6.3 per cent over the life of contract from 7.4 per cent for the entire year 1972.

—There is an element that always believes Americans are into credit over their heads, despite the consistent repayment of that debt by borrowers. Now they have something substantial to think about.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House says it's considering whether to publicly pinpoint specific examples of what President Nixon calls "outrageous, vicious, distorted" reporting on television.

He didn't give specific examples or specific networks when he angrily made the charge last Friday night at his nationally televised news conference. And none has come from him yet.

But this week, on the CBS-TV "Morning News," White House speechwriter Patrick Buchanan cited two recent examples of network reporting he said aroused or justified Nixon's anger and concern.

And, in a telephone interview later, he gave a brief indication of the way the White House staff is closely monitoring network news programs for Nixon.

Buchanan, asked to cite other news reports that have angered the President, said, "Take a look at Monday night (Oct. 22) of the past week."

It was the first working day after the weekend uproar over Nixon's dismissal of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who resigned rather than carry out Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

"There were two defenses (of Nixon) — Anne Armstrong and Sen. Gurney," he said, referring to the presidential counselor and the GOP senator from Florida, respectively.

"And on each of the three networks they had Mr. Bork (Acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork), but in two of those Mr. Bork was portrayed in a negative light.

"I think this type of thing would argue the case for distortion, okay?"

Buchanan, who didn't identify the two networks he said adversely reported Bork's story, was asked to list the 19 separate attacks he said had been made on Nixon during the news shows.

"You get three by Meany on all three networks, Inouye was on all three networks," he said, referring to reports from the AFL-CIO's convention that day in Miami Beach, Fla.

At that convention, AFL-CIO President George Meany called on Nixon to resign or be impeached. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, also speaking at the convention, urged Nixon to resign.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., who said he'd introduce a resolution calling for Nixon's impeachment was on some reports, Buchanan said.

"You can review those (program transcripts) yourself and count 'em up," Buchanan added.

Next, if events and space permit, we'll try to describe what transcripts of the Oct. 22 news shows contain.

Buchanan was asked a final question:

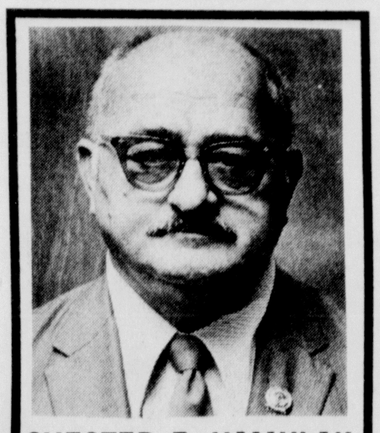

Is the President angered at the reports per se, or is he angry at the commentary — clearly labeled as such by the networks — on the evening news shows?

"Why don't you raise that at the next press conference?" Buchanan said.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

THURSDAY, NOV. 1, 1973

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Curb a tendency toward pessimism. With good judgement and a bit of finesse you can make your outlook brighter, expand possibilities.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
You may now have the responsibility of handling another's financial affairs. Do so with care. Dependence upon you is great.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
Make decisions only after careful investigation. Expend energies to elicit lasting results. Avoid the "quick" return" angle: It is fraught with traps.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
You are now at a point where you can assert your views and succeed at pioneering efforts. Many are receptive and gain is indicated.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Don't try to buck present trends or you may find yourself at unhappy variance with associates who could be helpful. Scrutinize all offerings carefully.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Your goal now should be to capture the attention of those in a position to help further your aims, so polish up your wares — and your personality.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Your stars warn against undue exertion, scattering energies, unwisely attempting to handle the unfamiliar. In general, stick to routine.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Avoid extremes. There's a tendency now to make mountains of molehills, to lose control of temper, emotions generally. Forewarned is forearmed!

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Be careful in handling personal affairs; there may be some tricky areas, some kinks to iron out before taking action. Some conflict of interests indicated.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
A fine project begun recently will bog down unless you keep it in mind, mull over details, plan a tighter fitting of its "jigsaw" pieces.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Do not let the unfamiliar keep you from accepting it on that basis alone. Where you carefully check for flaws and find none, invite the innovation.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
Your artistry and creativity stimulated. A time to "dress up" old ideas and methods and make them more practical

YOU BORN TODAY are a quick-thinking and quick-acting individual, self-assured and unusually self-reliant. Your Sign, Scorpio, has given the world many highly original people — brilliant scientists, clever inventors, outstanding writers and musicians. You are creative, imaginative and magnetic of personality but you MUST curb tendencies toward obstinacy and overaggressiveness or you may alienate many who could prove invaluable allies along your way. The law and medicine are excellent fields for your talents, and, in the latter, you could become an excellent diagnostician or internist.

Garman warns against voter apathy

Rotary speaker stresses importance of Issue 1

Unless state tax laws are revised by the approval of Issue No. 1 by the voters at the polls next Tuesday, many farmers within relatively close proximity of cities and towns will be taxed out of business, Walter Garman, organization director for Farm Bureaus in Fayette, Greene and Clinton counties, told the Rotary Club meeting Tuesday noon.

In a nutshell, Issue No. 1, provides that farm land be taxed on its value as farm land and not on the basis of its potential value for commercial purposes.

Garman cited one example in Montgomery County where the tax on a farm under cultivation near a shopping center development at Dayton skyrocketed from $3,000 to $36,000 a year.

He also pointed out that under present laws, a tax based on the potential commercial use of land could take it out of agricultural production at a time when the world need for food is increasing steadily.

He noted, as another example, that in Franklin County, there are 450 farms in agricultural production and that many of them within close proximity of rapidly expanding Columbus are in danger of being appraised on their potential commercial value and taxed out of production.

GARMAN, who also presented a film strip and taped commentary, declared that more and more farms are being taken out of production by industrial and business expansion of cities, residential developments, highways and the like.

He said there is no apparent opposition to Issue No. 1 in the General Assembly but that voter apathy could lead to its defeat at the election. The principal threat to approval of Issue No. 1, he said, probably is in the cities where voters do not understand the problems involved or the intent of the proposal.

The program was arranged by Jack Brennan and the meeting was conducted by Vice President Paul Crosby.

Jack Cartwright, of Pennington Bread, Inc., was inducted as a new member of the club.

Student guests were Mark Essman, of WSHS, and Tom Payton, of MTHS.

Jim Wilson was the guest of Carl Elberfeld, and Chuck Winkle was with his father, George Winkle.

Visiting Rotarians were Darrell French, of Wilmington, Dr. Robert Smith, of Circleville, and Art Dick, of Mount Sterling. Garman also is a member of the Wilmington Rotary Club.

Glenn says reform bill 'good start'

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP)— Former astronaut John H. Glenn called administration proposals for state campaign finance reforms a "good start" Tuesday, but said the state could go further.

Glenn called for measures to encourage "the small giver" and to limit the amount an individual could contribute in a year.

The New Concord Democrat suggested a limit from $100 to $500.

A constitutional amendment permitting donors to subtract campaign contributions from their income tax might make small givers consider a donation an investment in their political system, he said.

Such an amendment could take campaign financing out of the hands of big business and special interests, he said.

Speaking at a news conference following the third annual meeting of Henry County Democrats, Glenn said he would not be discouraged if the governor appointed Cleveland industrialist Howard M. Metzenbaum to the U.S. Senate seat possibly being vacated early by William B. Saxbe to take an appointed governmental post.

He told reporters they could expect an announcement on his candidacy for the U.S. Senate "later this year."

Glenn lost the Democratic nomination for the Senate to Metzenbaum in 1970.

Earlier this fall, Glenn charged publicly that Gov. John J. Gilligan and top state Democrats pressured him to accept the nomination for lieutenant governor to clear the Senate race for Metzenbaum.

CLASSROOM EXERCISE — Specialist Dennis D. Brown instructs fellow peace officers in keeping the peace under the drastically revised Ohio Criminal Code.

Peace officers study new Code

"Cop," "pig," "fuzz," "the man," "the law," are all slang expressions you should be hearing for the last time.

Under the new revisions of the Ohio Criminal Code, Section 109.71 all law enforcement agents are defined as "peace officers."

The new Criminal Code was adopted by the Ohio General Assembly in December, 1972 and is to become effective on Jan. 1, 1974. There have been no major changes in the code since 1815.

The 21,000 law officers throughout the State of Ohio being trained in the new Criminal Code are doing so to retain their standing. The Code also states that any law enforcement agent without the 40-hour training course holds an invalid certificate and ceases to be "A Peace Officer."

The Code has been met with mixed emotions. The older peace officers have admitted experiencing difficulty in making all the new changes, while the younger peace officers are happy with the much shortened, more simplified Code.

The two groups hit upon common ground when it comes to discussing the consistency in law practice the Code will bring about.

SINCE EVERYONE involved in law in the state of Ohio is required to use the same training manual, there will be a far narrower margin of individual interpretation of the law.

A judge, lawyer, or peace officer is more likely to interpret, enforce, punish or pardon in the same manner his fellow law enforcing agents in the other areas of the state are doing.

This is summed up by the message the attorney general of Ohio, William J. Brown, wrote in the preface of the training manuel.

"Law enforcement rests on the loyalty and dedication of officers who not only believe and trust in the law, but also understand it. That is why this manuel has been prepared to ensure that all peace officers throughout the State of Ohio receive a consistent program of quality education in the Criminal Code."

The four peace officers in Washington C.H. qualified to teach the revised code are: Chief of Police Rodman Scott, Specialists Dennis D. Brown and Larry M. Hott, of the Police Department, and Sheriff Don Thompson, of the Sheriff's Department.

These men became qualified by taking a 16-hour crash course, divided into two 8-hour sessions, taught in Columbus.

Brown and Hott are conducting the course on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. til 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The men involved are taking the course on their off-duty time. The 40-hour course should end in about four weeks, and then another course will start immediately for those who had to work while the others were being trained.

In the communist society on mainland China, there is no tipping. According to Emmett Dedmon, author of "China Journal," published by Rand McNally, "It is considered an insult if you offer a tip." There is no bargaining, either. All prices are fixed by the state.

Foreign sources rip Cox firing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox drew a barrage of criticism in the foreign press ranging in intensity from a chiding "ill-conceived step" in the Japan Times to "democracy vomits" in the London Daily Mirror.

"President Nixon committed an ill-conceived step whose consequences he presumably had not foreseen," said the Japan Times. "It is not surprising, therefore, that an increasing number of U.S. legislators regard impeachment ... as the only avenue left to restrain President Nixon."

The Asahi Shimbun said Nixon's "strongarm tactic is lamentable."

The London Daily Mirror, under a large headline reading "The Late Mr. Nixon," said "the only question that remains is will Richard Nixon display one single spark of decency and remove himself?"

The tabloid devoted the bulk of its first two pages to a fiery condemnation of Nixon. "Whatever the problems of getting rid of their president, no democracy can live on this surfeit of trickery, double-dealing and abrasive contempt for the rule of law he pretends in public speeches to uphold," it said.

The Times of London declared that "the concept of an extra-legal presidency has no place in the American Constitution."

Hong Kong's English-language South China Morning Post called Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal a "shabby performance." But the newspaper found that the crisis "has strangely illumined the strength of the American scheme of government."

The suspicion that Nixon's domestic havoc was linked to the U.S. troop alert last week was cited by several British editors.

"Even here Watergate insinuates its all-corrupting doubt," said the Daily Mail of the U.S. Soviet confrontation.

But the Daily Telegraph said the "public campaign against Nixon overreached itself" in the suggestion that the alert was staged.

The Times called the notion that the confrontation was concocted "a sad commentary on the situation in Washington and the standing of the administration."

Salt water has leached from the soil into the Salton Sea and inadequate outlets make the "sea" waters more briny than the ocean.

Justice Department faces long twilight

BY MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raw from the wounds of Watergate, the Justice Department is putting on a brave face and turning inward to mend.

It was to have been the show piece for a law and order President. It became a house beset by one morale-shattering upheaval after another.

As the scandal unfolded with the spring, one attorney general was accused of crimes and other standard bearers were accused of impropriety. The mood was glum.

President Nixon turned then to Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus, two administration men who stood untouched and generally regarded as honorable, truthful, upright. They were sent as the rescuers to convince a doubting public that Justice, too, housed those virtues.

"There was a ferment of ideas, an enthusiasm they generated," an associate recalls now.

With Richardson as attorney general and Ruckelshaus as his deputy, debate bounced incessantly around the burnished walnut conference table. Memos flew like wildfire.

Gone were the days of John N. Mitchell, Nixon's first attorney general, a man now accused of violating the law he was supposed to enforce.

Gone were the 10 months of Richard Kleindienst, a man who resigned as the scandal lapped close to him.

And gone now are Richardson and Ruckelshaus, who promised justice devoid of politics, promised a Watergate investigation free of outside pressure, and quit as the ultimate act to keep the vow.

Richardson made it his mission to restore public confidence in the Justice Department in a campaign of speeches backed up step by step with action. There were indications he was succeeding.

There were even stronger indications that he had cheered disheartened employes languishing for a champion.

Ten days ago, cheer abruptly turned to despair. Ranking officials considered resigning but kept their agony to themselves.

"Where do we go from here? I don't know. No one knows. It's too soon," mourned a division head.

As the week wore on, ranking officials agreed to stay in answer to urgent pleas from Solicitor General Robert H. Bork who became acting attorney general and assumed responsibilities his academic training left him ill-prepared to handle.

With the Watergate case dominating his attention, he urged department officials to carry on as they could have under Richardson.

The uncertainty of a caretaker chief now is compounded by Bork's avowed position on the restructured Watergate investigation and the special prosecutor he is soon to appoint.

Just as Richardson did with the first prosecutor, Bork says he will tolerate no interference with the investigation and the man running it. As did Richardson he suggests he would resign rather than compromise the probe.

If Bork avoids a confrontation forcing him to quit, he could remain for months as acting attorney general. The President seems unlikely to nominate a successor, subject to Senate confirmation, until smoother sailing is in sight on Capitol Hill.

In view of the long uncertain months ahead, Justice Department officials were left guessing about the future of Richardson's pet projects.

Some undoubtedly will collapse, but Richardson himself soon will write Bork urging him to press forward with proposals key to the depoliticizing effort.

Personal advisers to Richardson and Ruckelshaus have agreed to stay at the department long enough to wrap up details of those projects and ease the transition.

Department sources say that one of the most important projects — a top to bottom review of the FBI — probably will continue but may not be carried as far as Richardson and Ruckelshaus wished.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has cooperated with the internal review, but has never pushed it.

Richardson's departure also cast doubt on the fate of legislation he intended to propose to Congress to guard computer files maintained by the FBI and other government agencies from outside snoopers.

The proposal, designed to protect individual rights to privacy, has been circulated to other government agencies for comment and would have been sent to Congress within a few months. Sources said the White House so far has taken no position on it.

Richardson had planned to announce last week a tentative proposal for removing the political endorsements traditionally required for the appointment of federal judges.

He plans to make the same proposal as a private citizen, but whether the administration now will adopt it remains uncertain.

Richardson had been on the verge of creating an inspector general's office as a Justice Department watchdog to investigate accusations of wrongdoing on the part of department employes.

He was almost ready to issue regulations imposing new restrictions on government wiretaps.

Richardson had strengthened the attorney general's authority over U.S. attorneys and at the same time, appointed 16 of them to an advisory committee to give them a larger policymaking voice.

A knowledgeable source predicted that the attorneys, faced with uncertain leadership in Washington, will reassert control over their private baronies.

Two days before his resignation, Richardson issued regulations overhauling the department's management structure. Much of that system will operate as Richardson intended, said officials involved in setting it up.

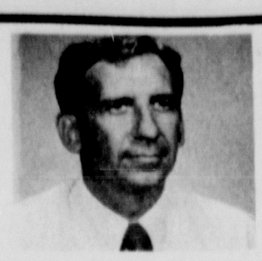

But one key element — an "executive secretariat" designed as a final filter on research papers going to the attorney general — may fall by the wayside.

The management specialist Richardson had chosen to set up the office had not yet joined the department and probably won't now.

Richardson considered orderly management an essential tool for his long-range goal of bringing coordinated planning to separate parts of the criminal justice system.

Chest campaign slowing down?

The Community Chest campaign appears to be slowing down, to the deep concern of the board of directors and the campaigners themselves, after it has reached 58 per cent of the $27,000 goal.

Only approximately $1,200 in cash and pledges was added over the long weekend to bring the total up to $15,700 — last Thursday it was $14,500.

The city residential canvass has been virtually completed, President Lee Lynch said last week.

The solicitation in the rural area of the county is being conducted by mail and no reports from that are expected to come in for several days, Jim Dunn, the secretary-treasurer, said.

Indications are that the house-to-house campaign in Bloomingburg and Jeffersonville are progressing.

THE LAG is among the employe and business groups, the reports show. These are the keystones of the campaign. Of the 44 employe groups, reports by 24 are still incomplete. And of the 300 businesses, industries and professional groups, 100 remain to be heard from.

Pledge and receipt cards have been left with the chairmen of these various groups, but the follow-through has been slow.

DUNN SAID if anyone who has been missed wants to make a contribution, a check may be mailed to the Community Chest, Post Office Box 598.

Lynch said today he is still confident the $27,000 goal will be reached by the Nov. 15 target date.

Programs of 10 local organizations will be supported next summer by the Community Chest.

Chicago 7 contempt case brings call for dismissal

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys for the seven defendants and two lawyers in the Chicago riot conspiracy case say the government should drop contempt charges against them or put Judge Julius J. Hoffman and the prosecutors on trial as well.

At the conclusion of the government's case in a contempt trial Tuesday, attorneys for the seven defendants and their lawyers, William M. Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass, said the only evidence — the 23,000-page conspiracy trial transcript — was insufficient to prove contempt.

Defense attorney Morton Stavis of New York City argued that disorders during the 4½month trial before Hoffman in U.S. District Court stemmed from the judge's conduct at the outset of the case.

Hoffman ordered four defense lawyers jailed the first day of the trial and later had an eighth defendant, Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, gagged in the courtroom. Seale's case later was severed from those of the other seven.

Stavis accused Hoffman of setting the tone for the often chaotic trial with "a steady erosion of the standards of conduct through a pattern of insults, harassment and the most petty kind of unfairness."

At the end of the trial in February 1970, Hoffman accused the seven defendants and two lawyers of committing 175 acts of contempt. All but 52 of the citations have been dropped.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the citations and returned the charges to District Court for trial. The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge Edward T. Gignoux of Portland, Maine.

Weinglass told Gignoux Tuesday that unless Hoffman and the prosecutors, former U.S. District. Atty. Thomas A. Foran and his assistant, Richard Schultz, are also charged with contempt, the current trial will violate the fairness doctrine of the equal protection section of the U.S. Constitution.

Weinglass argued that Hoffman, Foran and Schultz have in effect already been judged guilty of contempt by the appeals court. In sending the case back to the District Court, the appeals panel criticized all three.

Captured Soviet Missile gets once-over by U.S.,-Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to share in the knowledge gained by Israel in its capture of an advanced Soviet-built missile unit.

U.S. government sources report the Israeli army captured intact an SA6 antiaircraft system, which inflicted heavy losses on Israel's U.S.-equipped air force in its first combat test during the latest Middle East war.

U.S. military officials are anxious to learn in detail how the SA6 operates, and how to foil it, because American planes may face it in any confrontation with the Soviet Union. It is believed U.S. experts may work with Israeli technicians in studying the system.

The SA6, used in combination with other Soviet-made antiaircraft weapons, was credited with knocking down roughly half of the more than 100 airplanes Israel lost in fighting the Egyptians and Syrians.

Most of the downed planes were U.S.-manufactured F4 Phantom and A4 Skyhawk jets.

The deadly accuracy of the Soviet-built weapons alarmed both Israeli and U.S. military officials because they lacked the right electronic equipment to jam or confuse the SA6's sophisticated guidance system.

Experts say the SA6, mounted on tank tracks, is very mobile and is most effective against planes attacking at low level. Many of the Israeli planes destroyed by the SA6 were flying low to strike at Egyptian and Syrian tanks.

U.S. sources said an SA6 missile battery, its radar and guidance equipment were seized intact by Israeli troops after they thrust across the Suez Canal into Egypt on Oct. 16.

The Israeli command spoke of destroying and overruning Egyptian missile and artillery positions, but the capture of the SA6 was kept secret.

Winter wheat planting up, but still behind schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fall planting of winter wheat for harvest next year gained sharply in Kansas and other plains areas by last weekend, but the crop was still behind normal schedule, the Agriculture Department says.

"By Oct. 28, winter wheat seeding had advanced to 80 per cent complete in Kansas, 92 per cent complete in Oklahoma, 91 per cent in Texas and about 100 per cent complete in Colorado," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather bulletin.

Normally, winter wheat planting is 95 per cent done in Kansas by Oct. 28, the report said. In many areas heavy rain delayed planting for weeks or washed out many acres which already had been seeded.

That has prevented early growth of wheat in much of the plains area where the crop normally provides valuable grazing for livestock and helps assure survival against extreme cold during winter months.

Over-all, last week's sunny weather helped the fall harvest of corn and soybeans over a wide area. In the Corn Belt, the corn harvest was 38 per cent complete by Oct. 28, ahead of the 32 per cent rate last year. Nationally, about 43 per cent of the crop was picked.

But the western area of the Corn Belt still had harvest hangups, the report said. The Iowa crop was about 26 per cent harvested, compared with 29 per cent in 1972 and the historical average of 38 per cent complete by Oct. 28.

The soybean crop nationally was about 64 per cent harvested by Oct. 28, compared with 56 per cent last year, the report said.

Set refurbishing of 'Foster Spring'

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The "Foster Spring," which has provided free drinking water to travelers along Foster-Mainville Road for more than a century, will be refurbished by the Warren County Commission.

Health authorities closed the spring after making tests of the water last week. The spring is located on the Girl Scouts Camp Butterworth property.

Amendment backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to streamline Ohio's system of courts has been endorsed by the state Democratic party.

But state Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said Tuesday he objects to a provision that would permit judges to receive pay raises while in office.

State board frees funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Controlling Board has released $4.5 million to the Ohio Department of Health to treat indigent persons injured in automobile accidents.

The program previously was handled by the state Department of Highway Safety.

The board, the watchdog of state money, also released Monday $6.9 million for Columbus to build a sewage treatment plant on the city's south side, and authorized expenditure of:

—$492,375 for a library at Youngstown State University.

—$112,000 for alterations on the old student union building at Kent State University.

—$428,000 for a library and health science education building at the Medical College of Ohio in Toledo.

—$200,000 for police and fire protection at Kent, Bowling Green, Athens and Oxford.

—$419,362 for the purchase of 103 school buses.

Small county officials wary of 'Issue 3' on state ballot

By GEORGE MALEK

The "monster" hidden in the shadows of Issue 3, has begun to raise its head in the minds of judges in thinly-populated counties throughout Ohio.

The Carroll County Bar Association recently released a letter stating their objectives to Issue 3, and similar objectives have been expressed by judges in Fayette and Highland counties.

Issue 3 on the November ballot is titled a "proposed constitutional amendment relative to administration and organization of the courts of Ohio." It will appear on the ballot in the following form:

This amendment:

1. Allows two or more counties to be combined to form common pleas court districts with judges elected from such districts.

2. Allows creation of divisions of common pleas courts with judges elected to specific divisions.

3. Includes municipal and county court judges within the provisions of the modern courts amendment adopted in 1968. This will enable judges of these courts to receive in-term pay increases. They would also be subject to the same rules which apply to judges of other courts. These rules were adopted in the 1968 modern courts amendment.

CONTAINED within this single paragraph are four major changes in Ohio law.

Most widely publicized is the point that its passage would enable municipal court judges to receive pay raises during their term of office.

Included in the amendment is the provision that municipal judges be barred from engaging in the private practice of law during their term on the bench.

There also is a twofold provision for the restructuring of the common pleas court system. Passage would allow creation of divisions of the common pleas courts with judges elected to specific divisions, and would allow two or more counties to be combined to form common pleas court districts. The district would then elect a judge to preside over the entire district.

THE OBJECTION from Southern Ohio judges centers on this last provision.

While the voters are being told of the injustice of freezing a man's salary for six years, the districting of thinly-populated counties has been lost in the shuffle.

Fayette County Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman said that passage of the measure "could be the first step in losing the right to local government."

Probate-Juvenile Judge Rollo M. Marchant said that, "It may have been thrown in merely to cloud the issue since the pay raise was defeated at the polls once before," but it could have major repercussions for residents of the smaller counties.

Both judges feel that if two counties were combined to form a district, a judge running from the larger county would have a decided advantage and once in office would be more intent on satisfying the needs of the larger county since it offers greater potential for his re-election.

"We have had district courts of appeals for many years," said Judge Coffman, "but there has never been a Fayette County judge on the bench."

FAYETTE COUNTY is the smallest county in population in the 10-county second district of the court of appeals. At present two of the three appeals judges in the district are from Dayton, which has nearly twice the population of the largest county in the district outside Montgomery County where the city is located.

Montgomery County as a whole has more voters than the other nine counties combined.

Municipal Judge James Hapner in Hillsboro, who stands to gain $2000 per year if the issue passes, is opposed to the change for the same reasons. "We've never had a court of appeals judge from this county." "They'll all be from the bigger counties, and they'll spend all their time serving the bigger counties."

Highland County Probate-Juvenile Judge Richard L. Davis echoed similar sentiments. Courts in counties the size of Highland (approximately the same as Fayette) "are directly available to the people, he said, they offer quick hearings and uncrowded conditions. He added that combining the courts into district would create a backlog of cases, and parties could wait two or three years to have a case heard.

JUDGE COFFMAN said that when the courts recognized the backlog of cases a few years ago and demanded that steps be taken to ease the situation, Fayette County had a clean docket. There was no backlog here. In fact, Judge Coffman has been asked to sit on the bench in Dayton at times in order to help Montgomery County to catch up.

The areas unable to handle their cases are the large counties. Combining smaller counties would help to create the overload which we have thus far avoided, according to her.

Judge Coffman favors the restriction that municipal judges be barred from outside sources of income. That would alleviate any possible conflict of interest.

This stipulation, area judges feel, could only be presented as part of a package similar to Issue 3 which allowed for salary increases.

Each wished that the districting of counties had been offered as a separate issue from the pay increases and conflict of interest safeguards.

But with the possibility of losing local control over the common pleas court system lurking in the shadows of the current proposal, they felt obligated to oppose the issue.

Municipal Court Judge M. Winegardner currently is on vacation and was unavailable for comment.

Recycling of aluminum big success

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Aluminum recycling programs are "growing by leaps and bounds" and may make the metal one of the cheapest to use, Reynolds Metals Co. officials say.

Richard N. Bolling, manager of Reynolds' recycling division, said Monday his company's recycling activity now produces as much aluminum as if the company had built a new potline, a row of electrolytic cells used in the production of the metal.

Speaking at a meeting on aluminum recycling, he said the process costs but a fraction of a potline and uses only 5 per cent of the power required to produce an equal amount of primary aluminum.

The aluminum industry has been under fire for its high electrical consumption as the Northwest enters the winter with power reservoirs far below normal.

T.E. Feagin, director of marketing for the division, said that while it takes as much as three times the electricity to make a pound of aluminum as it does to make a pound of steel, it takes about a third less of the lightweight metal to make one can.

Bolling and Feagin said that although the aluminum recycling effort was instituted under pressure by environmentalists concerned with can litter, pilot programs found that environmental concern alone wasn't enough to get public cooperation.

They said the program took off when the industry offered 10 cents a pound for used cans.

They said two major Seattle breweries recycled more than two million pounds of aluminum during September.

SCOL title chunk looms for Lions

Overflow crowd expected for 13th backyard brawl

BY MIKE FLYNN

The 13th anniversary of the mythical Fayette County football championship series will be epitomized Friday night and this year's renewal of the annual grudge match has been destined to have a special meaning all along.

An overflow crowd is expected to be on hand when top-ranked Washington comes calling at Miami Trace for the 8 p.m. headbanger in which so much will be at stake.

THE ANNUAL backyard brawl, as in the past, will be crucial for both teams, however, at least a chunk of the 46th South Central Ohio League championship will be hanging in balance for the title-hungry Washington C.H. team.

Unbeaten Washington, bidding for its finest football campaign in 21 years, can discard a perennial SCOL bridesmaid label and almost wrap the ribbons around its first league loving cup in five years with a win over arch-rival Miami Trace.

The high-flying Blue Lions, coasting along with an unblemished 4-0 SCOL chart and alone atop the league heap, will be risking a glittering 8-0 all-games record when veteran head coach Maurice Pfeifer tries to out-guess Miami Trace head coach Fred Zechman in the intra-county rivalry.

Miami Trace, riddled by injuries in recent weeks, has been on a rather upsy-downsy pattern this fall.

The Panthers, 5-3 overall, watched their chances for a second undisputed SCOL title in three years vanish in a nerve-racking 19-6 loss to always-tough Wilmington two weeks ago. But, the Panthers have beaten Hillsboro, defending champion Circleville and Greenfield to carry a neat 3-1 league tab into Friday's important showdown. The Panthers are tightly bunched with Wilmington for the league's second place perch.

Washington C.H., ranked atop both state wire service polls, has won six games and lost five since the natural rivalry was inaugurated during the season. The 1962 game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Miami Trace, however, holds a two-game winning spree in the series and the old "homefield hex" favors the Panthers heading into the SCOL's feature attraction. Washington C.H. has managed only one win in five outings on Miami Trace soil.

And until last season when Miami Trace rolled to a 40-20 win, the Panthers had not posted a victory over Washington C.H. in six starts at Gardner Park Stadium.

Defense is Washington C.H.'s strong suit. The persistent Blue Lion defenders fired seven consecutive shutouts before allowing Circleville to score a harmless third quarter touchdown in last week's 20-7 win.

The stubborn Lion defense,led byAll-Ohio prospects John Sanderson and Garth Cox, had piled up 30 straight scoreless quarters this season and 35 over a two-year span before Circleville ruined the incredible string last week.

A new school record looms for the Lion defensive secondary Friday. The Lions have picked off 17 enemy passes so far and need only one more interception to shatter a record set by the legendary 1952 team.

The potent Lion offense, which has stacked up a staggering 278-7 scoring advantage thus far, is sparked by clever-stepping tailback Chuck Wilson, the SCOL's leading scorer with 134 points. Wilson has rushed for 1,100 yards in 176 carries.

Alan Coppock has engineered the Lion offense by completing 59.4 per cent of his passes for 642 yards. Washington C.H. also features slick Mark Johnson, who has grabbed 20 passes for 399 yards, and pile-driving fullback Larry Dumford.

THE MIAMI Trace offense has been bouyed by Tom Riley, a durable 165-pound junior quarterback, who ranks fourth in the SCOL scoring statistics with 53 points in eight games. Sophomore Bruce Ervin displayed some pin-point passing in Miami Trace's win over Greenfield last week, but the young signal-caller suffered an injury in a reserve game on Saturday

Riley is a double-threat artist, especially on the Panthers' dangerous option play, and Zechman also has hard-running senior fullback Doug Ford, the team's top ground gainer, and shifty junior halfback Jeff Sagar to get the ground game purring properly. Junior Jay Mossbarger, a rugged double duty ace, is perhaps Riley's favorite target from his tight end position. Mossbarger ranks among the top 10 league scorers with 34 points.

Big John Woodrow and hard-working sophomore Gregg Cobb pace a rangy group of Panther defenders. The Panther defense has forced shutouts against Columbus Ready and Hillsboro.

MT's Players of Week

Two juniors and a sophomore have been chosen as Miami Trace's Players of the Week for their performances in last Friday's 20-14 win over Greenfield McClain.

Top offensive honors went to junior tight end Jay Mossbarger. Tied for the top spot on the defense were junior Jim Glass and sophomore Tony Carter. All three players were selected by the Miami Trace coaching staff, after viewing the game films, in the Record-Herald's eighth weekly poll.

Mossbarger, a strong tight-end, pulled in two passes for 30 yards with one of the receptions giving the Panthers four tries to cross the goal from only eight yards out.

But Mossbarger's main contribution came on his fine execution of blocking assignments. Continually, the talented end leveled Greenfield players that were in persuit of Panther runners.

FINISHING second for top offensive honors were Jeff Smithson, who pulled in two passes for 60 yards, and Tom Reisinger, at center.

Tied for the top spot on the defensive team were junior Jim Glass, picked for the second week in a row, and sophomore Tony Carter, who filled in for the injured Jeff Long.

Glass, a defensive safety, accounted for eight individual tackles and had help on five other sacks, truly an outstanding individual performance.

Carter, who hasn't had much varsity experience, filled in for Long at a defensive linebacker spot came up with three solo tackles and 12 assists. Headcoach Fred Zechman reported that the coaching staff was pleased with Carter's play.

The Panthers' "big lick" awards went to Mossbarger for an offensive block on one of Greenfield's defensive linemen and to Jim Pendergraft for a jarring tackle on a kickoff.

Coming in just one defensive point behind Glass and Carter was Donald Dunton for his fine play in the middle.

The Panthers are tied with Wilmington for second place in the South Central Ohio League and meet the top team, Washington C.H., Friday at Miami Trace Field.

Cowboys win crown in MT junior loop

In the Miami Trace junior high league action Tuesday evening the Bengals topped the Rams 20-14 and the Cowboys finished of the Browns 32-6.

The Bengals again got a good performance from Craig Dement as he ran for one touchdown and connected with Rick Bobbitt for another score. David Creamer ran for the other six-pointer and David Glass put two-points on the board with the conversion.

The Rams scoring came from C.J. Nicley as the talented runner scored twice from better than 10 yards. Tom Tarbutton ran the extras on one of the touchdowns.

In the second game of the night the Cowboys kept their perfect season alive with a victory over the Browns.

Art Schlichter again led in the scoring department. Schlichter collected three touchdowns by running and tossed a 17-yard pass to Joe Garland for another score. Dean Farris ran for the other touchdown. Schlichter also ran for one of the conversions.

The Browns only score came on a one-yard run by Scott Martin in the fourth quarter.

The games Tuesday evening ended the season for the four teams. The Cowboys finished on top with a perfect 5-0 record with the Bengals coming in second with a 3-2 mark. In third place was the Browns with a record of 2-3 and on the bottom was the Rams at 0-5.

OSU team tremendous, Warmath says

CHICAGO (AP) — Most Big Ten Conference coaches shy away from making comparisons of top-ranked Ohio State and No. 4 Michigan, who appear headed for another showdown for the league title and Rose Bowl bid.

But former Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath who now does color commentary on Gopher broadcasts, says, "The day we played them it was the best Ohio State team I have ever seen that early in the season. I just don't know how good they really are."

Ohio State trounced Minnesota 56-7 early in the season and Michigan beat the Gophers 34-7 last Saturday.

Warmath indicated as to how good Ohio State might be is the fact that, "their kicking game was great and sharp for an opener. Usually a team's kicking game doesn't sharpen up until later in the season. There are too many other things to work on.

"It's unusual for Ohio State to be that sharp early in the season. Woody (Coach Woody Hayes) usually brings his team along slowly but I never saw a sharper team.

"They're No. 1 and I'd like to know what team can rank ahead of them.

"Their quarterback, Cornelius Greene, is quicker with his feet than a drummer boy playing 'Dixie.'

Say letdown cost Browns

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns wide receiver Frank Pitts said the Browns let down Sunday and that was the big factor in their inability to defeat the San Diego Charters.

The Browns were 13-point favorites but only managed to even the Chargers at 16-16 on a rain-soaked field.

"We weren't up for the game," Pitts said. "It's hard to get up for a game with a team that has a record like San Diego."

The Chargers entered the game with a 1-5 showing.

"We went out there with the attitude we would win, but we prolonged things and got off to a slow start," Pitts said.

Pitts came to the Browns during the 1971 preseason from the Kansas City Chiefs and has been a starter since. During his first two years with Cleveland he collected 63 receptions for 1,107 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Grid knowledge not necessary for foreign-born prep kicker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A foreign-born Steubenville Central Catholic High School kicker doesn't understand football. But try convincing his opponents.

Vince D'Ortenzio, who came to the United States from Italy a year ago, booted a school record 43-yard field goal as the Steubenville team edged Louisville Aquinas 10-7 last week.

D'Ortenzio has kicked three field goals in four tries in his first brush with the American sport, even if he knows little about it.

Around Ohio: Williamsburg of Clermont County has a school record 26 straight victories. Some other winning streaks—Dayton Jefferson 37, Warren Western Reserve 25, Cincinnati Reading 23, Gahanna 21.

Springfield South dedicated its homecoming game to Tony January, who died in University of Toledo football practice in September. South produced its second straight victory 24-0 over Columbus North, the first time the Wildcats had won two in a row since 1971.

East Canton gambled and lost against Tuscarawas Valley last week. East Canton went for the winning two-point conversion in the last minute, failed and lost its first 1973 game 14-13.

The Miami Valley League, one of Ohio's oldest, disbands after this season. Sidney and Piqua are charter members of the league formed in 1928. Other current teams included Springfield Catholic, Bellefontaine, Lima Catholic and Lima Shawnee.

Willoughby South's 32-8 decision over intersystem rival Eastlake North last week was South's first in 13 seasons over north. South is now 8-0 for the season.

Barberton's Bob Robertson has rushed for 597 yards in the last two games. He had 314 yards in 20 rushes against Lorain Southview last week and has 1,296 yards for 1973.

Salem and East Liverpool, Columbiana County's only Class AAA teams, played for the 54th time last week, East Liverpool prevailing 7-6.

Chillicothe snapped a 17-game Central Ohio League losing spell, trimming Marietta, 24-8.

Yellow Springs started varsity football last year and is seeking an unbeaten campaign. Bob Hartley's team is 8-0-0. Jefferson's 36 straight victories ties Miamisburg for the longest Dayton area streak in history.

Ashland's Chris Strine rushed for 220 yards in 31 carries against Dover, marking the eighth straight game he's gone over 100 ground yards.

Steve Schmitz of Lakewood St. Edward paces the Greater Cleveland area in scoring with 122 points after rolling up five touchdowns and two extra points against Cleveland Latin.

Ron Stewart's 237 yards for Lancaster in the upset of Newark was a junior rushing mark. It also was the second highest one-game total since Rex Kern in 1966.

Seaver wins Cy Young prize

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver once said he'd be happy to last five years in the majors. Today, he is the owner of a second Cy Young Award as the National League's best pitcher.

"When I first started playing, I told my wife I'd be happy to get five years in the big leagues," the New York Mets right-hander said Tuesday after winning his second Cy Young Award in seven seasons in the majors.

"Now I want to pitch until I'm 35," added the 28-year-old Seaver, who became the fourth pitcher in the 18-year history of the award to win it more than once and the first in either the National or American Leagues to win it without at least 20 victories for the season.

But Seaver, who posted a 19-10 record, and led the NL in strikeouts with 251 and in earned run average, 2.08, won comfortably over reliever Mike Marshall of Montreal and Ron Bryant of San Francisco, the league's only 20-game winner.

In voting by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, Seaver got 10 first-place votes and 70 points after being named on 21 ballots, more than any other candidate.

Marshall, who was 14-11 with 31 saves in 92 appearances for Montreal, got nine first-place votes and 54 points in posting the best Cy Young showing ever for a relief pitcher.

Bryant got three first-place votes and 50 points for his 24-12 performance. However, his ERA was 3.53 and he was the first National League 20-game winner to fail to record a shutout since Willie Sherdel of St. Louis in 1928.

Others receiving support were Jack Billingham of Cincinnati, who got the other two first-place votes and 30 points; Don Sutton of Los Angeles, seven points; Fred Norman of Cincinnati, three points, and Dave Gisuti of Pittsburgh, one point.

"It means an awful lot to me because of the name that's on it and because it goes to one pitcher in the league—and that's it," said Seaver after joining Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, 1963-65-66; Bob Gibson of St. Louis, 1968-70, and Denny McLain of Detroit in the American League, 1968-69, as multiple Cy Young Award winners.

"I really didn't think I'd win it," said Seaver, who also won in 1969 when he had a 25-7 record. "It was really a surprise because of the importance of winning 20 games. But all the other numbers (innings, strikeouts, earned run average, etc.) were there and I'm glad the voters looked at them.

"I think I pitched well enough to win 20," he added. During the regular season — post-season performances do not figure in the voting — Seaver lost 1-0 twice and 2-0, 2-1, 3-2 once each. The American League Cy Young winner will be named Nov. 7.

Tennessee State holds top spot in college grid poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Powerful Tennessee State remained on top and once-mighty Delaware almost tumbled out of the top ten in the Associated Press' weekly College Division football poll.

Tennessee State ran its record to 7-0 with a 21-6 decision over Southern University last Saturday. That was impressive enough to earn 28 of 45 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters Tuesday. Tennessee State collected 874 points.

Delaware, riding a 20-game winning streak two weeks ago, was beaten by Temple 31-8. It was the Blue Hens' second straight loss, against six victories, and virtually ended their hopes for a third consecutive college division national title.

Delaware fell from second in the poll last week down to 10th this week.

Hawaii, 6-0, took over second place after edging Nevada-Las Vegas 31-29. The Rainbows picked up six first-place votes and 775 points.

Western Kentucky jumped from fifth to third on the strength of a 34-7 romp over Morehead State. Western Kentucky, 7-0, collected 635 points and two first-place votes.

Cal Poly-SLO, 6-0 after beating Fresno State 28-14, remained fourth with 529 points and five first-place votes. South Dakota, 7-1, advanced one spot to fifth after beating Augustana, S.D. 28-21.

Louisiana Tech, also 7-1, climbed two places to sixth following a 26-7 victory over Southeastern Louisiana. Wittenberg got two first-place votes and held seventh place after topping Mount Union 35-17 for its seventh straight victory.

North Dakota State, 8-1, moved up two spots to eighth and got one first-place vote after trimming South Dakota State 24-14. Boise State, 6-1, crushed Montana 66-7 and jumped from 11th to ninth. Delaware was 10th.

Completing the top 15 were Elon, Nevada-Las Vegas, Grambling, Carson-Newman and Eastern Michigan. Elon had one first-place vote.

Kings beat St. Louis in hockey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If hockey games were 20 minutes rather than the regulation 60, there'd be some disagreement which 20 should count.

"It was a game that we could have gotten bombed in," said Los Angeles Kings Coach Bob Pulford, whose club was bombarded by 18 shots and two goals in the first period.

"We didn't work that last period," said St. Louis Blues Coach Jean Guy Talbot, whose club was worked over for 13 shots and two goals in the third period. "We can't stop shooting the puck when we get two goals."

The bad periods canceled each other out. That made Juha Widing's second-period goal the difference and gave the Kings a 3-2 victory over the Blues in their National Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Toronto pounded Detroit 7-0 and the New York Rangers and Vancouver Canucks skated to a 3-3 tie.

In the World Hockey Association games, Houston routed Minnesota 6-1; Quebec downed Los Angeles 6-4 and Chicago dumped Winnipeg 4-1.

Bengals eye clash with Cowboys

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Bengals are preparing for their first meeting with the Dallas Cowboys Sunday and especially for Cowboy quarterback, Cincinnati native Roger Staubach.

Both teams have 4-3 records and consider the contest at Dallas a must game for post season playoff contests.

Coach Paul Brown said he wasn't happy facing Dallas after the team's upset last week by the Philadelphia Eagles. He said he expects Dallas to be "up for this game."

Nevertheless, Bengals running back Essex Johnson was expected to take it easy most of the week. "He's very tired," said Brown of the veteran running back.

Rookie Lenvil Elliott is ticketed to replace Johnson for at least part of Sunday's game.

Defensive tackle Mike Reid, who missed last week's game at Pittsburgh because of back spasms, remains a doubtful starter.

Reid wore a back brace Tuesday and has not participated in practice.

Neal Colzie selected best on defense

CHICAGO (AP) — Neal Colzie, Ohio State's game-busting cornerback, has been named Big Ten defensive Player of the Week by the Associated Press for a second successive week.

Although Ohio State smashed Northwestern 60-0, the game was scoreless for the first 19 minutes until Colzie returned a Northwestern punt 45 yards to set up Ohio State's first touchdown.

George Chuvalo wins match with Boswell

BUFFALO (AP)—Canadian heavyweight George Chuvalo scored repeatedly with left-and-right combinations and finally stopped Mike Boswell in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

The Toronto veteran, whose record now goes to 73-16-2, weighed in at 224 and dominated the early action.

Carroll and Osborn called up by Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two pitchers have been called up from the Indianapolis Indians and elevated to the major league roster by the Cincinnati Reds for the 1974 season.

They are right-hander Tom Carroll, 20, and southpaw Pat Osburn, 24.

At the same time, the Reds sent reserve shortstop Ed Crosby, 24, outright to Indianapolis. He hit .216 in 36 games for the Reds after coming from St. Louis in a trade July 27.

Seniors of the week

By BARBARA MARVIN

"I would advise underclassmen to make the most of the short time they are here because graduation comes before you know it."

This advice comes from Kim Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fleming, Rt. 5, Washington C.H.

KIM IS active in National Honor Society, Future Teachers, Folksingers, Country Cousins 4-H Club, and Junior Leadership. She is secretary of the Dramatic Arts Club and co-editor of the MITRA.

Art is Kim's favorite class. Her other subjects are English Composition, Journalism, Drama Literature, American Government, Music Theory, Symphonic Choir, and Sociology.

Kim enjoys reading, writing, and craft-making. Bowling Green State University is Kim's choice as a place of higher education next year. She is interested in library sciences.

Mary Jo Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Thornton, Rt. 4 Washington C.H., is interested in becoming a medical or dental assistant.

Mary Jo attended Buckeye Girl's State this past summer. She is treasurer of Y-Teens, was inducted into National Honor Society last spring, is active in FHA and Symphonic Choir, and she teaches nursery-age children at the Bloomingburg Methodist Church.

Besides taking American Government, Family Living, Office Practice, Symphonic Choir, Sr. Homemaking, and Physiology, Mary Jo also works in the office where she assists the school secretaries. Sr. Homemaking and Physiology are Mary Jo's favorite subjects.

Mary Jo commented, "My years at Miami Trace have been very rewarding and a lot of fun. I've made many friends and will miss them when we graduate, but I am looking forward to graduation and the future. To the underclassmen, I would like to say, 'Make the most of your high school days, as they pass away very quickly'."

JULIE FROST, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frost, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, is very active both inside and out of school. She is a member of the Bloomingburg United Methodist Church, president of Y-Teens, student council member, Future Nurses president, secretary of National Honor Society, Marching and Symphonic Band president, junior leadership member, and belongs to both the Jolly Jills and Blue Ribbon Champs 4-H Clubs.

Julie has not definitely decided upon a career, but she hopes to make a career in the fields of nursing, elementary education, or special education. This year Julie's subjects include American Government, Advanced Math, Senior Choir, Senior Homemaking, Physiology, Speech, and Symphonic Band. Senior Homemaking is Julie's favorite class.

Julie's comment was, "I have really enjoyed my high school years and I know that I'll miss them very much; however, I am looking forward to graduation and college. To my teachers, I extend a special thanks for all their time and patience. Hopefully, my future schooling will be as enjoyable as that at Miami Trace."

FTAmembers make plans for new year

By BARB MARVIN

Students interested in teaching as a vocation met in Rooms-204 recently during activity period to join the Future Teachers of America organization.

Mrs. Theresa Craig, the advisor, met with the students and introduced several persons who informed the new members of the activities and the duties of the club.

Kim Fleming explained that the purpose of FTA was to acquaint students with the teaching job and to give them experience which would be helpful to them in the future.

Greg Detty informed the co-ed group that their most common activity would be substitute teaching which would take place either here at Miami Trace or at one of the elementary schools in the district. Greg also mentioned that the club would be involved in money-making projects so that at the year's end the club could donate two scholarships to deserving members.

The club elected its officers for the year. They are Marlene Braun, president; Barb Marvin, vice-president; Missy Doyle secretary; and Cindy Davis, treasurer.

Mrs. Craig concluded the meeting saying that the club had $160 in its treasury.

The expected choices are, in the Senate, Sens. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake; Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, and Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo.

House conferees, leaders said, probably will be Reps. Richard F. Celeste, D-5 Cleveland; Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, and Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville.

Star gazing party held

By LORA BROOKS

The students of Mrs. Engle's general science classes participated in a star gazing session at the high school recently. Besides supplementing the current study of our solar systems, stars, constellations, and galaxies, the star party helped provide students an opportunity to study stars and planets through a telescope.

Using a current star chart, a flashlight and the four-inch reflector telescope made by the Miami Trace Science Club, the group was able to locate and observe the constellations of Ursa Major, the Big Dipper; Ursa Minor, the Little Dipper; and Polaris, the North Star.

The planets Venus, Jupiter and Mars were also observed. These planets are very easy to locate. Venus is seen in the southwestern sky, and is very bright. High in the sourthern sky is Jupiter. Mars is located in the eastern sky by its red-yellow color.

FHA district rally staged in Hillsboro

By LINDA DUNCAN

The South II District Rally was held at Hillsboro High School recently. Miami Trace, using Winnie-the-Pooh, presented a skit on the state theme "Bother to Care."

It was narrated by Debi Frazeir and presented by Teresa Holloway, Belinda Hammond, Cindy Woods, Teresa Jordan, Diane Burke, Diane Blessing, Cindy Cockerill, Lora Carter, Vickie Parks, Dale Wilson, Twilla Dennis, Janet Van Bibber, Christy Stockwell, Tami Florea, Cindy Wise, Sue Coates, Linda Duncan, and Sheila Gordan, an Honorary Member of the Miami Trace F.H.A.

A skit on degrees was presented by Manchester, and the Washington Junior and Senior High presented a skit on the state projects. The main part of the program for the evening was given by Dr. Glenn Doan and Dr. Barbara Lustgarten. They discussed drugs and venereal disease. They also talked about the free Open Door Clinic in Columbus.

The meeting was opened and closed by President Kathy Polley, of West Union.

Ohio Perspective

New state law in effect

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Custom hot rods with raised rear bumpers or with bumpers removed may get the owner arrested in Ohio beginning today.

This is the effective date of a new law enacted by the 110th General Assembly, banning the removal or alteration of bumper heights more than three inches from the manufacturers' levels.

It carries a $25 fine for the first violation, but provides for a fine of $50 to $500, or 60 days in jail, or both, for a subsequent offense.

Effective Jan. 1, 1974, when the new Ohio code goes into effect, the penalty goes to a $100 fine without any jail sentence. Subsequent offenses call for a maximum of 60 days in jail and a fine of $500.

State highway safety officials pressed for passage of the bill, citing instances in which the jacked up bumpers made cars unstable. They said rear end collisions involving cars with raised bumpers or with no bumpers result more often in fires.

The bill carries an exception for cars operated in areas other than on a public street or highway. It still will be permissible to operate them on race tracks or drag strips, or on other property that does not qualify as being a street or highway.

Another new law, effective today, exempts motion picture projectionists from liability in the showing of films judged as obscene or harmful to minors.

The exemption applies if the projectionist shows that his action is within the scope of his duties as an employe of the theater or its owner or manager, and that he has no managerial responsibilities and no financial interest in the theater other than his wages.

Other new laws effective today, 90 days after being signed by Gov. John J. Gilligan, provide that:

—Liquor may be sold on county fairgrounds during periods when fairs are not in session.

—The state may issue auto license plates for periods longer than a year and requiring the purchase of annual validation stickers, beginning in 1975.

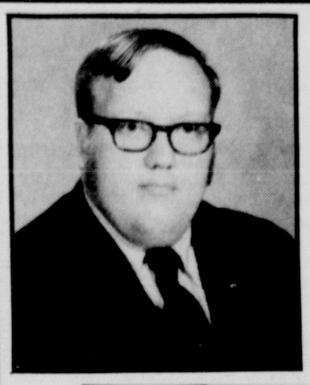

—Persons serving jail time for a misdemeanor or awaiting trial on a felony may cast absentee election ballots.

—Probate courts may destroy certain records after holding them 21 years.

Cincinnati agencies to conserve energy

Archie Bunker is right; there is a difference

NEW YORK (AP)—It seems that Archie Bunker knows a thing or two after all.

The Queens director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has issued a report saying that there is indeed a difference between Jewish, Irish and Italian Americans.

For instance, he reports, in closely knit Italian and Jewish families, "both exhibit strong ties between mother and son," but the Jewish father is usually on the periphery, while the Italian father, embodying male strength, inspires fear."

Joseph Giordana's point is that psychiatrists treating patients of different backgrounds should be aware of ethnic differences.

Most observers agree that during the next 10 years or so, American cities will see increasing electrical brownouts. These are voltage reductions that cause electric motors to labor and burn out, TV pictures to shrink and lights to dim.

Opening lead - queen of spades.

The outcome of many contracts depends on how the defenders' 26 cards are divided. Naturally, in such hands, declarer should shape his play so as to give himself the best mathematical chance for the contract.

Here is a typical case. The opening lead is a spade and three rounds of the suit are played, South ruffing the third. Declarer cashes the K-Q of trumps and the question is what to do next.

If he leads a low diamond to the jack and the finesse succeeds, he makes the contract without further ado. However, the finesse offers only a 50 per cent chance of success and, if it loses, the contract will almost surely founder with it. East returns a diamond and South later loses a club.

Declarer should not adopt this method of play. Instead, he should plot a different course that raises his chances well beyond the 50-50 level.

The line of play that stands out a mile lies in chasing the A-K of clubs and playing a third round of the suit. One possibility is that East will win the third club, in which case South can claim the rest of the tricks, since East will be completely hors de combat.

If West wins the third club, as in the actual hand, he must yield a ruff and discard or return a diamond — and if he has either the queen or ten of diamonds the contract is ice cold.

If he has the queen, he is automatically dead. If he had the ten and leads it, covering with the jack eliminates the diamond loser, while if he plays a low diamond away from the ten, declarer simply follows low from dummy to trap East's queen.

Dizziness Is Not a Disease

Dizziness undoubtedly is one of the most common complaints brought to the attention of doctors.

Besides its distressing aspects, there is a temendous overlay of anxiety.

Many of my readers write to me about a condition that particularly terrifies them, namely, Meniere's disease.

For some strange reason, this condition is wrongly equated with all forms of dizziness.

Dizziness (vertigo) and Meniere's disease are not the same. Meniere's disease is comparatively rare. It was first described about 100 years ago by the doctor whose name is identified with it.

Sudden, severe, incapacitating dizzy spells, associated with noises in the head and progressive loss of hearing, suggest the possibility of Meniere's disease. But before the diagnosis is definitively made, many complex hearing and equilibrium studies are performed.

Dizziness of all kinds is known as "vertigo." A person may feel that he is standing still and objects are turning around him. Or, he may have the feeling that objects are standing still and that he is turning, falling or tumbling without control.

When some patients complain of dizziness they confuse it with headache, lightheadedness, blurred eyesight, faintness, and even a stomach upset.

Doctors are extremely careful in their interpretation of the patient's description of what he considers to be dizziness.

Another frequent misconception about dizziness is the identification of it with some inner ear disturbance. The reason for this is that the center of balance lies deep within the inner ear. Three tiny semi-circular canals contain droplets of fluid which constantly adjust to every change of position of the head.

This sensitive balance mechanism can be disturbed by a wide variety of conditions.

Dizziness is not a disease. Rather is it a symptom of some underlying condition. A partial list follows of the causes of dizziness that must be uncovered for proper diagnosis.

1. Allergy.
2. Toxic effects of coffee, tea, alcohol and tobacco.
3. High or low blood pressure.
4. Motion sickness in a plane, train or car.
5. Side effects of drugs.
6. Ear infections.
7. Eye disorders.
8. Neurological diseases.
9. Sudden, rapid changes of position.
10. Arteriosclerosis.
11. Excessive intake of fluid and salt.
12. Emotional disturbances.
13. Gastric upsets.
14. Extraordinary fatigue.

It is obvious that it is an arduous task to discover the exact cause of dizziness. If the condition persists, it is worth the effort, however, to be freed of the emotional anxiety so often associated with this unpleasant symptom.

Note drop in nation's welfare rolls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's welfare rolls edged downward in fiscal 1973 for the first time in seven years, while the rise in expenditures slowed markedly, according to a new government report released today.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare figures show that 14.8 million persons were receiving public assistance at the end of last June, a decrease of 249,000 or 1.4 per cent fewer than a year ago.

Costs for federal-state welfare programs totaled $19.4 billion for the 12-month period, an increase of $1.1 billion or 6 per cent over fiscal 1972 when spending shot up 17.4 per cent and the number of recipients topped the 15-million mark.

The last time the nation's welfare caseload decreased was in 1967, when a net loss of about 100,000 recipients dropped the total 1.2 per cent to 7.7 million persons.

Then, the rolls began spiraling upward each year, to 9.1 million, 10.2 million, 12.2 million, 14.3 million and 15.1 million.

The bulk of the fiscal 1973 reduction occurred among the elderly, who were shifted off welfare when they began receiving higher Social Security benefits, and those persons on general assistance which involves no federal funds.

Democrat could succeed Saxbe as senator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan could appoint a Democrat to the U.S. Senate if Republican Sen. William Saxbe resigns to become U.S. Attorney General.

But an aide to the governor, when questioned Tuesday, said Gilligan has not considered appointing himself.

Kent B. McGough, chairman of the Republican party in Ohio, said meanwhile he would not like to see the party give up the post.

But McGough said assuming Gilligan would appoint a Democrat, a one-year incumbency would not be devastating to the party. Ohio's other U.S. Senator, Robert Taft Jr., is a Republican.

Burglar says 'Thank You'

Someone pried a lock from the door of the Howard Merritt residence, 604 Gregg St., shortly after "beggars' hours" Tuesday night and entered the house. Drawers were rifled, but nothing was reported missing.

The burglar signed a "Thank You," in soap on the glass panel of the front door, but police have not yet determined what prompted the display of gratitude.

Paul R. Johnson, 817 Broadway, reported that the radio antenna was broken from his truck at approximately 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. The truck was parked in front of his residence.

Ashbrook rips liberal stand

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, has told a "Police Appreciation Week" dinner meeting that one of the biggest problems facing society is that liberals are "calling for a balance of rights between criminals and police."

Ashbrook's visit to the state Tuesday was the first since his campaign for president in New Hampshire's 1972 primary in which he came in third behind Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., and President Nixon.

Ashbrook also said, however, that "there is a general resurgence of respect for low and order."

Rest areas on Ohio roads said outmoded

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's present system of highway rest areas is a series of "outmoded outhouses," said J. Phillip Richley, Ohio Director of Transportation.

Richley told the 1973 Governor's Conference on Tourism Tuesday night that seven motorist information centers will be built at key entrances to Ohio this year.

In addition, he said the state will rebuild all rest areas in the future adding tourist information booths and indoor plumbing. Construction of the first seven centers will begin in January, he said.

"Our rest areas need to be upgraded substantially," he said. "We have some of the poorest rest areas in the nation for such an urban state.

"These centers will give more services and more tourism-type information to the motorist, especially the one who approaches an urban area."

Richley said the plan was first announced last summer but has not been acted upon."

"I deplore that an important service that will do so much good has been used as a political football," he said.

"This project will be funded 90 per cent by the federal government, with funds earmarked for highways only. It seems logical that a state like Ohio could go a little beyond providing outhouses at rest stops."

Richley also said Ohioans cannot expect "massive highway programs like the ones we have been used to in the past."

He said Ohio's vast highway programs in the past have left the state with a huge mortgage debt. In addition, federal funding is down, already approved funds have been impounded and environmental limitations are much stricter than before, he said.

To visit Mideast

Kissinger schedules peace trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit Cairo and other Mideast capitals next week as the United States tries to promote peace negotiations between Israel and its Arab foes, officials said.

The trip, to be formally announced today, is considered a prelude to talks between Israel and the Arab states late this year or in early 1974.

Kissinger will stop in Jidda and Amman to confer with Saudi Arabian and Jordanian leaders, and possibly also in Rabat, Morocco. Then, after a stop in Pakistan, he will fly to Peking on Nov. 10 for a visit postponed because of the Mideast war.

The White House had planned to announce Kissinger's trip following a meeting today between President Nixon and Ismail Fahmy, the acting Egyptian foreign minister.

The secret was spilled Tuesday night while the President, Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin were meeting at Camp David, Md.

As the diplomatic pace quickened, Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel was granted an appointment with Nixon at the White House on Thursday.

She asked to see the President amid indications that the United States was pressing Israel to yield Egyptian territory on the west bank of the Suez Canal seized between two U.N. cease-fire calls last week.

The fact that Kissinger's trip to Cairo had already been planned was taken as evidence that Washington has already decided on at least the broad outline of its diplomatic course.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have pledged to use their "good offices" to expedite negotiations between Israel and her Arab neighbors. Of the two super powers, Washington clearly is playing the dominant role, while keeping Moscow informed principally through Dobrynin.

All attempts to foster negotiations since Israel was established 25 years ago have foundered even before an agenda could be prepared. The object of the current exploratory talks is to bring the two sides together under one roof, bargaining through a U.S. intermediary or directly across the table from each other. Geneva is a potential site.

Meanwhile, George Saddikni, the Syrian minister of information, vowed Tuesday that his country would not bargain with Israel.

Mideast problems "can only be solved through complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the recognition of Palestinian rights," he said in Damascus.

Fahmy is understood to have told Kissinger, however, that Egypt, Syria and other Arab states are prepared to accept Israel's sovereignty as a hard fact of life.

Ohio senator next Attorney General?

Saxbe 'sure' of Cabinet job

SEN. WILLIAM B. SAXBE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Saxbe emerged from a meeting with President Nixon today and said he is "relatively sure" he will be named U.S. attorney general.

Saxbe said it was obvious the new special Watergate Prosecutor would be selected "long before I would be confirmed." He sided with Nixon's view that the executive branch, rather than the courts should appoint Cox's successor, and said he was satisfied that the new special prosecutor would receive any necessary information from White House tapes and documents.

Saxbe said he and Nixon talked frankly about his assets and liabilities for the job. In response to a question, Saxbe said that Nixon had raised some of his past criticism of the President. Saxbe said he responded that Nixon "would have to take me warts and all," but that his past criticism "certainly doesn't reduce my ability to work and cooperate with the President."

Saxbe said his lengthy conversation with the President satisfied him that Nixon has acted honorably throughout the Watergate controversy.

Asked whether Nixon had offered him the job as attorney general, Saxbe responded, "That was implied when I walked in." He said the next move is up to Nixon, but added, "I'm satisfied in my mind I could do the job."

Key senators had said Tuesday that Nixon planned to nominate Saxbe but Saxbe said then he had not been offered the job.

Saxbe, 57, a first-term senator who recently announced he would not run for re-election next year, is a former attorney general of his state.

His nomination, which one source said was not expected until after completion of an FBI check next week, would mark the second time recently that Nixon has turned to Congress to fill a key vacancy.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford is the nominee to replace Spiro T. Agnew as vice president.

But Saxbe, unlike Ford, has on occasion sharply criticized Nixon despite a voting record generally in support of the administration.

During the Cambodian invasion Saxbe said that the President "must have left his senses."

In commenting earlier this year on whether the White House knew what was going on during the Watergate affair, Saxbe said, "That's like saying the piano player didn't know what was going on upstairs."

Saxbe said Tuesday that if he is asked to take the post, he would consider it seriously.

The firing of Archibald Cox as special prosecutor set off an upheaval in the Justice Department that brought the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and of William D. Ruckelshaus, the deputy attorney general.

Cox says new prosecutor must have wide freedom

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox has expressed concern that any new special prosecutor named by President Nixon might not have authority to look into campaign-financing violations, wiretapping and the ITT case.

Nixon has promised that a new special prosecutor will be named this week to investigate "what is called the Watergate matter."

Cox, who was fired as special prosecutor on Nixon's orders, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday that he considers the President's phrase "the Watergate matter" to involve only the break-in at Democratic national headquarters and the subsequent coverup.

"I do not think that definition covers my full jurisdiction," Cox said.

Cox contends his successor operating under Nixon's definition of Watergate would be without authority to investigate allegations that the Nixon administration improperly settled an antitrust suit against ITT; engaged in illegal wiretapping, and acted improperly in accepting campaign money from the dairy industry.

Cox told the committee Monday that he received, through then-Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, numerous complaints from White House staff members about the breadth of his investigation.

Cox was scheduled to testify again today in the Judiciary Committee's inquiry into his firing. He was dismissed Oct. 20 for refusing to halt efforts to obtain White House documents relating to his investigation.

Meanwhile, the Senate committee investigating the Watergate case planned to resume its hearings today with testimony from Berl Bernhard, who ran Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's 1972 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The committee also agreed to try to renew an agreement canceled by the White House that would have given the panel summaries of Watergate-related presidential tape recordings.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said the agreement collapsed in part because of "the haste with which this was put together at the last moment." Under the agreement, Stennis would have authenticated summaries of the tapes.

The White House agreed to submit to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica a detailed analysis of the tapes for an item-by-item ruling on what portions will be withheld from a grand jury.

In other developments:

—It was revealed that Richardson said before he resigned that Cox had copies of five secret memoranda, one of which a White House aide said would "directly involve the President" in the ITT scandal.

The documents are among those described in a March 30, 1972 memo from then-special presidential counsel Charles W. Colson to then-White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

—A House subcommittee concluded that the CIA and its top officials were "unwitting dupes" in providing materials used in the break-in at the of-

White House claims Nixon clean on ITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials, breaking their silence in an effort to calm the rekindled ITT controversy, say they voluntarily supplied Archibald Cox with White House files on the antitrust settlement before he was fired as special Watergate prosecutor.

Documents in those files, one high-ranking official said, "do not show any personal involvement by the President in the terms of the ITT settlement in the summer of 1971."

In a memo uncovered by the Senate Watergate committee last August, former presidential aide Charles W. Colson said the secret documents would "directly involve the President" in the ITT scandal.

The comments Tuesday night by high-level White House officials — the first time they had spoken out on the issue — were clearly intended to rebut the Colson memo.

There were these other developments Tuesday in the controversy over the out-of-court settlement of the antitrust case against the huge conglomerate, International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

—The New York Times, quoting sources close to the Watergate prosecution, reported that President Nixon told then-Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst not to appeal a court ruling favorable to ITT in one aspect of the antitrust case.

—White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren acknowledged the President had given the instruction to Kleindienst, contending he "had every right" to do so, but added that Nixon later withdrew the order after receiving more details about the case.

Watergate panel back in action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee, which has been in recess during the tumultuous events of recent days, was to resume its hearings today with questioning of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign director.

Berl I. Bernhard, a Washington lawyer who served as staff director in the Maine Democrat's unsuccessful bid for his party's presidential nomination last year, was expected to discuss the effects of political "dirty tricks" on the Muskie campaign.

Clark MacGregor, who succeeded former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell as director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, is scheduled to follow Bernhard as the final witness in the committee's probe of political espionage and sabotage.

The panel is scheduled to open the third and final phase of hearings, a probe of campaign contributions, next week and voted Tuesday to seek immunity for three potential witnesses in that area.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the committee chairman, said John Meier, Robert Lilly and Robert Isham would be granted immunity from prosecution based on the testimony they give.

Meier, a former Hughes Tool Co. executive, claims to have been a business associate of F. Donald Nixon, the President's brother.

He likely will be called as a witness when the committee hears testimony on a $100,000 cash contribution from billionaire Howard R. Hughes to Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the President's close friend and neighbor in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Lilly is a lobbyist for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) and secretary of its political arm. Isham is former comptroller of AMPI.

They are expected to be called in connection with the committee's probe of more than $400,000 that was secretly channeled into the Nixon campaign by three dairymen's cooperatives, including AMPI, allegedly in exchange for administration favors for the dairy industry.

Meanwhile, Senate Democrats meeting in closed session Tuesday adopted an Ervin resolution urging bipartisan efforts to create a new special prosecutor's office free of both the executive and legislative branches of government. The vote was 30 to 9.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the Watergate panel, said he hopes the committee will complete its hearings before Thanksgiving and turn its records over to a permanent Senate committee for continuing investigation of matters disclosed by the committee but not fully explored or outside the committee's bounds of inquiry.

Assembly passes conflicting bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both houses of the legislature have approved separate versions of campaign finance bills, setting the stage for a conference committee to try to resolve difference.

The Republican-controlled Senate approved its bill just before midnight Tuesday, about five hours after Democrats herded their bill through the House, which they control.

Senators voted 17-16 along strict party lines, while Democrats mustered a 54-40 vote from among their 58 House members. Five members were absent from the House, and Rep. John E. Johnson, D-68 Orrville, voted with the Republicans.

Although the two parties disagree on a number of minor issues, the key to a compromise lies in how to handle union contributions. Neither side has budged since the special session called by Democratic Gov. John Gilligan convened Oct. 23.

The House rejected GOP attempts to require that individual members of unions and other organizations be allowed to designate recipients of their contributions. The decisions are now frequently made by organization political action committees.

The Republican Senate bill would require that organization members be allowed to designate contributions.

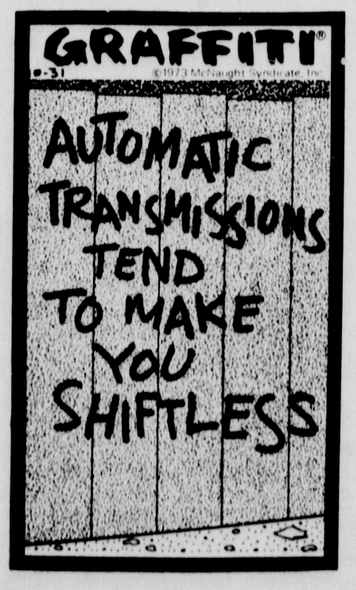

It took unusual parliamentary maneuvering by the Senate leadership to clear way for the issues to go to a Senate-House conference committee.

After the Senate passed its bill and sent it to the House, the original House bill was referred to the Senate Financial Institutions, Insurance, and Elections Committee.

At a 10-minute meeting just after midnight, the GOP-controlled committee substituted language from the Senate measure for that in the House bill. Senators then reconvened their floor session and approved return of, the amended House bill to the House.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Columbus, said that the move was necessary because a conference committee cannot consider a bill that hasn't been passed by both houses.

The conference committee was expected to be named today.

Hunt lost plane near Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — The Civil Air Patrol initiated today a search for a twin engine plane with two persons aboard which disappeared shortly after midnight while on a flight from Flint, Mich., to Cumberland, Md.

The CAP said last contact with the plane was at 12:25 a.m. EDT near here.

Occupants of the aircraft were not immediately known.

Truck drivers hit by diesel fuel rationing

Truck drivers going through Fayette County are really beginning to feel a pinch as far as a shortage of diesel fuel is concerned.

Service station operators in the Washington C.H. report a serious shortage of diesel fuel, and measures have been taken to ration the amount of fuel to the truckers.

One dealer at the I-71-U.S. 35 interchange said he completely exhausted his allotment of diesel fuel Tuesday night and truck drivers were scrambling for other stations in the emmediate area for fuel. He said he expected to receive more diesel fuel sometime tonight.

The dealer commented that he is rationing 30 gallons to each truck driver, while he could sell 60 gallons to the truckers earlier in the month.

He pointed out that next month he could probably sell 40-60 gallons to each trucker, but that it will depend entirely on the amount of fuel he receives.

Gurney fund existence disclosed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., and his top advisers established a secret "Gurney Boosters Fund" in 1971 to handle $300,000 in unreported contributions and cash payoffs from contractors, the Miami Herald said today.

The Herald quoted unnamed sources, including one identified as a Gurney political confidant, as saying former Gurney aide Larry E. Williams collected the cash in 1971 and 1972 from Florida builders seeking influence with the Federal Housing Administration.

The money was used to pay office and travel expenses and "for other unknown purposes," the newspaper said.

The Herald said Gurney, a member of the Senate Watergate committee, "has become a target of an expanding Justice Department investigation."

There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department.

The newspaper said an aide to Gurney, when asked about the secret fund report, commented: "We are waiting for the Justice Department to advise us what, if anything, must be done in relation to the matter under investigation."

Who's trapped on Suez Canal?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said today Egyptian forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

"Militarily this is easy," he said. "The east bank forces of the Egyptian 3rd Army are well entrenched while the rest and larger part of this army is now behind the Israeli forces on the west bank."

But he said he was holding back to avoid more war and bloodshed.

Sadat's view of an endangered Israeli force conflicted with Tel Aviv's claim that it has the Egyptian 3rd Army surrounded and at its mercy on the east bank of the canal.

Sadat also told a news conference in Cairo that Israel must pull back the troops on the west side of the canal to the lines they held at the time of the first cease-fire on Oct. 22 before he will exchange prisoners of war.

Israel had reported Tuesday that an exchange of wounded POWs was imminent.

Sadat said his officers were pressing him to let them wipe out the Israeli forces on the west bank of the canal but he was holding back to give President Nixon time to prevail on the Israelis to withdraw.

He indicated Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger this week told acting foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy they believe the Israelis should withdraw.

Fahmy was to be followed in Washington by Israeli Premier Golda Meir, who left Tel Aviv this morning for the United States.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told the Israeli parliament that Egypt has provided a list of 82 POWs — 45 of them injured — and promised a list of all its POWs within three days.

He said there would be an immediate exchange of wounded prisoners and Israel would take the first step by freeing 75 wounded Egyptians.

"We asked them for a full prisoner exchange but we have no promise on this," Dayan said. "But once the wounded are back and once the visits of the International Red Cross are taking place and the lists have been exchanged, I believe the full exchange would follow."

However, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian high command had ordered a prisoner exchange only after the Israelis "return to the lines of Oct. 22, in accordance of the Security Council resolution."

It was on Oct. 23, before the second Security Council ceasefire resolution, that Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal advanced past the south end of the canal and completed the encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd Army.

Israel estimates Egypt is holding about 350 Israelis prisoner and that Syria captured about 100. Israel says it captured some 7,150 Arabs, 6,000 of them Egyptians, and will free all of them in exchange for the approximately 450 Israelis.

Suspension of Rebozo weeks away

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision on whether to suspend President Nixon's close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, as chairman and president of a Florida bank will await completion of an investigation, probably within three weeks, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says.

FDIC Chairman Frank Wille said Tuesday his regulatory agency's three-member board had approved the policy unanimously.

Sen. William Prozmire, D-Wis., had asked the FDIC to suspend Rebozo immediately from leadership of the Key Biscayne Bank & Trust Co., but Wille said the board wanted to comply with "elemental standards of due process."

The investigation — begun last Friday and expected to be over within three weeks — involves a $195,000 loan issued by Rebozo's bank in 1968.

Rebozo accepted 900 shares of stock, later discovered to be stolen, as security. Rebozo spokesmen have denied published reports that the banker cashed 300 of the shares after learning they had been purloined.

Wille said a second FDIC investigation, involving the hiring of Franklin S. DeBoer to head the trust department of Rebozo's bank, should be completed next week.

Fire rakes L.A. County

Saxbe to cabinet?

Committee, said he would expect Saxbe to win Senate confirmation.

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a committee member, said Saxbe would have to give the same assurances Richardson did at the time of his nomination last May that a Watergate prosecutor would have full independence.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., also a committee member who is a chief sponsor of a bill to provide for a court-appointed prosecutor, said even such assurances would not solve the problem Congress faces.

"He could give all the promises but his authority could be taken away at any time by the President," Bayh said.

Fund juggling in Laos studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is seeking to determine whether the State Department deliberately underestimated its embassy staffing needs in Laos to Congress in order to minimize the U.S. presence there.

For whatever reasons, the Government Accounting Office (GAO) said Tuesday, the U.S. embassy in Vientiane, Laos, violated State Department staffing practices by supplementing its personnel with dozens more hired locally.

Norman Cornish, deputy staff director for the House Government Operations subcommittee on foreign operations, told a hearing Tuesday that the State Department apparently violated personnel regulations "in order to keep a low profile in Laos."

"Now they're having to admit they didn't ask enough money to do the job and they had to violate the rules with local hires," Cornish said.

Frank C. Conahan, associate director of the GAO's international division, said the embassy did have an abnormally small American staff.

He said he had no idea what Congress would have done if it had known the true extent of U.S. involvement in Laos between 1971 and 1973.

Conahan recommended that Congress ask for records on the local residents hired under State Department contracts at every other installation throughout the world.

Investigators for the GAO and the Agency for International Development (AID) told the subcommittee that the embassy also violated State Department rules in building a swimming pool for the ambassador and kept such sloppy books so that it is impossible to track down $2 million worth of surplus military equipment the embassy requisitioned from Thailand.

AID investigators continue to examine the financial records of the top two officials under the ambassador to determine whether they made illegal financial gains as alleged by two former government officials in Vientiane who testified last week.

The investigators said, however, they had found no substantiation so far of other allegations that the missing military material was bartered off to underwrite the ambassador's pool or improvements to his residence.

California ITT case revival eyed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. says he will try to reopen his previously dismissed suit against the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Brown, a Democrat, said he would ask a federal appeals court in San Francisco today to let him reopen the suit in the wake of the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The state's chief elections officer, Brown filed the suit March 20, 1972, saying the federal Corrupt Practices Act prohibits a corporation from contributing to a presidential campaign or convention.

Involved in the action was a $100,000 contribution from an ITT subsidiary, Sheraton hotels, to the San Diego Convention and Visitors Bureau on Aug. 5, 1971.

The contribution was to aid the 1972 Republican National Convention, once scheduled for San Diego.

A U.S. District Court judge dismissed the suit May 16, 1972, saying the contribution was not illegal. ITT had contended the donation was a legitimate business expense to foster its hotel interests in San Diego.

Brown appealed the judge's ruling but suspended his efforts when prosecutor Cox said he would probe the ITT matter.

Brown announced on Tuesday he was resuming his efforts because of "the personal interference by the President in this matter and the continual refusal of the Justice Department to prosecute this case."

An aide said Brown hoped to use the suit as a means to investigate the contribution and to subpoena ITT and Republican National Committee documents and records.

'Fasting for CROP' plan explained to Lions Club

Two new members, Sam Kimple and Charles Temple, were inducted into the Washington C. H. Lions Club Tuesday night by Senior Deputy Governor Scott Regdon, of West Union, bringing the club membership up to 97.

Regdon, who was making an official visit to the club here, also spoke briefly on the principles and policies of Lions International and outlined several important upcoming events.

Following dinner in the Country Club, President David Looker conducted the business session at which Richard Patton, a past president, spoke in support of the .2 of a mill additional county health levy and Paul Johnson explained the need for the 2-mill additional and 1-mill renewal levies to provide funds for city elementary school libraries, salaries and upgrading the junior high school curriculum. Both the health and school levies will come to a vote at the election next Tuesday.

In accordance with club policy, no action was taken as a club; instead, the decisions were left up to the individual Lions.

TWO STUDENTS, Marcia Markel, a MTHS sophomore, and Bruce Gilmore, a WSHS junior, explained the "Fasting for CROP" fund-raising project, which is sponsored by several churches here. They said that students interested will volunteer to refrain from eating from noon Friday, Nov. 16, until 7 p.m. Saturday. The students will get sponsors who will agree to contribute an amount (of their own choice) to CROP for every hour the student fasts.

At the conclusion of the talks by the students, Tail Twister Gene Sagar passed a plastic pumpkin among the members for contributions. The pumpkin was well filled, but it was handed to the students without counting the money inside, President Looker said.

Mrs. Allen Puffenberger, the project chairman, explained that the students will spend the 30 hours of fasting in Grace United Methodist Church and on Saturday evening the fast will end with dinner there. She said the number of student participants will not be known until sometime next week, but that she expects between 70 and 80 to take part.

Most are expected to bring sleeping bags, she said. The group will be well chaperoned, she added.

Full school milk funding restored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday it will restore full funding of the special milk program to provide snack time milk for school children.

The department also said a new federal regulation which went into effect last August allows school cafeterias to serve nonfat dry milk if the product is reconstituted into liquid form at dairy processing plants.

Funding for the special milk program will be restored to the full level provided in the department's appropriations legislation for the 1973-74.

Last July, the department said it would hold special milk spending this school year to $25 million. But Congress insisted that $97.1 million be used to provide children milk at snack periods in addition to servings at regular meals.

Administration officials had wanted to limit special milk servings to schools not having regular meal service.

In bowing to Congress, the department said it will reimburse schools participating in the National School Lunch Program at a rate of four cents per one-half pint of special milk served.

Ghosts no joke to spirit hunters

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

PITTSFIELD, N.H. (AP) — To most people, ghosts are funny kids with sheets over their heads on Halloween. But for folks who track down apparitions in creaky old houses, the subject is no laughing matter.

Take David Munsell, an exorcist who scares off spooks in his spare time, or Edward Warren, a professional ghost hunter who says he's uncovered 500 cases of genuine hauntings. These people believe.

"There's no doubt about it," Warren told an interviewer. "I have seen people as solid as you appear and disappear."

Warren, of Monroe, Conn., says he's investigated 2,000 reportings of supernatural activity in the past 25 years. And in some cases, he says he's actually convinced the ghosts that it's time to pass on.

Munsell, who operates a landclearing business in Bradford, Maine, says he has driven spirits from about a half dozen houses by chanting over and over, "In Jesus' name, get out."

Munsell's most celebrated case was in Pittsfield, where a pesky spirit began winging objects through the air in a 125-year-old farmhouse which was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ehrhardt.

Munsell, who had read about the Ehrhardt's troubles, offered his services. That was two years ago, and the ghost, or whatever it was, has not returned.

Munsell, who teaches a course about the supernatural at the University of Maine, says, "Ghosts are simply manifestations of unclean, or evil, spirits. They're fallen angels. They are intelligent, powerful beings. We don't play games with them.

"I have authority over them through the Lord. I command them to leave." And he says it always works.

However, Warren says not all ghosts are bad. Even though some are demons, others are simply the confused spirits of people who have died but don't want to leave.

"I am not an exorcist, but I can communicate with spirits," Warren said. "I will talk to them just as I talk to you. Remember they are people, even though in spirit form.

"Many of them will not accept the fact that they are dead because they don't want to accept the fact of God. Some just don't want to leave home. Others don't want to give up their families.

"We must convince them that they would be better off if they passed over correctly and let things take their course."

Threecharges await action by grand jury

Evidence against three persons will be presented to a Fayette County grand jury Friday by County Prosecutor Otis Hess.

The state is seeking indictments against Herbert R. Thompson, 25, of 1121 Lakeview Ave., Mary Jo Myers, 24, of 701 Blackstone St., and Laddner A. Trenoweth, 24, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Thompson was arrested inside the Eat-N-Time Restaurant in the early morning hours Sept. 23. He is charged with burglary, larceny and possession of burglary tools.

Mary Myers, who pleaded not guilty on arraignment Tuesday, is charged with shoplifting in the alleged theft of $115 in women's apparel at Soldan's. She was arrested Oct. 18 by city police.

Trenoweth was arrested by the Sheriff's Department Oct. 25 and is charged with carrying a concealed weapon. He allegedly had a small handgun concealed in his boot.

Watergate case

fice of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Members of the White House "plumbers" unit broke into the office after Ellsberg gave newsmen copies of the Pentagon papers.

—The House Judiciary Committee voted broad subpoena power to its chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., in the panel's investigation of possible grounds for impeaching Nixon. Rodino will be allowed to subpoena witnesses and documents without full committee approval.

In testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday, Cox said he may have been the indirect source of a news leak about a conversation between Nixon and then-Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst about the ITT case.

The New York Times carried a story Tuesday saying Nixon ordered Kleindienst not to appeal one phase of the ITT antitrust case.

The story said Kleindienst had related the conversation to Watergate prosecutors.

Cox told the committee he had discussed that conversation with Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and two of their aides. He said he had been assured neither was the source of the leak.

Cox called his breach of confidence "an error of carelessness" and apologized.

At the White House, a spokesman said Cox's testimony illustrates "the partisan attitude that characterized his activities in recent months."

Some time after the conversation with Kleindienst, Nixon withdrew his opposition to the appeal and the ITT case was settled out of court.

Although there have been assertions that the out-of-court settlement resulted from a promise of ITT aid to the Republican National Convention, Cox said he considers the agreement a good one for the government.

Cox repeated that he thinks the best method of naming his successor is to enact a bill leaving the choice to the full U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

A majority of senators have endorsed a bill allowing Sirica to name the prosecutor.

Cox agreed there are constitutional risks in this procedure, but said the risks are worth taking.

No matter how the prosecutor is selected, Cox said, he must have access to White House documents, which Nixon has been reluctant to grant.

And it is possible, Cox added, that naming a new prosecutor who is subject to firing by the President could be worse than having no prosecutor at all.

Cox said there is evidence that the political papers of some White House aides have been dumped into Nixon's "presidential files" to protect them from subpoena.

If such a practice were to continue, Cox said, the result would be an entirely new Watergate cover-up.

Stock prices down again

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices moved lower again today, as investors continued to take profits from the market's strong rally earlier this autumn.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down almost a point at the opening and declining issues took a broad lead over advancing ones in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Active issues on the Big Board included British Petroleum, up ⅛ to 15; Raytheon, off ¼ to 33; DPF Inc., down ¼ to 4½; and Occidental Petroleum, steady at 10¾.

On Tuesday the Dow sank 16.26 points to 968.54 and declines outnumbered advances by about 4 to 1 in fairly active trading on the Big Board. Analysts said the decline indicated the market was in the process of consolidating some of the broad gains it made during its four-week rally.

Rain was forecast to return to Ohio this afternoon and tonight, spreading northeast ahead of a low centered in Arkansas early today.

The low will continue northeast through Pennsylvania Thursday, bringing cool weather to Ohio.

Temperatures tonight are forecast in the 40s, but will climb no higher than the upper 40s and low 50s Thursday afternoon. That compares with readings of 50 to 60 degrees that were forecast for today and is five to 10 degrees below normal.

Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy overnight across Ohio. While rain ended in the south and west, drizzle continued early today in the northeast.

The heaviest rainfall Tuesday and overnight was in the Cleveland area, where around an inch was recorded. Little more than a trace was recorded during the same period at Toledo.

Fair weather Friday is expected to turn wet over the weekend with a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday. Highs will be in the 60s Friday and Saturday, falling to the 50s Sunday. Lows all three days will be in the 40s.

Rain, snow in picture

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy thunderstorms drenched parts of Texas today as showers lingered over widely scattered parts of the nation.

The storms dumped almost 2 inches of rain at Lufkin in eastern Texas. Winds up to 60 miles an hour were clocked at Palacios, near the Gulf Coast. Flash flood warnings were issued Tuesday night for the Dallas-Fort Worth area where 2 to 4 inches of rain fell.

Scattered rain and snow showers chilled the northern Rockies. Lewistown, Mont., was blanketed with 3 inches of snow.

Spotty showers touched western South Dakota. Most of the Mississippi Valley was overcast, and showers and some thunderstorms erupted from the central Mississippi Valley to the western Gulf region.

Rain and drizzle washed the eastern Ohio Valley and central Appalachians and some showers and thunderstorms lingered in New England, where a storm system that struck heavily Tuesday moved into Canada.

Much of the Southeast had temperatures in the 40s before dawn, and there was a scattering of 30s ranging south as far as the Florida Panhandle.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 27 at Flagstaff, Ariz., to 77 at Brownsville, Tex.

Expect gripes from Golda

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is expected to be carrying both gratitude and gripes when she meets President Nixon on Thursday in Washington.

The premier is sure to thank the President for the massive American shipments of arms. But she is also likely to complain about U.S. pressures on Israel that have put her government on the spot at home and could cost her Labor party votes in the elections two months away.

Mrs. Meir, who last visited Washington eight months ago, will spend three or four days in the U.S. capital, her spokesman said. Her travel plans are kept secret for security reasons and her itinerary is not yet final.

She is expected to reiterate to the President three basic demands of Israeli policy: face-to-face talks with the Arabs leading to a signed peace treaty, retention of key pieces of territory seized by Israel in 1967, and no change in the status of all of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

But her top priority probably will be a discussion of the current cease-fire, which Israel says Washington forced it to accept at a moment of military strength.

The Israelis have indicated that to obtain their agreement to the cease-fire, the Americans and the Soviets promised to get the Egyptians to abide by all the agreement's provisions.

But Israel claims the Egyptians have failed to live up to the pact's spirit by going slow on a prisoner of war exchange, continuing a naval blockade in the Red Sea and failing to halt shooting incidents.

Juries and drinking

There is no lack of good reasons to avoid excessive drinking, even of the so-called social variety. One little added nudge toward abstemious or at any rate temperate behavior is brought to attention by Jury Verdict Research.

This group's staff has just completed a study, "Alcohol as an Issue - Plaintiff Drinking." It concludes that juries considering liability suits are likely to show much less sympathy for plaintiffs if the latter were under the influence of alcohol at the time of the episode in question.

A release about the report puts the question thus: "If you were involved in an automobile accident, fell at the neighborhood grocery, or perhaps slipped off the scaffold at your place of business, will your previous intake of alcoholic beverages affect the reactions and reasoning of the jury?" The general answer is in the affirmative.

The Jury Verdict Research report does show that when awards are made the amount is only a little less in cases where drinking is involved than would normally be expected. The crunch comes on the jackpot question whether an award will be made at all. Here the adverse impact of drinking on jury sympathies is clearly shown. As an example the report offers data on awards to plaintiff pedestrians struck by vehicles: if alcohol was involved, we are told, an award is made in about one-third fewer cases.

No one expects to be hit by a car, of course, or to fall at the grocery store or slip off a scaffold. Still, it could happen. And if you're lucky, you won't have been drinking when it does.

The detenters-emeritus

It was only a few months ago that the people who hold my general position on the Soviet Union, on detente, and on related issues were being denounced from the intellectual housetops as "Cold War relics," "obsessive anti-Communists," and fossils crusted over the antique dogmas.

Michael Harrington (the writer, not the Representative) went so far as to split the Social Democrats, U.S.A. and set up a marching and chowder club of his own because, in his view, the SDUSA was too close to conservative elements like Senator Henry Jackson and the AFL-CIO.

THE TEMPTATION right now is to laugh, but the responsible reaction is to weep. When Israel was bushwhacked on Yom Kippur, what leading figures in American politics spoke up?

Sen. J. W. Fulbright? Yes, he opened up to observe dourly that the American Jewish community had the Senate in its pocket.

Senator George McGovern? He may have said something, but all I have noticed is his comment that Sen. Fulbright should have received the Nobel Peace Prize.

Eugene McCarthy? I'm a close reader, but so far he has drawn a blank. Secretary of State Kissinger noted that Soviet behavior had been moderate and not irresponsible.

No. The first two realistic voices heard were . . . you guessed it: Sen. Henry M. Jackson and George Meany. Maybe Jackson is an "obsessive anti-Communist," but to date no politician has come within light years of his superb analysis of events in the Middle East delivered Oct. 15 in Los Angeles.

Maybe Meany is a "Cold War relic," but on Oct. 9 he sent a wire to Secretary Kissinger.

The telegram was succinct and to the point: Meany expressed the AFL-CIO's "solidarity with and full support of the state of Israel, the Histadrut (Israeli Labor Movement) and the Israeli workers in their struggle for a free society based on decency and social justice . . . In so critical a moment, no nation must be allowed to doubt, even for a second, where the United States stands." Like Jackson, Meany tied the can precisely where it belongs: on the Soviet Union.

NOW the intellectual community has leaped into action. It is hard to find any news in the papers with so much space being taken up by paid political advertisements. The doves and detenters of yesteryear have really taken to breathing fire.

The temptation to turn the dagger — to say, "I told you so" — is a human one, particularly if your scars ache as mine do from the knifework of these clowns, but there is a far more important point. What has to be driven home to the liberal community is that if the McCarthys and McGoverns had been successful in implementing their policy, we would have nothing to send to Israel except perhaps a contingent of the Peace Corps and eventually a wreath.

You can not dismantle the "military-industrial complex" and then expect it to suddenly rise from the grave as the "Arsenal of Democracy."

Most of the ads I have seen say, in effect, "Jackson for President" and I trust that those of the liberal persuasion who have in the past written him off as "conservative" because, for example, he want to see Phantoms produced, will line up behind him for 1976.

I am not, however, standing on one foot awaiting this eventuality — the odds, based on their track record, are that the detenters-emeritus will never forgive him.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Allendeism north of the Border

It's front-page news whenever a Latin American Allende or Castro grabs U.S. property or voids a long-standing lease agreement without offering the victim a peso's worth of indemnifcation. And when a Col. Muamma el-Qaddafi of Libya expropriates an international oil company, the Western press echoes with protests about the injustice of it all, even though the Libyan government may soften the blow a bit by offering compensation to an occasional favorite, as it did recently to the Occidental Oil Co.

Allendeism and Qaddafiism are supposed to be a barbarous application of the doctrine of nationalism, barbarous because it ignores the common-law principle of just compensation that found its way seom 200 years ago into the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

You would not normally expect to see the idea of just compensation flouted in Canada, a country with the same legal traditions as the U. S. Yet, without any journalistic fanfare or outraged protests from the U. S. State Department, Canadian provincial governments have been emulating Chile's Allende with the most brazen insouciance.

A U. S.-owned company, Churchill Forest Industries, made a deal some years ago with what was then the conservative government of the Canadian province of Manitoba to develop some 40,000 square miles of country in the northern part of the province just below Hudson Bay. Manitoba's share of the financing came to 86 per cent of the total, with Churchill Forest Industries putting up the remainder.

The Arthur D. Little Company of Boston was in on the advisory details. Churchill was to build the necessary mills, lay our new towns for mill workers and their families, and market the forest products for a period of 60 years. It was, supposedly, a hard-and-fast lease arrangement, entered into for the benefit of Manitoba itself.

THIS WAS before the New Democratic Party, elected on a socialistic nationalization of resources platform, took control of Manitoba in 1969. What followed has been Allendeism pure and simple.

Edward Schreyer, the New Democratic Party premier of Manitoba, has simply ousted Churchill Forest Industries without paying a nickel for Churchill's rights in the original deal. The money that Churchill spent in completing two sawmills, one paper mill and one pulp mill is apparently going for naught.

The big international copper companies, Kennecott and Anaconda, got not worst treatment in Chile.

Churchill, unable to press its suit in Manitoba, is trying to sue for retribution in a U. S. State court, citing damage and compensation claims of more than $500 million. The New Jersey Superior Court, though recognizing the "raging Canadian political and legal turmoil" that produced the takeover, has denied Churchill any use of New Jersey courts on the ground that local U. S. courts don't provide the right locale for international compensation appeals.

The denial came in spite of the fact that Manitoba had itself brought an action against Churchill in New Jersey. Manitoba did not deny the expropriation; it simply said, in effect, that Churchill isn't entitled to any compensation arranged for by an ousted conservative government that made deals with "mongrel" capitalists.

The Churchhill seizure is perhaps the most extreme example of what is happening "north of the border, up Canada way." British Columbia, under its own New Democratic Party regime, recently froze sales of farm land pending the creation of a board to define the limits of land use.

The program of the British Columbia premier, David Barrett, may be still in the talk stage to a large extent, but if the NDP has its way in British Columbia any company engaged in bringing raw materials — lumber, ores, oil or natural gas—to market will soon find itself working primarily for the state. A hard rock miner told a Barron's magazine reporter last spring that prospectors and farmers should do their "talking with 30)30s."

All of this is in a land that pays lip service to "Traditional English liberties." No wonder Canadians are being called, however unfairly, "the Arabs of the North."

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

All children deserve the best education possible. We are proud when students do well in competition like watching a well directed marching band, and well coached athletic teams.

A new junior high school building will provide a better foundation for seventh and eighth graders.

Being retired teachers we know what the students and teachers lack to work with. So are you going to vote for the Miami Trace Middle School?

We believe our children, grandchildren and our neighbors' children deserve a better chance for a first class education than they are now receiving.

Remarks for wiretappers

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a professional telephone bugger gets tired of hearing:

"If you are so good at your work, why hasn't your name been brought out in the Watergate investigations?"

"What do you hear, Jake?"

"I want you to fix it so I can listen in on my wife's private conversation, but no one else can—and not even you."

"What would you charge to rent me some old tapes? I'm a television soap opera writer, and I'm looking for some material with true-to-life dialogue."

"I don't know how much my business partner paid you to tap my telephone, but if you can keep your trap shut I'll pay you twice as much to put a tap on his line for me. He must be stealing twice as much as I am."

"If you don't let me listen the next time you bug a movie star's apartment, Jake, I'll divorce you. As your wife, I should be entitled to get some pleasure out of this dirty work you're doing. Heaven knows it doesn't pay much."

"That was a good idea to bug the old man's dentures, Jake, but I haven't heard a word from him for an hour. Do you suppose he took them out and dunked them in a glass of water on his bedside table?"

"As your accountant, Jake, I have to say we are not doing too well. It is true that you earned $25,000 last year in blackmail money on which you didn't pay taxes, but, on the other hand, as you had to dish out $500 a week to keep the cops off your back, you'd have done better if you had spent the same time doing honest work, revolting as I know that must sound to you."

"As a man you taught the business to, Jake, even though we are rivals now, I feel I ought to tell you something as a professional courtesy. The cops hired me to put a tap on your bookie's phone, and I overheard him the other night ordering one of his strong boys to put the muscle on you if you don't pay what you owe him by Friday."

"Frankly, your medical problem has me puzzled, and I may have to call in a consultant. Just how long did you say you had this strange buzzing in your ears?"

"No, I don't want you to tap my business competitor's phone to learn his secrets. What I want you to do is to sell him on the idea of tapping our phones to learn our secrets. They are driving us bankrupt, and if he stole a few they might force him to the wall, too."

"Please, Daddy, don't read me anymore bedtime stories. Just draw me a few diagrams so I can show the other kids in my class how to cheat the telephone company."

"Hi, lover boy, come over right away and sneak in the back way. Don't worry about my husband. He's out on an all-night case. And Jake's such a big dumb ox he'd never think of putting a bug in his own bedroom."

Minister gives thanks for defending lifestyle

DEAR ABBY: I want to express my gratitude to you for having the courage to repeat your statement that homosexuality is NOT a "sickness."

I am the director of Adult Ministries for the United Methodist Church in the Hawaii district, and am long past the age when I might appeal sexually to either a female or another male.

Abby, you put to shame some of my so-called "fellow Christians," who have so completely forgotten the teachings of Jesus, that they would deny God's love and compassion for the millions of people who live a lifestyle different from their own.

Thank you, Abby. Whether you believe in Jesus or not, his love shines on you when you write such columns.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I don't go steady with any one guy, but there is one I see more than the others. I like him a lot, but this dude's hands are quicker than the eye and if I let him kiss me, before I know it, his hands are all over me.

How do I handle such an aggressive guy?

DEAR ABBY: About the girl who wanted to have her nose pierced over her parents' objections: I say, let her! It isn't painful, and if it is properly done, no infection should result.

I spent two years in India on an assignment, and while I was there I had my nose pierced in order to wear a small gold ring in it. It is the custom for women and girls in India.

After I returned to the States, wearing the ring in my nose, I was the object of curious stares and many rude remarks, so I removed it. However I still have the tiny hole in my nose, and will wear the ring in it if it ever becomes the fad or fashion here.

HOLE IN MY NOSE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR HOLE: Of course, one never knows, but I doubt if nose rings will ever catch on in the States.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "T") took his life and left me with three minor children. Before "T" was buried, the vultures moved in to pick the bones.

A friend called the morning of the funeral and said if I planned to sell the house to please give him a chance to bid on it.

At the funeral parlor, another "friend" asked me what I was going to do with T's gun collection. Imagine the insensitivity of this man, knowing that my husband killed himself with a gun!

It's been only a week and I have had offers for everything from his clothes to his garden tools.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I was ready to explode. I don't have to sign my name. Everybody in town knows who I am.

Nation's red meat supply drops 12 per cent over year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's red meat supply last month was down 13 per cent from September 1972, about in line with earlier government predictions, according to new livestock slaughter figures compiled by the Agriculture Department.

The report, issued Tuesday, illustrated what USDA livestock economists have been saying: It will take months for cattle producers, especially, to crank up the meat machine to full throttle after a hold-back during the price freeze.

In September, the report said, beef production was under 1.64 billion pounds, one per cent less than in August and 13 per cent below a year earlier.

Pork output declined 5 per cent from August and was 13 per cent less than in September last year. Veal, lamb and mutton production was also down from earlier levels, the report said.

Looking over the first nine months of this year, the report showed that total red meat production declined 7 per cent from the comparable period of 1972. Beef, the largest component, dropped 7 per cent below a year earlier during the first three quarters of 1973.

Two weeks ago, USDA reported that an Oct. 1 inventory in the 23 major beef states showed 12.1 million cattle being fed for slaughter, up 3 per cent from the same date last year.

But that report also showed that fewer than 6.7 million head of the Oct. 1 inventory was actually moved into slaughter markets during the last three months of 1973. Thus, officials say, it will be next spring before cattle marketings increase substantially and begin to move above year-earlier levels.

Traffic Court

Twelve persons were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Tuesday on traffic charges.

Acting Municipal Judge John P. Case fined Richard D. Rhoads, 27, Greenfield, $50 and costs after the defendant pleaded guilty to driving on the wrong side of the roadway.

Police charges of driving while intoxicated which had been filed against Rhoads were dismissed.

Nine of the remaining 11 persons scheduled to appear forfeited bond.

Oil drilling boom going on in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Oil drilling in Ohio is up a full 50 per cent over last year as oil producers re-evaluate the state's potential in light of the energy crisis.

The Ohio Natural Resources Department said today 1,359 oil wells were drilled through Oct. 19, compared to only 886 through the same period in 1972.

Not only are more new wells being drilled, but wildcatters are beginning to explore the potential of deep wells, a virtually untapped resource previously passed over in favor of lower, but steady yield shallow wells.

And low producing wells past their prime are being kept in production longer than before the energy shortage.

"In a way, we're in a boom," said G. Lyman Dawe, oil and gas division director for the state department.

"This is great country for the independent and small operator," Dawe said.

Much of the state's popularity comes from the 90 per cent success rate in striking oil in certain sandstone strata in eastern Ohio, Dawe said.

Shallow wells there can be drilled fairly cheaply and with acceptable risk by the smaller operator, Dawe said, though production doesn't match the great oil fields of Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

In addition, drillers are exploring the possibility of deep wells. Dawe said Ohio drillers never could reach the 24,000-foot wells of the southwest, but a few now are going considerably past the 4,000-foot average Ohio well.

He said the deep well potential is beginning to attract explorative wildcatters.

"I can't tell you how great the deep potential is, but we do have a deep potential," Dawe said.

At the same time, "stripper wells"—wells producing less than 10 barrels a day—are being kept in production longer, Dawe said. That reflects price increases of up to 20 per cent.

"It's not a matter of popularity," he said. "It's just one of the facts of life."

Of the 9.4 million barrels of oil Ohio produced last year, more than two-thirds came from stripper wells. The Interstate Oil Compact Commission said there were 14,863 stripper wells in Ohio at the beginning of the year, and stripper well reserves are estimated at 89 million barrels.

Dawe said most Ohio drilling seeks both oil and natural gas, and Ohio natural gas exploration also is gaining in popularity.

COPING WITH BILLING ERRORS

Bills with errors are never pleasant to receive. Getting such bills corrected is easier if you understand how errors might occur.

If your credit statement is wrong, it may be due to the billing time lag. Several days will elapse between the day your statement is prepared and the day you receive it. This period — perhaps five days or longer — is the billing time lag. Any purchase or payments made during this period will not appear on your current statement.

Check the billing date if you receive a bill which doesn't record your last payment. Compare that date and the date your check probably was received. If the omission is due to billing time lag, the problem is only temporary.

If the time lag isn't the cause, check to be sure you aren't to blame. Does someone else have access to the same credit account? If so, you may not know about all the charges made on the account. Check to be sure there are no charges made by another person.

A returned check also causes billing discrepancies. Insufficient funds is not the only reason checks are returned. You may, for example, have failed to sign the check or failed to name a payee.

If a store claims it never received your check, call the bank to see if it has paid it. Then you'll know if the store has received and cashed your check.

If the bank has not paid the check and sufficient time has passed, you may ask the bank to stop payment on the check. You will probably need to make this request in writing at the bank. Then send the store a second check by registered mail — you will receive a signed receipt showing that the store did receive your payment.

You can do several things to help prevent billing errors. Use your credit card when you charge purchases. This insures that the proper credit card number appears on your sales slip.

Before you sign a sales slip, check to be sure all the spaces are correctly filled in and that the price is legibly written. Check the accuracy of addition and multiplication. Be sure the total is written. Check the accuracy of addition and mulitiplication. Be sure the total is written at the bottom of the sales check — this makes it impossible to write in added charges after you have signed the sales check.

Know when billing dates are and mail your payments so they arrive before the deadline. Put your return address on the envelope and return the correct portion of the bill with your payment.

When your monthly statement arrives, review it promptly. Keep copies of all charges you've made and compare them with the bill. If you do find an error, start to get it corrected right away.

First, notify the company promptly of the billing error. When you call the company, have at hand your charge card number, the statement, and copies of the sales slips. Note the name of the person you talk with and the date — you might need this information later.

If your contact is by mail, send a separate letter — don't just write a note on the bill. Include your credit card number and any other necessary information. Keep a copy of the letter.

Don't pay for merchandise that you haven't received; don't pay any part of a bill that you don't owe. But — do contact the company promptly to explain why you haven't sent payment. Keep a copy of this letter, too.

If you have difficulty getting the error corrected, send a registered letter to the president of the company. Explain your problem in detail, give the facts of the situation, and explain what you've done to solve the problem.

If the problem still isn't settled, report it to the appropriate regulatory agency in government. To protect your credit rating, write a statement of 100 words or less giving your view of the problem and ask the local credit bureau to file it with your account. This information, given to future prospective creditors, will show that the unpaid account was in dispute and was not resolved to your satisfaction.

Club spends day at Turkey Ridge

Members of the Town and Country Garden Club took advantage of the beautiful fall weather by spending a day at the Rankin Cottage on Turkey Ridge in Ross County recently. A brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Lee Cleland, in which final plans were made for the club's participation in the Fall Regional Meeting to be held in Mahan Hall, October 30. Town and Country will be in charge of Registration, which will be handled by Mrs. Lewis Thomson, Mrs. Alvin Armintrout and Mrs. Cleland. The sales table, at which a wide variety of hand-made articles will be offered for sale, will be in charge of Mrs. John Stimpert and Mrs. Dwight Duff.

The programs for the coming year were announced, as were the committees, by Mrs. Cleland.

Following the business meeting, the noon meal was enjoyed at tables on the side lawn. Mrs. Rankin invited those present to enjoy "Campfire Stew" which had been prepared in an iron kettle over an open wood fire. This, along with the covered dishes provided by the members, was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Following lunch, members enjoyed a hike through the countryside, gathering plants for drying and nuts and bittersweet. Mrs. Rankin pointed out spots of interest and identified many plants and birds for the group.

Mrs. Walter Thompson was a guest for the day.

The next meeting will be November 14 at the home of Mrs. Armintrout, with Mrs. Robert Browning as co-hostess. The program will feature a demonstration of decoupage by Mrs. Paula Henke of Hillsboro.

Need more space for electric and other kitchen appliances and utensils? base-end shelves may be added to kitchen room-divider cabinets.

Nation's economic sectors make news

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — What follows is a compilation of items that, reflected upon, may provide some insight into the condition of the American economy:

—The fuel shortage didn't erupt in the faces of unsuspecting officials, although it might appear that way. Government and industry researchers saw the problem developing a decade ago, but almost no coordinate effort was made to face it.

Same with food. Officials knew that while population was increasing, and that people the world over were improving their diets, the supply of food was not rising sufficiently to take care of demand.

Speaking at the Columbia Graduate School of Business a few days ago, C.W. Cook, chairman of General Foods Corp., observed:

"In 1965, President Johnson appointed a 30-man panel, called the National Commission on Food and Fiber, to make a thorough 18-month study of the subject in its broadest aspects.

"I was privileged to be a member along with topflight agribusiness economists from the academic world, farm leaders, other food processors, food retailers, and consumer representatives.

"Among other findings, our commission concluded that the trend of world demand was outpacing supply and would continue to do so unless massive steps were taken to achieve more of a balance.

"What happened as a result? In effect, nothing!"

—True or false: The United States is a have-not nation in regard to energy resources. False. The just-published "U.S. Industrial Outlook 1974," a Commerce Department publication, might bolster your confidence:

"It is reassuring that this country has almost unlimited energy potential in the form of coal and oil shale. More than half of the world's total reserves of coal are within the United States, and recoverable resources of oil shale are of roughly equal magnitude."

It adds that "large-scale" additions to the energy supply will come from solar and geothermal sources in the 1990s, and that nuclear fusion "could possibly supply energy indefinitely for a substantial part of the world's population."

—Many corporations are enjoying the most profitable year in their history, but that doesn't mean they're happy.

One after another they've boasted to stockholders and brokers about record high profits and then, lest the government was listening, added that price relief was necessary if profitability was to continue.

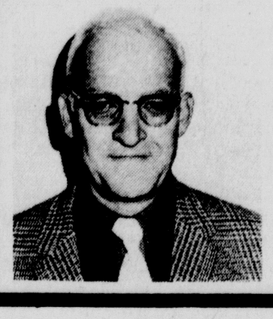

Union Carbide, for example, "expects the best year in the corporation's history," its chief financial officer, William Pardoe, told San Francisco security analysts this week.

That was half the story. Another officer then cautioned that rising costs of hydrocarbon feedstock and energy would require relief from price restrictions on its products now imposed by Phase 4.

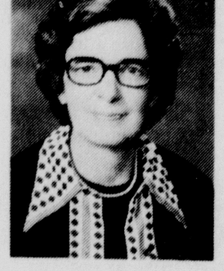

—Pay raises to organized labor in this year of government controls contributed less to corporate stress, although they may have contributed a good deal to strained relations between labor and the administration.

The Labor Department reported that wage-benefit increases in major contract settlements for the first nine months dropped to 6.3 per cent over the life of contract from 7.4 per cent for the entire year 1972.

—There is an element that always believes Americans are into credit over their heads, despite the consistent repayment of that debt by borrowers. Now they have something substantial to think about.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House says it's considering whether to publicly pinpoint specific examples of what President Nixon calls "outrageous, vicious, distorted" reporting on television.

He didn't give specific examples or specific networks when he angrily made the charge last Friday night at his nationally televised news conference. And none has come from him yet.

But this week, on the CBS-TV "Morning News," White House speechwriter Patrick Buchanan cited two recent examples of network reporting he said aroused or justified Nixon's anger and concern.

And, in a telephone interview later, he gave a brief indication of the way the White House staff is closely monitoring network news programs for Nixon.

Buchanan, asked to cite other news reports that have angered the President, said, "Take a look at Monday night (Oct. 22) of the past week."

It was the first working day after the weekend uproar over Nixon's dismissal of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who resigned rather than carry out Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

"There were two defenses (of Nixon) — Anne Armstrong and Sen. Gurney," he said, referring to the presidential counselor and the GOP senator from Florida, respectively.

"And on each of the three networks they had Mr. Bork (Acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork), but in two of those Mr. Bork was portrayed in a negative light.

"I think this type of thing would argue the case for distortion, okay?"

Buchanan, who didn't identify the two networks he said adversely reported Bork's story, was asked to list the 19 separate attacks he said had been made on Nixon during the news shows.

"You get three by Meany on all three networks, Inouye was on all three networks," he said, referring to reports from the AFL-CIO's convention that day in Miami Beach, Fla.

At that convention, AFL-CIO President George Meany called on Nixon to resign or be impeached. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, also speaking at the convention, urged Nixon to resign.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., who said he'd introduce a resolution calling for Nixon's impeachment was on some reports, Buchanan said.

"You can review those (program transcripts) yourself and count 'em up," Buchanan added.

Next, if events and space permit, we'll try to describe what transcripts of the Oct. 22 news shows contain.

Buchanan was asked a final question:

Is the President angered at the reports per se, or is he angry at the commentary — clearly labeled as such by the networks — on the evening news shows?

"Why don't you raise that at the next press conference?" Buchanan said.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

THURSDAY, NOV. 1, 1973

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Curb a tendency toward pessimism. With good judgement and a bit of finesse you can make your outlook brighter, expand possibilities.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You may now have the responsibility of handling another's financial affairs. Do so with care. Dependence upon you is great.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Make decisions only after careful investigation. Expend energies to elicit lasting results. Avoid the "quick" return" angle: It is fraught with traps.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

You are now at a point where you can assert your views and succeed at pioneering efforts. Many are receptive and gain is indicated.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Don't try to buck present trends or you may find yourself at unhappy variance with associates who could be helpful. Scrutinize all offerings carefully.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Your goal now should be to capture the attention of those in a position to help further your aims, so polish up your wares — and your personality.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Your stars warn against undue exertion, scattering energies, unwisely attempting to handle the unfamiliar. In general, stick to routine.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Avoid extremes. There's a tendency now to make mountains of molehills, to lose control of temper, emotions generally. Forewarned is forearmed!

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Be careful in handling personal affairs; there may be some tricky areas, some kinks to iron out before taking action. Some conflict of interests indicated.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A fine project begun recently will bog down unless you keep it in mind, mull over details, plan a tighter fitting of its "jigsaw" pieces.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Do not let the unfamiliar keep you from accepting it on that basis alone. Where you carefully check for flaws and find none, invite the innovation.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Your artistry and creativity stimulated. A time to "dress up" old ideas and methods and make them more practical

YOU BORN TODAY are a quick-thinking and quick-acting individual, self-assured and unusually self-reliant. Your Sign, Scorpio, has given the world many highly original people — brilliant scientists, clever inventors, outstanding writers and musicians. You are creative, imaginative and magnetic of personality but you MUST curb tendencies toward obstinacy and overaggressiveness or you may alienate many who could prove invaluable allies along your way. The law and medicine are excellent fields for your talents, and, in the latter, you could become an excellent diagnostician or internist.

Garman warns against voter apathy

Rotary speaker stresses importance of Issue 1

Unless state tax laws are revised by the approval of Issue No. 1 by the voters at the polls next Tuesday, many farmers within relatively close proximity of cities and towns will be taxed out of business, Walter Garman, organization director for Farm Bureaus in Fayette, Greene and Clinton counties, told the Rotary Club meeting Tuesday noon.

In a nutshell, Issue No. 1, provides that farm land be taxed on its value as farm land and not on the basis of its potential value for commercial purposes.

Garman cited one example in Montgomery County where the tax on a farm under cultivation near a shopping center development at Dayton skyrocketed from $3,000 to $36,000 a year.

He also pointed out that under present laws, a tax based on the potential commercial use of land could take it out of agricultural production at a time when the world need for food is increasing steadily.

He noted, as another example, that in Franklin County, there are 450 farms in agricultural production and that many of them within close proximity of rapidly expanding Columbus are in danger of being appraised on their potential commercial value and taxed out of production.

GARMAN, who also presented a film strip and taped commentary, declared that more and more farms are being taken out of production by industrial and business expansion of cities, residential developments, highways and the like.

He said there is no apparent opposition to Issue No. 1 in the General Assembly but that voter apathy could lead to its defeat at the election. The principal threat to approval of Issue No. 1, he said, probably is in the cities where voters do not understand the problems involved or the intent of the proposal.

The program was arranged by Jack Brennan and the meeting was conducted by Vice President Paul Crosby.

Jack Cartwright, of Pennington Bread, Inc., was inducted as a new member of the club.

Student guests were Mark Essman, of WSHS, and Tom Payton, of MTHS.

Jim Wilson was the guest of Carl Elberfeld, and Chuck Winkle was with his father, George Winkle.

Visiting Rotarians were Darrell French, of Wilmington, Dr. Robert Smith, of Circleville, and Art Dick, of Mount Sterling. Garman also is a member of the Wilmington Rotary Club.

Glenn says reform bill 'good start'

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP)— Former astronaut John H. Glenn called administration proposals for state campaign finance reforms a "good start" Tuesday, but said the state could go further.

Glenn called for measures to encourage "the small giver" and to limit the amount an individual could contribute in a year.

The New Concord Democrat suggested a limit from $100 to $500.

A constitutional amendment permitting donors to subtract campaign contributions from their income tax might make small givers consider a donation an investment in their political system, he said.

Such an amendment could take campaign financing out of the hands of big business and special interests, he said.

Speaking at a news conference following the third annual meeting of Henry County Democrats, Glenn said he would not be discouraged if the governor appointed Cleveland industrialist Howard M. Metzenbaum to the U.S. Senate seat possibly being vacated early by William B. Saxbe to take an appointed governmental post.

He told reporters they could expect an announcement on his candidacy for the U.S. Senate "later this year."

Glenn lost the Democratic nomination for the Senate to Metzenbaum in 1970.

Earlier this fall, Glenn charged publicly that Gov. John J. Gilligan and top state Democrats pressured him to accept the nomination for lieutenant governor to clear the Senate race for Metzenbaum.

CLASSROOM EXERCISE — Specialist Dennis D. Brown instructs fellow peace officers in keeping the peace under the drastically revised Ohio Criminal Code.

Peace officers study new Code

"Cop," "pig," "fuzz," "the man," "the law," are all slang expressions you should be hearing for the last time.

Under the new revisions of the Ohio Criminal Code, Section 109.71 all law enforcement agents are defined as "peace officers."

The new Criminal Code was adopted by the Ohio General Assembly in December, 1972 and is to become effective on Jan. 1, 1974. There have been no major changes in the code since 1815.

The 21,000 law officers throughout the State of Ohio being trained in the new Criminal Code are doing so to retain their standing. The Code also states that any law enforcement agent without the 40-hour training course holds an invalid certificate and ceases to be "A Peace Officer."

The Code has been met with mixed emotions. The older peace officers have admitted experiencing difficulty in making all the new changes, while the younger peace officers are happy with the much shortened, more simplified Code.

The two groups hit upon common ground when it comes to discussing the consistency in law practice the Code will bring about.

SINCE EVERYONE involved in law in the state of Ohio is required to use the same training manual, there will be a far narrower margin of individual interpretation of the law.

A judge, lawyer, or peace officer is more likely to interpret, enforce, punish or pardon in the same manner his fellow law enforcing agents in the other areas of the state are doing.

This is summed up by the message the attorney general of Ohio, William J. Brown, wrote in the preface of the training manuel.

"Law enforcement rests on the loyalty and dedication of officers who not only believe and trust in the law, but also understand it. That is why this manuel has been prepared to ensure that all peace officers throughout the State of Ohio receive a consistent program of quality education in the Criminal Code."

The four peace officers in Washington C.H. qualified to teach the revised code are: Chief of Police Rodman Scott, Specialists Dennis D. Brown and Larry M. Hott, of the Police Department, and Sheriff Don Thompson, of the Sheriff's Department.

These men became qualified by taking a 16-hour crash course, divided into two 8-hour sessions, taught in Columbus.

Brown and Hott are conducting the course on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. til 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The men involved are taking the course on their off-duty time. The 40-hour course should end in about four weeks, and then another course will start immediately for those who had to work while the others were being trained.

Foreign sources rip Cox firing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox drew a barrage of criticism in the foreign press ranging in intensity from a chiding "ill-conceived step" in the Japan Times to "democracy vomits" in the London Daily Mirror.

"President Nixon committed an ill-conceived step whose consequences he presumably had not foreseen," said the Japan Times. "It is not surprising, therefore, that an increasing number of U.S. legislators regard impeachment ... as the only avenue left to restrain President Nixon."

The Asahi Shimbun said Nixon's "strongarm tactic is lamentable."

The London Daily Mirror, under a large headline reading "The Late Mr. Nixon," said "the only question that remains is will Richard Nixon display one single spark of decency and remove himself?"

The tabloid devoted the bulk of its first two pages to a fiery condemnation of Nixon. "Whatever the problems of getting rid of their president, no democracy can live on this surfeit of trickery, double-dealing and abrasive contempt for the rule of law he pretends in public speeches to uphold," it said.

The Times of London declared that "the concept of an extra-legal presidency has no place in the American Constitution."

Hong Kong's English-language South China Morning Post called Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal a "shabby performance." But the newspaper found that the crisis "has strangely illumined the strength of the American scheme of government."

The suspicion that Nixon's domestic havoc was linked to the U.S. troop alert last week was cited by several British editors.

"Even here Watergate insinuates its all-corrupting doubt," said the Daily Mail of the U.S. Soviet confrontation.

But the Daily Telegraph said the "public campaign against Nixon overreached itself" in the suggestion that the alert was staged.

The Times called the notion that the confrontation was concocted "a sad commentary on the situation in Washington and the standing of the administration."

Justice Department faces long twilight

BY MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raw from the wounds of Watergate, the Justice Department is putting on a brave face and turning inward to mend.

It was to have been the show piece for a law and order President. It became a house beset by one morale-shattering upheaval after another.

As the scandal unfolded with the spring, one attorney general was accused of crimes and other standard bearers were accused of impropriety. The mood was glum.

President Nixon turned then to Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus, two administration men who stood untouched and generally regarded as honorable, truthful, upright. They were sent as the rescuers to convince a doubting public that Justice, too, housed those virtues.

"There was a ferment of ideas, an enthusiasm they generated," an associate recalls now.

With Richardson as attorney general and Ruckelshaus as his deputy, debate bounced incessantly around the burnished walnut conference table. Memos flew like wildfire.

Gone were the days of John N. Mitchell, Nixon's first attorney general, a man now accused of violating the law he was supposed to enforce.

Gone were the 10 months of Richard Kleindienst, a man who resigned as the scandal lapped close to him.

And gone now are Richardson and Ruckelshaus, who promised justice devoid of politics, promised a Watergate investigation free of outside pressure, and quit as the ultimate act to keep the vow.

Richardson made it his mission to restore public confidence in the Justice Department in a campaign of speeches backed up step by step with action. There were indications he was succeeding.

There were even stronger indications that he had cheered disheartened employes languishing for a champion.

Ten days ago, cheer abruptly turned to despair. Ranking officials considered resigning but kept their agony to themselves.

"Where do we go from here? I don't know. No one knows. It's too soon," mourned a division head.

As the week wore on, ranking officials agreed to stay in answer to urgent pleas from Solicitor General Robert H. Bork who became acting attorney general and assumed responsibilities his academic training left him ill-prepared to handle.

With the Watergate case dominating his attention, he urged department officials to carry on as they could have under Richardson.

The uncertainty of a caretaker chief now is compounded by Bork's avowed position on the restructured Watergate investigation and the special prosecutor he is soon to appoint.

Just as Richardson did with the first prosecutor, Bork says he will tolerate no interference with the investigation and the man running it. As did Richardson he suggests he would resign rather than compromise the probe.

If Bork avoids a confrontation forcing him to quit, he could remain for months as acting attorney general. The President seems unlikely to nominate a successor, subject to Senate confirmation, until smoother sailing is in sight on Capitol Hill.

In view of the long uncertain months ahead, Justice Department officials were left guessing about the future of Richardson's pet projects.

Some undoubtedly will collapse, but Richardson himself soon will write Bork urging him to press forward with proposals key to the depoliticizing effort.

Personal advisers to Richardson and Ruckelshaus have agreed to stay at the department long enough to wrap up details of those projects and ease the transition.

Department sources say that one of the most important projects — a top to bottom review of the FBI — probably will continue but may not be carried as far as Richardson and Ruckelshaus wished.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has cooperated with the internal review, but has never pushed it.

Richardson's departure also cast doubt on the fate of legislation he intended to propose to Congress to guard computer files maintained by the FBI and other government agencies from outside snoopers.

The proposal, designed to protect individual rights to privacy, has been circulated to other government agencies for comment and would have been sent to Congress within a few months. Sources said the White House so far has taken no position on it.

Richardson had planned to announce last week a tentative proposal for removing the political endorsements traditionally required for the appointment of federal judges.

He plans to make the same proposal as a private citizen, but whether the administration now will adopt it remains uncertain.

Richardson had been on the verge of creating an inspector general's office as a Justice Department watchdog to investigate accusations of wrongdoing on the part of department employes.

He was almost ready to issue regulations imposing new restrictions on government wiretaps.

Richardson had strengthened the attorney general's authority over U.S. attorneys and at the same time, appointed 16 of them to an advisory committee to give them a larger policymaking voice.

A knowledgeable source predicted that the attorneys, faced with uncertain leadership in Washington, will reassert control over their private baronies.

Two days before his resignation, Richardson issued regulations overhauling the department's management structure. Much of that system will operate as Richardson intended, said officials involved in setting it up.

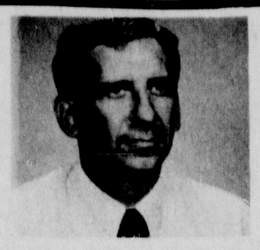

But one key element — an "executive secretariat" designed as a final filter on research papers going to the attorney general — may fall by the wayside.

The management specialist Richardson had chosen to set up the office had not yet joined the department and probably won't now.

Richardson considered orderly management an essential tool for his long-range goal of bringing coordinated planning to separate parts of the criminal justice system.

Chest campaign slowing down?

The Community Chest campaign appears to be slowing down, to the deep concern of the board of directors and the campaigners themselves, after it has reached 58 per cent of the $27,000 goal.

Only approximately $1,200 in cash and pledges was added over the long weekend to bring the total up to $15,700 — last Thursday it was $14,500.

The city residential canvass has been virtually completed, President Lee Lynch said last week.

The solicitation in the rural area of the county is being conducted by mail and no reports from that are expected to come in for several days, Jim Dunn, the secretary-treasurer, said.

Indications are that the house-to-house campaign in Bloomingburg and Jeffersonville are progressing.

THE LAG is among the employe and business groups, the reports show. These are the keystones of the campaign. Of the 44 employe groups, reports by 24 are still incomplete. And of the 300 businesses, industries and professional groups, 100 remain to be heard from.

Pledge and receipt cards have been left with the chairmen of these various groups, but the follow-through has been slow.

DUNN SAID if anyone who has been missed wants to make a contribution, a check may be mailed to the Community Chest, Post Office Box 598.

Lynch said today he is still confident the $27,000 goal will be reached by the Nov. 15 target date.

Programs of 10 local organizations will be supported next summer by the Community Chest.

Chicago 7 contempt case brings call for dismissal

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys for the seven defendants and two lawyers in the Chicago riot conspiracy case say the government should drop contempt charges against them or put Judge Julius J. Hoffman and the prosecutors on trial as well.

At the conclusion of the government's case in a contempt trial Tuesday, attorneys for the seven defendants and their lawyers, William M. Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass, said the only evidence — the 23,000-page conspiracy trial transcript — was insufficient to prove contempt.

Defense attorney Morton Stavis of New York City argued that disorders during the 4½month trial before Hoffman in U.S. District Court stemmed from the judge's conduct at the outset of the case.

Hoffman ordered four defense lawyers jailed the first day of the trial and later had an eighth defendant, Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, gagged in the courtroom. Seale's case later was severed from those of the other seven.

Stavis accused Hoffman of setting the tone for the often chaotic trial with "a steady erosion of the standards of conduct through a pattern of insults, harassment and the most petty kind of unfairness."

At the end of the trial in February 1970, Hoffman accused the seven defendants and two lawyers of committing 175 acts of contempt. All but 52 of the citations have been dropped.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the citations and returned the charges to District Court for trial. The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge Edward T. Gignoux of Portland, Maine.

Weinglass told Gignoux Tuesday that unless Hoffman and the prosecutors, former U.S. District. Atty. Thomas A. Foran and his assistant, Richard Schultz, are also charged with contempt, the current trial will violate the fairness doctrine of the equal protection section of the U.S. Constitution.

Weinglass argued that Hoffman, Foran and Schultz have in effect already been judged guilty of contempt by the appeals court. In sending the case back to the District Court, the appeals panel criticized all three.

Captured Soviet Missile gets once-over by U.S.,-Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to share in the knowledge gained by Israel in its capture of an advanced Soviet-built missile unit.

U.S. government sources report the Israeli army captured intact an SA6 antiaircraft system, which inflicted heavy losses on Israel's U.S.-equipped air force in its first combat test during the latest Middle East war.

U.S. military officials are anxious to learn in detail how the SA6 operates, and how to foil it, because American planes may face it in any confrontation with the Soviet Union. It is believed U.S. experts may work with Israeli technicians in studying the system.

The SA6, used in combination with other Soviet-made antiaircraft weapons, was credited with knocking down roughly half of the more than 100 airplanes Israel lost in fighting the Egyptians and Syrians.

Most of the downed planes were U.S.-manufactured F4 Phantom and A4 Skyhawk jets.

The deadly accuracy of the Soviet-built weapons alarmed both Israeli and U.S. military officials because they lacked the right electronic equipment to jam or confuse the SA6's sophisticated guidance system.

Experts say the SA6, mounted on tank tracks, is very mobile and is most effective against planes attacking at low level. Many of the Israeli planes destroyed by the SA6 were flying low to strike at Egyptian and Syrian tanks.

U.S. sources said an SA6 missile battery, its radar and guidance equipment were seized intact by Israeli troops after they thrust across the Suez Canal into Egypt on Oct. 16.

The Israeli command spoke of destroying and overruning Egyptian missile and artillery positions, but the capture of the SA6 was kept secret.

Winter wheat planting up, but still behind schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fall planting of winter wheat for harvest next year gained sharply in Kansas and other plains areas by last weekend, but the crop was still behind normal schedule, the Agriculture Department says.

"By Oct. 28, winter wheat seeding had advanced to 80 per cent complete in Kansas, 92 per cent complete in Oklahoma, 91 per cent in Texas and about 100 per cent complete in Colorado," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather bulletin.

Normally, winter wheat planting is 95 per cent done in Kansas by Oct. 28, the report said. In many areas heavy rain delayed planting for weeks or washed out many acres which already had been seeded.

That has prevented early growth of wheat in much of the plains area where the crop normally provides valuable grazing for livestock and helps assure survival against extreme cold during winter months.

Over-all, last week's sunny weather helped the fall harvest of corn and soybeans over a wide area. In the Corn Belt, the corn harvest was 38 per cent complete by Oct. 28, ahead of the 32 per cent rate last year. Nationally, about 43 per cent of the crop was picked.

But the western area of the Corn Belt still had harvest hangups, the report said. The Iowa crop was about 26 per cent harvested, compared with 29 per cent in 1972 and the historical average of 38 per cent complete by Oct. 28.

The soybean crop nationally was about 64 per cent harvested by Oct. 28, compared with 56 per cent last year, the report said.

Set refurbishing of 'Foster Spring'

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The "Foster Spring," which has provided free drinking water to travelers along Foster-Mainville Road for more than a century, will be refurbished by the Warren County Commission.

Health authorities closed the spring after making tests of the water last week. The spring is located on the Girl Scouts Camp Butterworth property.

Amendment backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to streamline Ohio's system of courts has been endorsed by the state Democratic party.

But state Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said Tuesday he objects to a provision that would permit judges to receive pay raises while in office.

State board frees funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Controlling Board has released $4.5 million to the Ohio Department of Health to treat indigent persons injured in automobile accidents.

The program previously was handled by the state Department of Highway Safety.

The board, the watchdog of state money, also released Monday $6.9 million for Columbus to build a sewage treatment plant on the city's south side, and authorized expenditure of:

—$492,375 for a library at Youngstown State University.

—$112,000 for alterations on the old student union building at Kent State University.

—$428,000 for a library and health science education building at the Medical College of Ohio in Toledo.

—$200,000 for police and fire protection at Kent, Bowling Green, Athens and Oxford.

—$419,362 for the purchase of 103 school buses.

Small county officials wary of 'Issue 3' on state ballot

By GEORGE MALEK

The "monster" hidden in the shadows of Issue 3, has begun to raise its head in the minds of judges in thinly-populated counties throughout Ohio.

The Carroll County Bar Association recently released a letter stating their objectives to Issue 3, and similar objectives have been expressed by judges in Fayette and Highland counties.

Issue 3 on the November ballot is titled a "proposed constitutional amendment relative to administration and organization of the courts of Ohio." It will appear on the ballot in the following form:

This amendment:

1. Allows two or more counties to be combined to form common pleas court districts with judges elected from such districts.

2. Allows creation of divisions of common pleas courts with judges elected to specific divisions.

3. Includes municipal and county court judges within the provisions of the modern courts amendment adopted in 1968. This will enable judges of these courts to receive in-term pay increases. They would also be subject to the same rules which apply to judges of other courts. These rules were adopted in the 1968 modern courts amendment.

CONTAINED within this single paragraph are four major changes in Ohio law.

Most widely publicized is the point that its passage would enable municipal court judges to receive pay raises during their term of office.

Included in the amendment is the provision that municipal judges be barred from engaging in the private practice of law during their term on the bench.

There also is a twofold provision for the restructuring of the common pleas court system. Passage would allow creation of divisions of the common pleas courts with judges elected to specific divisions, and would allow two or more counties to be combined to form common pleas court districts. The district would then elect a judge to preside over the entire district.

THE OBJECTION from Southern Ohio judges centers on this last provision.

While the voters are being told of the injustice of freezing a man's salary for six years, the districting of thinly-populated counties has been lost in the shuffle.

Fayette County Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman said that passage of the measure "could be the first step in losing the right to local government."

Probate-Juvenile Judge Rollo M. Marchant said that, "It may have been thrown in merely to cloud the issue since the pay raise was defeated at the polls once before," but it could have major repercussions for residents of the smaller counties.

Both judges feel that if two counties were combined to form a district, a judge running from the larger county would have a decided advantage and once in office would be more intent on satisfying the needs of the larger county since it offers greater potential for his re-election.

"We have had district courts of appeals for many years," said Judge Coffman, "but there has never been a Fayette County judge on the bench."

FAYETTE COUNTY is the smallest county in population in the 10-county second district of the court of appeals. At present two of the three appeals judges in the district are from Dayton, which has nearly twice the population of the largest county in the district outside Montgomery County where the city is located.

Montgomery County as a whole has more voters than the other nine counties combined.

Municipal Judge James Hapner in Hillsboro, who stands to gain $2000 per year if the issue passes, is opposed to the change for the same reasons. "We've never had a court of appeals judge from this county." "They'll all be from the bigger counties, and they'll spend all their time serving the bigger counties."

Highland County Probate-Juvenile Judge Richard L. Davis echoed similar sentiments. Courts in counties the size of Highland (approximately the same as Fayette) "are directly available to the people, he said, they offer quick hearings and uncrowded conditions. He added that combining the courts into district would create a backlog of cases, and parties could wait two or three years to have a case heard.

JUDGE COFFMAN said that when the courts recognized the backlog of cases a few years ago and demanded that steps be taken to ease the situation, Fayette County had a clean docket. There was no backlog here. In fact, Judge Coffman has been asked to sit on the bench in Dayton at times in order to help Montgomery County to catch up.

The areas unable to handle their cases are the large counties. Combining smaller counties would help to create the overload which we have thus far avoided, according to her.

Judge Coffman favors the restriction that municipal judges be barred from outside sources of income. That would alleviate any possible conflict of interest.

This stipulation, area judges feel, could only be presented as part of a package similar to Issue 3 which allowed for salary increases.

Each wished that the districting of counties had been offered as a separate issue from the pay increases and conflict of interest safeguards.

But with the possibility of losing local control over the common pleas court system lurking in the shadows of the current proposal, they felt obligated to oppose the issue.

Municipal Court Judge M. Winegardner currently is on vacation and was unavailable for comment.

Recycling of aluminum big success

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Aluminum recycling programs are "growing by leaps and bounds" and may make the metal one of the cheapest to use, Reynolds Metals Co. officials say.

Richard N. Bolling, manager of Reynolds' recycling division, said Monday his company's recycling activity now produces as much aluminum as if the company had built a new potline, a row of electrolytic cells used in the production of the metal.

Speaking at a meeting on aluminum recycling, he said the process costs but a fraction of a potline and uses only 5 per cent of the power required to produce an equal amount of primary aluminum.

The aluminum industry has been under fire for its high electrical consumption as the Northwest enters the winter with power reservoirs far below normal.

T.E. Feagin, director of marketing for the division, said that while it takes as much as three times the electricity to make a pound of aluminum as it does to make a pound of steel, it takes about a third less of the lightweight metal to make one can.

Bolling and Feagin said that although the aluminum recycling effort was instituted under pressure by environmentalists concerned with can litter, pilot programs found that environmental concern alone wasn't enough to get public cooperation.

They said the program took off when the industry offered 10 cents a pound for used cans.

They said two major Seattle breweries recycled more than two million pounds of aluminum during September.

SCOL title chunk looms for Lions

Overflow crowd expected for 13th backyard brawl

BY MIKE FLYNN

The 13th anniversary of the mythical Fayette County football championship series will be epitomized Friday night and this year's renewal of the annual grudge match has been destined to have a special meaning all along.

An overflow crowd is expected to be on hand when top-ranked Washington comes calling at Miami Trace for the 8 p.m. headbanger in which so much will be at stake.

THE ANNUAL backyard brawl, as in the past, will be crucial for both teams, however, at least a chunk of the 46th South Central Ohio League championship will be hanging in balance for the title-hungry Washington C.H. team.

Unbeaten Washington, bidding for its finest football campaign in 21 years, can discard a perennial SCOL bridesmaid label and almost wrap the ribbons around its first league loving cup in five years with a win over arch-rival Miami Trace.

The high-flying Blue Lions, coasting along with an unblemished 4-0 SCOL chart and alone atop the league heap, will be risking a glittering 8-0 all-games record when veteran head coach Maurice Pfeifer tries to out-guess Miami Trace head coach Fred Zechman in the intra-county rivalry.

Miami Trace, riddled by injuries in recent weeks, has been on a rather upsy-downsy pattern this fall.

The Panthers, 5-3 overall, watched their chances for a second undisputed SCOL title in three years vanish in a nerve-racking 19-6 loss to always-tough Wilmington two weeks ago. But, the Panthers have beaten Hillsboro, defending champion Circleville and Greenfield to carry a neat 3-1 league tab into Friday's important showdown. The Panthers are tightly bunched with Wilmington for the league's second place perch.

Washington C.H., ranked atop both state wire service polls, has won six games and lost five since the natural rivalry was inaugurated during the season. The 1962 game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Miami Trace, however, holds a two-game winning spree in the series and the old "homefield hex" favors the Panthers heading into the SCOL's feature attraction. Washington C.H. has managed only one win in five outings on Miami Trace soil.

And until last season when Miami Trace rolled to a 40-20 win, the Panthers had not posted a victory over Washington C.H. in six starts at Gardner Park Stadium.

Defense is Washington C.H.'s strong suit. The persistent Blue Lion defenders fired seven consecutive shutouts before allowing Circleville to score a harmless third quarter touchdown in last week's 20-7 win.

The stubborn Lion defense,led byAll-Ohio prospects John Sanderson and Garth Cox, had piled up 30 straight scoreless quarters this season and 35 over a two-year span before Circleville ruined the incredible string last week.

A new school record looms for the Lion defensive secondary Friday. The Lions have picked off 17 enemy passes so far and need only one more interception to shatter a record set by the legendary 1952 team.

The potent Lion offense, which has stacked up a staggering 278-7 scoring advantage thus far, is sparked by clever-stepping tailback Chuck Wilson, the SCOL's leading scorer with 134 points. Wilson has rushed for 1,100 yards in 176 carries.

Alan Coppock has engineered the Lion offense by completing 59.4 per cent of his passes for 642 yards. Washington C.H. also features slick Mark Johnson, who has grabbed 20 passes for 399 yards, and pile-driving fullback Larry Dumford.

THE MIAMI Trace offense has been bouyed by Tom Riley, a durable 165-pound junior quarterback, who ranks fourth in the SCOL scoring statistics with 53 points in eight games. Sophomore Bruce Ervin displayed some pin-point passing in Miami Trace's win over Greenfield last week, but the young signal-caller suffered an injury in a reserve game on Saturday

Riley is a double-threat artist, especially on the Panthers' dangerous option play, and Zechman also has hard-running senior fullback Doug Ford, the team's top ground gainer, and shifty junior halfback Jeff Sagar to get the ground game purring properly. Junior Jay Mossbarger, a rugged double duty ace, is perhaps Riley's favorite target from his tight end position. Mossbarger ranks among the top 10 league scorers with 34 points.

Big John Woodrow and hard-working sophomore Gregg Cobb pace a rangy group of Panther defenders. The Panther defense has forced shutouts against Columbus Ready and Hillsboro.

MT's Players of Week

Two juniors and a sophomore have been chosen as Miami Trace's Players of the Week for their performances in last Friday's 20-14 win over Greenfield McClain.

Top offensive honors went to junior tight end Jay Mossbarger. Tied for the top spot on the defense were junior Jim Glass and sophomore Tony Carter. All three players were selected by the Miami Trace coaching staff, after viewing the game films, in the Record-Herald's eighth weekly poll.

Mossbarger, a strong tight-end, pulled in two passes for 30 yards with one of the receptions giving the Panthers four tries to cross the goal from only eight yards out.

But Mossbarger's main contribution came on his fine execution of blocking assignments. Continually, the talented end leveled Greenfield players that were in persuit of Panther runners.

FINISHING second for top offensive honors were Jeff Smithson, who pulled in two passes for 60 yards, and Tom Reisinger, at center.

Tied for the top spot on the defensive team were junior Jim Glass, picked for the second week in a row, and sophomore Tony Carter, who filled in for the injured Jeff Long.

Glass, a defensive safety, accounted for eight individual tackles and had help on five other sacks, truly an outstanding individual performance.

Carter, who hasn't had much varsity experience, filled in for Long at a defensive linebacker spot came up with three solo tackles and 12 assists. Headcoach Fred Zechman reported that the coaching staff was pleased with Carter's play.

The Panthers' "big lick" awards went to Mossbarger for an offensive block on one of Greenfield's defensive linemen and to Jim Pendergraft for a jarring tackle on a kickoff.

Coming in just one defensive point behind Glass and Carter was Donald Dunton for his fine play in the middle.

The Panthers are tied with Wilmington for second place in the South Central Ohio League and meet the top team, Washington C.H., Friday at Miami Trace Field.

Cowboys win crown in MT junior loop

In the Miami Trace junior high league action Tuesday evening the Bengals topped the Rams 20-14 and the Cowboys finished of the Browns 32-6.

The Bengals again got a good performance from Craig Dement as he ran for one touchdown and connected with Rick Bobbitt for another score. David Creamer ran for the other six-pointer and David Glass put two-points on the board with the conversion.

The Rams scoring came from C.J. Nicley as the talented runner scored twice from better than 10 yards. Tom Tarbutton ran the extras on one of the touchdowns.

In the second game of the night the Cowboys kept their perfect season alive with a victory over the Browns.

Art Schlichter again led in the scoring department. Schlichter collected three touchdowns by running and tossed a 17-yard pass to Joe Garland for another score. Dean Farris ran for the other touchdown. Schlichter also ran for one of the conversions.

The Browns only score came on a one-yard run by Scott Martin in the fourth quarter.

The games Tuesday evening ended the season for the four teams. The Cowboys finished on top with a perfect 5-0 record with the Bengals coming in second with a 3-2 mark. In third place was the Browns with a record of 2-3 and on the bottom was the Rams at 0-5.

OSU team tremendous, Warmath says

CHICAGO (AP) — Most Big Ten Conference coaches shy away from making comparisons of top-ranked Ohio State and No. 4 Michigan, who appear headed for another showdown for the league title and Rose Bowl bid.

But former Minnesota Coach Murray Warmath who now does color commentary on Gopher broadcasts, says, "The day we played them it was the best Ohio State team I have ever seen that early in the season. I just don't know how good they really are."

Ohio State trounced Minnesota 56-7 early in the season and Michigan beat the Gophers 34-7 last Saturday.

Warmath indicated as to how good Ohio State might be is the fact that, "their kicking game was great and sharp for an opener. Usually a team's kicking game doesn't sharpen up until later in the season. There are too many other things to work on.

"It's unusual for Ohio State to be that sharp early in the season. Woody (Coach Woody Hayes) usually brings his team along slowly but I never saw a sharper team.

"They're No. 1 and I'd like to know what team can rank ahead of them.

"Their quarterback, Cornelius Greene, is quicker with his feet than a drummer boy playing 'Dixie.'

Say letdown cost Browns

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns wide receiver Frank Pitts said the Browns let down Sunday and that was the big factor in their inability to defeat the San Diego Charters.

The Browns were 13-point favorites but only managed to even the Chargers at 16-16 on a rain-soaked field.

"We weren't up for the game," Pitts said. "It's hard to get up for a game with a team that has a record like San Diego."

The Chargers entered the game with a 1-5 showing.

"We went out there with the attitude we would win, but we prolonged things and got off to a slow start," Pitts said.

Pitts came to the Browns during the 1971 preseason from the Kansas City Chiefs and has been a starter since. During his first two years with Cleveland he collected 63 receptions for 1,107 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Grid knowledge not necessary for foreign-born prep kicker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A foreign-born Steubenville Central Catholic High School kicker doesn't understand football. But try convincing his opponents.

Vince D'Ortenzio, who came to the United States from Italy a year ago, booted a school record 43-yard field goal as the Steubenville team edged Louisville Aquinas 10-7 last week.

D'Ortenzio has kicked three field goals in four tries in his first brush with the American sport, even if he knows little about it.

Around Ohio: Williamsburg of Clermont County has a school record 26 straight victories. Some other winning streaks—Dayton Jefferson 37, Warren Western Reserve 25, Cincinnati Reading 23, Gahanna 21.

Springfield South dedicated its homecoming game to Tony January, who died in University of Toledo football practice in September. South produced its second straight victory 24-0 over Columbus North, the first time the Wildcats had won two in a row since 1971.

East Canton gambled and lost against Tuscarawas Valley last week. East Canton went for the winning two-point conversion in the last minute, failed and lost its first 1973 game 14-13.

The Miami Valley League, one of Ohio's oldest, disbands after this season. Sidney and Piqua are charter members of the league formed in 1928. Other current teams included Springfield Catholic, Bellefontaine, Lima Catholic and Lima Shawnee.

Willoughby South's 32-8 decision over intersystem rival Eastlake North last week was South's first in 13 seasons over north. South is now 8-0 for the season.

Barberton's Bob Robertson has rushed for 597 yards in the last two games. He had 314 yards in 20 rushes against Lorain Southview last week and has 1,296 yards for 1973.

Salem and East Liverpool, Columbiana County's only Class AAA teams, played for the 54th time last week, East Liverpool prevailing 7-6.

Chillicothe snapped a 17-game Central Ohio League losing spell, trimming Marietta, 24-8.

Yellow Springs started varsity football last year and is seeking an unbeaten campaign. Bob Hartley's team is 8-0-0. Jefferson's 36 straight victories ties Miamisburg for the longest Dayton area streak in history.

Ashland's Chris Strine rushed for 220 yards in 31 carries against Dover, marking the eighth straight game he's gone over 100 ground yards.

Steve Schmitz of Lakewood St. Edward paces the Greater Cleveland area in scoring with 122 points after rolling up five touchdowns and two extra points against Cleveland Latin.

Ron Stewart's 237 yards for Lancaster in the upset of Newark was a junior rushing mark. It also was the second highest one-game total since Rex Kern in 1966.

Seaver wins Cy Young prize

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver once said he'd be happy to last five years in the majors. Today, he is the owner of a second Cy Young Award as the National League's best pitcher.

"When I first started playing, I told my wife I'd be happy to get five years in the big leagues," the New York Mets right-hander said Tuesday after winning his second Cy Young Award in seven seasons in the majors.

"Now I want to pitch until I'm 35," added the 28-year-old Seaver, who became the fourth pitcher in the 18-year history of the award to win it more than once and the first in either the National or American Leagues to win it without at least 20 victories for the season.

But Seaver, who posted a 19-10 record, and led the NL in strikeouts with 251 and in earned run average, 2.08, won comfortably over reliever Mike Marshall of Montreal and Ron Bryant of San Francisco, the league's only 20-game winner.

In voting by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, Seaver got 10 first-place votes and 70 points after being named on 21 ballots, more than any other candidate.

Marshall, who was 14-11 with 31 saves in 92 appearances for Montreal, got nine first-place votes and 54 points in posting the best Cy Young showing ever for a relief pitcher.

Bryant got three first-place votes and 50 points for his 24-12 performance. However, his ERA was 3.53 and he was the first National League 20-game winner to fail to record a shutout since Willie Sherdel of St. Louis in 1928.

Others receiving support were Jack Billingham of Cincinnati, who got the other two first-place votes and 30 points; Don Sutton of Los Angeles, seven points; Fred Norman of Cincinnati, three points, and Dave Gisuti of Pittsburgh, one point.

"It means an awful lot to me because of the name that's on it and because it goes to one pitcher in the league—and that's it," said Seaver after joining Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, 1963-65-66; Bob Gibson of St. Louis, 1968-70, and Denny McLain of Detroit in the American League, 1968-69, as multiple Cy Young Award winners.

"I really didn't think I'd win it," said Seaver, who also won in 1969 when he had a 25-7 record. "It was really a surprise because of the importance of winning 20 games. But all the other numbers (innings, strikeouts, earned run average, etc.) were there and I'm glad the voters looked at them.

"I think I pitched well enough to win 20," he added. During the regular season — post-season performances do not figure in the voting — Seaver lost 1-0 twice and 2-0, 2-1, 3-2 once each. The American League Cy Young winner will be named Nov. 7.

Tennessee State holds top spot in college grid poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Powerful Tennessee State remained on top and once-mighty Delaware almost tumbled out of the top ten in the Associated Press' weekly College Division football poll.

Tennessee State ran its record to 7-0 with a 21-6 decision over Southern University last Saturday. That was impressive enough to earn 28 of 45 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters Tuesday. Tennessee State collected 874 points.

Delaware, riding a 20-game winning streak two weeks ago, was beaten by Temple 31-8. It was the Blue Hens' second straight loss, against six victories, and virtually ended their hopes for a third consecutive college division national title.

Delaware fell from second in the poll last week down to 10th this week.

Hawaii, 6-0, took over second place after edging Nevada-Las Vegas 31-29. The Rainbows picked up six first-place votes and 775 points.

Western Kentucky jumped from fifth to third on the strength of a 34-7 romp over Morehead State. Western Kentucky, 7-0, collected 635 points and two first-place votes.

Cal Poly-SLO, 6-0 after beating Fresno State 28-14, remained fourth with 529 points and five first-place votes. South Dakota, 7-1, advanced one spot to fifth after beating Augustana, S.D. 28-21.

Louisiana Tech, also 7-1, climbed two places to sixth following a 26-7 victory over Southeastern Louisiana. Wittenberg got two first-place votes and held seventh place after topping Mount Union 35-17 for its seventh straight victory.

North Dakota State, 8-1, moved up two spots to eighth and got one first-place vote after trimming South Dakota State 24-14. Boise State, 6-1, crushed Montana 66-7 and jumped from 11th to ninth. Delaware was 10th.

Completing the top 15 were Elon, Nevada-Las Vegas, Grambling, Carson-Newman and Eastern Michigan. Elon had one first-place vote.

Kings beat St. Louis in hockey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If hockey games were 20 minutes rather than the regulation 60, there'd be some disagreement which 20 should count.

"It was a game that we could have gotten bombed in," said Los Angeles Kings Coach Bob Pulford, whose club was bombarded by 18 shots and two goals in the first period.

"We didn't work that last period," said St. Louis Blues Coach Jean Guy Talbot, whose club was worked over for 13 shots and two goals in the third period. "We can't stop shooting the puck when we get two goals."

The bad periods canceled each other out. That made Juha Widing's second-period goal the difference and gave the Kings a 3-2 victory over the Blues in their National Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Toronto pounded Detroit 7-0 and the New York Rangers and Vancouver Canucks skated to a 3-3 tie.

In the World Hockey Association games, Houston routed Minnesota 6-1; Quebec downed Los Angeles 6-4 and Chicago dumped Winnipeg 4-1.

Bengals eye clash with Cowboys

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Bengals are preparing for their first meeting with the Dallas Cowboys Sunday and especially for Cowboy quarterback, Cincinnati native Roger Staubach.

Both teams have 4-3 records and consider the contest at Dallas a must game for post season playoff contests.

Coach Paul Brown said he wasn't happy facing Dallas after the team's upset last week by the Philadelphia Eagles. He said he expects Dallas to be "up for this game."

Nevertheless, Bengals running back Essex Johnson was expected to take it easy most of the week. "He's very tired," said Brown of the veteran running back.

Rookie Lenvil Elliott is ticketed to replace Johnson for at least part of Sunday's game.

Defensive tackle Mike Reid, who missed last week's game at Pittsburgh because of back spasms, remains a doubtful starter.

Reid wore a back brace Tuesday and has not participated in practice.

Neal Colzie selected best on defense

CHICAGO (AP) — Neal Colzie, Ohio State's game-busting cornerback, has been named Big Ten defensive Player of the Week by the Associated Press for a second successive week.

Although Ohio State smashed Northwestern 60-0, the game was scoreless for the first 19 minutes until Colzie returned a Northwestern punt 45 yards to set up Ohio State's first touchdown.

George Chuvalo wins match with Boswell

BUFFALO (AP)—Canadian heavyweight George Chuvalo scored repeatedly with left-and-right combinations and finally stopped Mike Boswell in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

The Toronto veteran, whose record now goes to 73-16-2, weighed in at 224 and dominated the early action.

Carroll and Osborn called up by Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two pitchers have been called up from the Indianapolis Indians and elevated to the major league roster by the Cincinnati Reds for the 1974 season.

They are right-hander Tom Carroll, 20, and southpaw Pat Osburn, 24.

At the same time, the Reds sent reserve shortstop Ed Crosby, 24, outright to Indianapolis. He hit .216 in 36 games for the Reds after coming from St. Louis in a trade July 27.

Seniors of the week

By BARBARA MARVIN

"I would advise underclassmen to make the most of the short time they are here because graduation comes before you know it."

This advice comes from Kim Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fleming, Rt. 5, Washington C.H.

KIM IS active in National Honor Society, Future Teachers, Folksingers, Country Cousins 4-H Club, and Junior Leadership. She is secretary of the Dramatic Arts Club and co-editor of the MITRA.

Art is Kim's favorite class. Her other subjects are English Composition, Journalism, Drama Literature, American Government, Music Theory, Symphonic Choir, and Sociology.

Kim enjoys reading, writing, and craft-making. Bowling Green State University is Kim's choice as a place of higher education next year. She is interested in library sciences.

Mary Jo Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Thornton, Rt. 4 Washington C.H., is interested in becoming a medical or dental assistant.

Mary Jo attended Buckeye Girl's State this past summer. She is treasurer of Y-Teens, was inducted into National Honor Society last spring, is active in FHA and Symphonic Choir, and she teaches nursery-age children at the Bloomingburg Methodist Church.

Besides taking American Government, Family Living, Office Practice, Symphonic Choir, Sr. Homemaking, and Physiology, Mary Jo also works in the office where she assists the school secretaries. Sr. Homemaking and Physiology are Mary Jo's favorite subjects.

Mary Jo commented, "My years at Miami Trace have been very rewarding and a lot of fun. I've made many friends and will miss them when we graduate, but I am looking forward to graduation and the future. To the underclassmen, I would like to say, 'Make the most of your high school days, as they pass away very quickly'."

JULIE FROST, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frost, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, is very active both inside and out of school. She is a member of the Bloomingburg United Methodist Church, president of Y-Teens, student council member, Future Nurses president, secretary of National Honor Society, Marching and Symphonic Band president, junior leadership member, and belongs to both the Jolly Jills and Blue Ribbon Champs 4-H Clubs.

Julie has not definitely decided upon a career, but she hopes to make a career in the fields of nursing, elementary education, or special education. This year Julie's subjects include American Government, Advanced Math, Senior Choir, Senior Homemaking, Physiology, Speech, and Symphonic Band. Senior Homemaking is Julie's favorite class.

Julie's comment was, "I have really enjoyed my high school years and I know that I'll miss them very much; however, I am looking forward to graduation and college. To my teachers, I extend a special thanks for all their time and patience. Hopefully, my future schooling will be as enjoyable as that at Miami Trace."

FTAmembers make plans for new year

By BARB MARVIN

Students interested in teaching as a vocation met in Rooms-204 recently during activity period to join the Future Teachers of America organization.

Mrs. Theresa Craig, the advisor, met with the students and introduced several persons who informed the new members of the activities and the duties of the club.

Kim Fleming explained that the purpose of FTA was to acquaint students with the teaching job and to give them experience which would be helpful to them in the future.

Greg Detty informed the co-ed group that their most common activity would be substitute teaching which would take place either here at Miami Trace or at one of the elementary schools in the district. Greg also mentioned that the club would be involved in money-making projects so that at the year's end the club could donate two scholarships to deserving members.

The club elected its officers for the year. They are Marlene Braun, president; Barb Marvin, vice-president; Missy Doyle secretary; and Cindy Davis, treasurer.

Mrs. Craig concluded the meeting saying that the club had $160 in its treasury.

Eye committee on campaign bills

The expected choices are, in the Senate, Sens. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake; Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, and Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo.

House conferees, leaders said, probably will be Reps. Richard F. Celeste, D-5 Cleveland; Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, and Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville.

Star gazing party held

By LORA BROOKS

The students of Mrs. Engle's general science classes participated in a star gazing session at the high school recently. Besides supplementing the current study of our solar systems, stars, constellations, and galaxies, the star party helped provide students an opportunity to study stars and planets through a telescope.

Using a current star chart, a flashlight and the four-inch reflector telescope made by the Miami Trace Science Club, the group was able to locate and observe the constellations of Ursa Major, the Big Dipper; Ursa Minor, the Little Dipper; and Polaris, the North Star.

The planets Venus, Jupiter and Mars were also observed. These planets are very easy to locate. Venus is seen in the southwestern sky, and is very bright. High in the sourthern sky is Jupiter. Mars is located in the eastern sky by its red-yellow color.

FHA district rally staged in Hillsboro

By LINDA DUNCAN

The main part of the program for the evening was given by Dr. Glenn Doan and Dr. Barbara Lustgarten. They discussed drugs and venereal disease. They also talked about the free Open Door Clinic in Columbus.

Ohio Perspective

New state law in effect

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Custom hot rods with raised rear bumpers or with bumpers removed may get the owner arrested in Ohio beginning today.

This is the effective date of a new law enacted by the 110th General Assembly, banning the removal or alteration of bumper heights more than three inches from the manufacturers' levels.

It carries a $25 fine for the first violation, but provides for a fine of $50 to $500, or 60 days in jail, or both, for a subsequent offense.

Effective Jan. 1, 1974, when the new Ohio code goes into effect, the penalty goes to a $100 fine without any jail sentence. Subsequent offenses call for a maximum of 60 days in jail and a fine of $500.

State highway safety officials pressed for passage of the bill, citing instances in which the jacked up bumpers made cars unstable. They said rear end collisions involving cars with raised bumpers or with no bumpers result more often in fires.

The bill carries an exception for cars operated in areas other than on a public street or highway. It still will be permissible to operate them on race tracks or drag strips, or on other property that does not qualify as being a street or highway.

Another new law, effective today, exempts motion picture projectionists from liability in the showing of films judged as obscene or harmful to minors.

The exemption applies if the projectionist shows that his action is within the scope of his duties as an employe of the theater or its owner or manager, and that he has no managerial responsibilities and no financial interest in the theater other than his wages.

Other new laws effective today, 90 days after being signed by Gov. John J. Gilligan, provide that:

—Liquor may be sold on county fairgrounds during periods when fairs are not in session.

—The state may issue auto license plates for periods longer than a year and requiring the purchase of annual validation stickers, beginning in 1975.

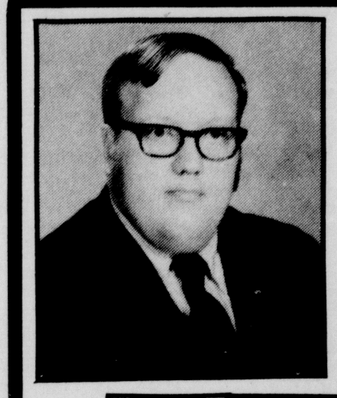

—Persons serving jail time for a misdemeanor or awaiting trial on a felony may cast absentee election ballots.

—Probate courts may destroy certain records after holding them 21 years.

Cincinnati agencies to conserve energy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— City Manager E. Robert Turner has ordered city agencies to cut back on use of gasoline and electricity to conserve energy.

Turner ordered new regulations limiting the use of city vehicles, except for emergency cars; a training program to improve driving habits of city employes; a 20-per cent reduction in travel mileage; cutting the heat in city buildings to between 70 and 72 degrees and turning out unneeded lights.

Archie Bunker is right; there is a difference

NEW YORK (AP)—It seems that Archie Bunker knows a thing or two after all.

The Queens director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has issued a report saying that there is indeed a difference between Jewish, Irish and Italian Americans.

For instance, he reports, in closely knit Italian and Jewish families, "both exhibit strong ties between mother and son," but the Jewish father is usually on the periphery, while the Italian father, embodying male strength, inspires fear."

Joseph Giordana's point is that psychiatrists treating patients of different backgrounds should be aware of ethnic differences.

Most observers agree that during the next 10 years or so, American cities will see increasing electrical brownouts. These are voltage reductions that cause electric motors to labor and burn out, TV pictures to shrink and lights to dim.

Opening lead - queen of spades.

The outcome of many contracts depends on how the defenders' 26 cards are divided. Naturally, in such hands, declarer should shape his play so as to give himself the best mathematical chance for the contract.

Here is a typical case. The opening lead is a spade and three rounds of the suit are played, South ruffing the third. Declarer cashes the K-Q of trumps and the question is what to do next.

If he leads a low diamond to the jack and the finesse succeeds, he makes the contract without further ado. However, the finesse offers only a 50 per cent chance of success and, if it loses, the contract will almost surely founder with it. East returns a diamond and South later loses a club.

Declarer should not adopt this method of play. Instead, he should plot a different course that raises his chances well beyond the 50-50 level.

The line of play that stands out a mile lies in chasing the A-K of clubs and playing a third round of the suit. One possibility is that East will win the third club, in which case South can claim the rest of the tricks, since East will be completely hors de combat.

If West wins the third club, as in the actual hand, he must yield a ruff and discard or return a diamond — and if he has either the queen or ten of diamonds the contract is ice cold.

If he has the queen, he is automatically dead. If he had the ten and leads it, covering with the jack eliminates the diamond loser, while if he plays a low diamond away from the ten, declarer simply follows low from dummy to trap East's queen.

Dizziness Is Not a Disease

Dizziness undoubtedly is one of the most common complaints brought to the attention of doctors.

Besides its distressing aspects, there is a temendous overlay of anxiety.

Many of my readers write to me about a condition that particularly terrifies them, namely, Meniere's disease.

For some strange reason, this condition is wrongly equated with all forms of dizziness.

Dizziness (vertigo) and Meniere's disease are not the same. Meniere's disease is comparatively rare. It was first described about 100 years ago by the doctor whose name is identified with it.

Sudden, severe, incapacitating dizzy spells, associated with noises in the head and progressive loss of hearing, suggest the possibility of Meniere's disease. But before the diagnosis is definitively made, many complex hearing and equilibrium studies are performed.

Dizziness of all kinds is known as "vertigo." A person may feel that he is standing still and objects are turning around him. Or, he may have the feeling that objects are standing still and that he is turning, falling or tumbling without control.

When some patients complain of dizziness they confuse it with headache, lightheadedness, blurred eyesight, faintness, and even a stomach upset.

Doctors are extremely careful in their interpretation of the patient's description of what he considers to be dizziness.

Another frequent misconception about dizziness is the identification of it with some inner ear disturbance. The reason for this is that the center of balance lies deep within the inner ear. Three tiny semi-circular canals contain droplets of fluid which constantly adjust to every change of position of the head.

This sensitive balance mechanism can be disturbed by a wide variety of conditions.

Dizziness is not a disease. Rather is it a symptom of some underlying condition. A partial list follows of the causes of dizziness that must be uncovered for proper diagnosis.

1. Allergy.
2. Toxic effects of coffee, tea, alcohol and tobacco.
3. High or low blood pressure.
4. Motion sickness in a plane, train or car.
5. Side effects of drugs.
6. Ear infections.
7. Eye disorders.
8. Neurological diseases.
9. Sudden, rapid changes of position.
10. Arteriosclerosis.
11. Excessive intake of fluid and salt.
12. Emotional disturbances.
13. Gastric upsets.
14. Extraordinary fatigue.

It is obvious that it is an arduous task to discover the exact cause of dizziness. If the condition persists, it is worth the effort, however, to be freed of the emotional anxiety so often associated with this unpleasant symptom.

Note drop in nation's welfare rolls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's welfare rolls edged downward in fiscal 1973 for the first time in seven years, while the rise in expenditures slowed markedly, according to a new government report released today.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare figures show that 14.8 million persons were receiving public assistance at the end of last June, a decrease of 249,000 or 1.4 per cent fewer than a year ago.

Costs for federal-state welfare programs totaled $19.4 billion for the 12-month period, an increase of $1.1 billion or 6 per cent over fiscal 1972 when spending shot up 17.4 per cent and the number of recipients topped the 15-million mark.

The last time the nation's welfare caseload decreased was in 1967, when a net loss of about 100,000 recipients dropped the total 1.2 per cent to 7.7 million persons.

Then, the rolls began spiraling upward each year, to 9.1 million, 10.2 million, 12.2 million, 14.3 million and 15.1 million.

The bulk of the fiscal 1973 reduction occurred among the elderly, who were shifted off welfare when they began receiving higher Social Security benefits, and those persons on general assistance which involves no federal funds.

Democrat could succeed Saxbe as senator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan could appoint a Democrat to the U.S. Senate if Republican Sen. William Saxbe resigns to become U.S. Attorney General.

But an aide to the governor, when questioned Tuesday, said Gilligan has not considered appointing himself.

Kent B. McGough, chairman of the Republican party in Ohio, said meanwhile he would not like to see the party give up the post.

But McGough said assuming Gilligan would appoint a Democrat, a one-year incumbency would not be devastating to the party. Ohio's other U.S. Senator, Robert Taft Jr., is a Republican.

Burglar says 'Thank You'

Someone pried a lock from the door of the Howard Merritt residence, 604 Gregg St., shortly after "beggars' hours" Tuesday night and entered the house. Drawers were rifled, but nothing was reported missing.

The burglar signed a "Thank You," in soap on the glass panel of the front door, but police have not yet determined what prompted the display of gratitude.

Paul R. Johnson, 817 Broadway, reported that the radio antenna was broken from his truck at approximately 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. The truck was parked in front of his residence.

Ashbrook rips liberal stand

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, has told a "Police Appreciation Week" dinner meeting that one of the biggest problems facing society is that liberals are "calling for a balance of rights between criminals and police."

Ashbrook's visit to the state Tuesday was the first since his campaign for president in New Hampshire's 1972 primary in which he came in third behind Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., and President Nixon.

Ashbrook also said, however, that "there is a general resurgence of respect for low and order."

Rest areas on Ohio roads said outmoded

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's present system of highway rest areas is a series of "outmoded outhouses," said J. Phillip Richley, Ohio Director of Transportation.

Richley told the 1973 Governor's Conference on Tourism Tuesday night that seven motorist information centers will be built at key entrances to Ohio this year.

In addition, he said the state will rebuild all rest areas in the future adding tourist information booths and indoor plumbing. Construction of the first seven centers will begin in January, he said.

"Our rest areas need to be upgraded substantially," he said. "We have some of the poorest rest areas in the nation for such an urban state.

"These centers will give more services and more tourism-type information to the motorist, especially the one who approaches an urban area."

Richley said the plan was first announced last summer but has not been acted upon."

"I deplore that an important service that will do so much good has been used as a political football," he said.

"This project will be funded 90 per cent by the federal government, with funds earmarked for highways only. It seems logical that a state like Ohio could go a little beyond providing outhouses at rest stops."

Richley also said Ohioans cannot expect "massive highway programs like the ones we have been used to in the past."

He said Ohio's vast highway programs in the past have left the state with a huge mortgage debt. In addition, federal funding is down, already approved funds have been impounded and environmental limitations are much stricter than before, he said.
